RECTOR WEDDED TO A CATHOLIC PUTS LOVE FIRST

Defends Self Before Church Court.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Lexington, Ky., April 23.—[Special.]—A tall, haggard young man, dressed in a business suit, today faced an ecclesiastical court of five ministers of the Lexington diocese of the Episcopal church here and with passionate delivery declared, "Love does not wait on religious persuasion, neither does it depend on religious creed."

BISHOP H. P. ABBOTT.

He was the Rev. Julius A. Velasco, rector of the little Episcopal Church of St. John on the street dividing the twin towns of Dayton and Bellevue, Ky. He went on trial today in Christ church cathedral parish house, charged with breaking a preordination vow to his bishop that if he married a member of the Roman Catholic church he would resign his orders.

Charges Are Read.

Originally the charge was that he had broken his promise not to wed a Roman Catholic. Both the original charge and the amended were read to the court by Henry Duncan, Lexington attorney, who with A. E. Strickett, Covington, Ky., former state senator, is representing the standing committee of the diocese, which preferred the charges against the minister.

Other charges against Mr. Velasco include a charge that in marrying Miss Catherine Rogers of Howard county, Md., Jan. 24 last, in a ceremony by a Roman Catholic priest, "in violation of his vows to his church," he agreed to let his wife bring up any children who might be born of the marriage in the Roman Catholic faith. In addition, the committee charges that Miss Rogers, when he and she went to an Episcopal minister to ask him to marry them, changed her mind and said that to be married by an Episcopal minister was not in accord with her faith.

Insolence Also Charged.

Mr. Velasco, according to the charges read to the court, also used "defamatory language" in a statement to the press regarding Bishop H. P. Almon Abbott of this diocese in which he said, "Bishop Abbott has called me a rebellious priest, and since he has done so I will do my best to be one," and other statements concerning the bishop's alleged withdrawal of a part of the minister's salary of $2,000 a year. It was also charged that when Bishop Abbott called at St. John's parish, Feb. 9, Mr. Velasco used "disrespectful and insolent language" and denied him entrance to the parish house without his invitation.

[Bishop Abbott was at one time rector of St. Chrysostom's church in Chicago. He succeeded the Rev. Norman Sutton, who resigned because of ill health. Shortly after coming to Chicago the Rev. Dr. Abbott was elected bishop of the Lexington diocese.]

"The standing committee had some knowledge of the Rev. Mr. Velasco's attachment to a young lady of Roman Catholic faith," said Attorney Strickett in the prosecution's opening statement, "and saw an impediment to the performance of his duties as a priest of the Protestant Episcopal church.

"That is why the committee made the condition, in giving its assent to his ordination as a priest, that if he did become wedded to this sweetheart he would thereupon resign his orders."

Wife Sits Near Him.

The "sweetheart," now Mrs. Velasco, 29 years old, with fair hair, a Cupid's bow mouth, and a tilted nose, sat throughout this and following discourse, her arms folded, her blue eyes narrowed as she watched the procedure. Occasionally she turned to her husband, who sat beside her before he addressed the court, and smiled. Once he put his arm around her as they bent over a legal paper.

When the Rev. Franklin Davis of Louisville, Ky., who presided over the court of three elderly and two youthful ministers, asked the accused man if he pleaded guilty to the charges, he arose, and said: "Not guilty, suh."

Mr. Velasco, acting as his own attorney, told the court in his opening statement, which lasted almost two hours, "I see no need for any legal counsel. I am no criminal and I am

CRIME BOARD ASKS EXILE OF GANG LEADERS

Twenty-eight men were labeled "public enemies" yesterday by the Chicago crime commission, which asked Police Commissioner Russell and other enforcement officials to "treat them accordingly." The purpose of the crime commission, it was explained, is to drive the twenty-eight men from Chicago.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission and a member of President Hoover's crime commission, outlined the former commission's recommendations for the treatment of "public enemies" as follows:

"Vigilant watchfulness and arrests. Court action. Deportation of criminal aliens. Investigation to determine whether personal property taxes have been paid by these persons. Investigation of the status of their real estate holdings and the taxes paid thereon. Inquiry as to whether or not they have paid their United States income taxes."

Spotlight on Gangsters.

Mr. Loesch further recommended, with reference to the 28 men named:

"Raids on disorderly houses controlled by them. Raids on gambling houses, night clubs, dog tracks, etc., in which they are interested or which they frequent. Inquiry to determine their political affiliations and publication of the facts. Publication of business and residence addresses, business affiliations and such information as may be developed regarding banking connections and other financial interests."

The purpose as explained by Mr. Loesch, is "to keep the light of publicity on Chicago's most prominent and notorious gangsters to the end that they may be under constant observation by law enforcing authorities."

Here's List for Exile.

Those named by the crime commission as "public enemies" are:

JOE AIELLO, once partner of Tony Lombardo in rulership of Sicilian gangsters, and suspected of having instigated the murder of Lombardo. He is suspected of several murders.

GEORGE ["RED"] BARKER, served terms in two penitentiaries for robbery and was a defendant in a murder trial. Barker took control of the coal teamsters' union through gun play and threats and now controls a string of unions.

JAMES BELCASTRO, called "king of bombers," involved in west side outlawry and known as a dangerous man.

ALPHONSE CAPONE, most notorious of gangsters, head of a liquor, vice, and gambling syndicate, who lately is reported to have been seeking added political power and more wealth by seizing control of labor unions.

RALPH CAPONE, brother of Alphonse, now on trial in federal court on charges of income tax falsification.

FRANK DIAMOND, west side Capone lieutenant, whose name was mentioned in connection with several murders.

TERRY DRUGGAN, one of the Druggan-Lake team which made a fortune in beer, now involved with the government over the payment of income taxes.

ROCCO FANNELLI, west side procurer and gunman, who, with others, sought to take control of west side vice for Capone's syndicate three years ago.

JOSEPH GENARO of the south side Genaro clan. An alcohol dealer and gunman, he was shot recently and named his assailants, but refused to prosecute them when he recovered.

JACK GUSICK, south side brothel keeper, saloonkeeper, and Capone representative.

FRANK LAKE, the other half of the Druggan-Lake combination.

LAWRENCE MANGANO, known as "Dago," the proprietor of the Minerva Athletic club, which has been raided scores of times as a gambling joint.

FRANK M'ERLANE, old time criminal and bootlegger. Acquitted of two murders and accused of many others. Reputed to be most violent criminal in Chicago.

VINCENT M'ERLANE, brother of Frank.

JACK M'GURN, known as Machine Gun Jack, indicted as one of the participants in the Valentine day massacre and charged with many other shootings.

LEO MONGOVEN, bodyguard of Bugs Moran. Mongoven is under indictment for attempted extortion. He has been arrested many times.

FORD TO FIRE EVERY EMPLOYE WHO HAS ALCOHOLIC BREATH

Detroit, Mich., April 23.—(AP)—The Ford Motor company will discharge every employe who is found drinking an alcoholic beverage or who reports for work with the odor of liquor on his breath, Harry W. Bennett, chief of the company's private police force, said tonight.

Mr. Bennett said that this policy was adopted in coöperation with Chief of Police Carl Brooks of the suburb of Dearborn, near which the principal Ford plant is located.

The Ford chief explained that the rule applies to men found in police raids on speakeasies in Dearborn and to men who are apprehended drinking at any other place. Brooks confirmed the plan of coöperation and said that patrons in raided places will be examined and that those found to have Ford badges will be reported to Bennett.

Exceptions to the rule will be made only where the family of the offender is destitute, Bennett said.

Hoover Urging Thrift to Keep Tax Rates Low

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—Continuation of the present reduced income tax rates is believed to be the purpose underlying President Hoover's drive to hold down appropriations.

While the President has given approval to increased expenditures for public buildings, river and harbor improvements and other expansions of governmental activity to such an extent as to threaten a deficit in the next fiscal year, it is understood that he has not given up hope that a way will be found to continue tax rates of the present year.

The upward trend of appropriations and uncertainty as to revenue due to unsatisfactory business conditions have made the outlook none too bright. The President is on record, however, in his budget message of last December as promising to recommend a continuance of the present one year tax cut if such a thing is possible.

Present Rates Expire This Year.

Unless congress acts next winter the old income tax rates will automatically become effective on taxes to be reported in March, 1931, on 1930 earnings.

From a political standpoint it is held by administration leaders to be highly desirable to continue the lower rates in effect. It is their hope that the President will be able to announce next October, when the 1932 budget is made up, that he will recommend to congress in December a continuation of the present rates. Such an announcement would be beneficial to the Republicans for campaign purposes. If conditions make it impossible to continue the present rates the Democrats will be certain to refer to this in the November campaign as an evidence of Republican inefficiency.

Experts Predict Deficit.

President Hoover has not disclosed detailed figures which enter into the budget bureau's calculation that a deficit of from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 is now in prospect for the fiscal year 1931. It is assumed that the budget bureau is working on the theory that the present law will stand and that the higher rates will become effective on income tax payments made next March. According to the bureau's calculations, a continuance of the present reduced rates would entail a deficit of more than 100 millions.

What the President is supposed to be counting on is an upward turn in business conditions during the present year which will insure larger revenues next year than the treasury now expects.

U. S. EXPERT CHARGES HOLDING COMPANY MADE 3,102 PER CENT

Washington, D. C., April 23.—(AP)—Instances in which, a federal trade commission accountant said, the Electric Bond and Share company obtained returns of 3,102 and 2,191 per cent for one year on the actual cost of its investments in utilities companies were related today in the commission's investigation of utilities financing.

John H. Bickley, the witness, said Bond and Share's common stock in the Southeastern Power and Light company had cost $4,795, and that in 1927 the dividends on that stock were $148,800, or 3,102 per cent. After unification of the National Power and Light and the Lehigh Power Securities corporation, he added, stock that Bond and Share had bought in the latter company brought dividends at the rate of 2,191 per cent in 1928.

The accountant said that from March 15, 1905, when the Electric Bond and Share company was formed, until March 13, 1929, about the time it absorbed the Electric Bond and Share Securities corporation, the rate of return on total capital employed had been 11.57 per cent.

MOB KNOCKS OUT SHERIFF; SEIZES AND KILLS NEGRO

Walhalla, S. C., April 24 (Thursday.)—(AP)—Allen Green, 30 year old Negro, was lynched early today by a masked mob that dragged him from the Oconee county jail, tied him to a tree, and riddled his body with bullets.

Sheriff John Thomas was struck on the head when he resisted the mob. He was taken to a hospital in Anderson to determine if his skull was fractured.

Green was charged with attacking an 18 year old white woman. He was arrested Sunday.

Eugene Thomas, 21 year old son of the sheriff, said his father went to the front of the building and pleaded with the mob to leave the prisoner alone. Instead, one of the men hit him on the head, his son said, with the butt of a pistol and took his keys. The Negro then was taken from his cell and carried away in an automobile. His body was found a short time later.

Handcuff, Slay Negro.

Gunnison, Miss., April 23.—(AP)—A crowd of several hundred men today shot and killed Dave Harris, 35 year old Negro, accused of slaying Clayton Funderberg, 17 year old farm boy.

Deputy Sheriff T. L. Courtney said the men took Harris to a levee along the Mississippi river near here, handcuffed him to a tree and shot him to death.

Machine Guns Used on Mob; Revolt Grows

LAHORE, April 23.—Twenty natives are reported to have been killed at Peshawar, on the northwest frontier, today, when British Gurkha troops opened fire on a mob of infuriated nationalists.

A hail of stones met the troops as they entered the city to end disturbances, which had prevailed since morning. Well aimed missiles caused casualties among the soldiers, including Deputy Commissioner H. A. F. Metcalf, who was taken to a hospital.

The mob scattered at the machine gun fire, leaving the dead and wounded behind. The city is now quiet, but is patrolled by British troops, and all city gates are guarded to prevent looting by tribesmen.

Two Soldiers Burned Alive.

Two British soldiers were burned alive in their gasoline splashed armored car and a city police sergeant was hacked to death with a hatchet in an outbreak of savage rioting in the same city, earlier in the day.

Never before has burning gasoline been used as a weapon with which to attack an armored car, so far as is known here, but today's mob showed how easily it could be done.

Two cars with crews of two soldiers each were patrolling the city when they came upon an unruly crowd. Daring nationalists suddenly poured a bucketful of gasoline over one car while their companions threw matches. In an instant the car was a roaring mass of flames and the two occupants had no chance to escape through the narrow manhole.

Police Sergeant Slain by Mob.

In another part of the city a police sergeant on a motorcycle found his way blocked by a mob and was thrown to the pavement. The crowd fell on him and butchered him with a hatchet.

Aside from its ferocity today's outbreak is significant as showing that repercussion of Gandhi's campaigns have reached furthest extremities of the vast Indian peninsula. Outbreaks so far have occurred in Karachi, on the Arabian sea; Chittagong, far to the east, near Burma, Bombay, a thousand miles southwest, and Calcutta and Madras, 1,500 miles southeast of Peshawar.

Streets Strewn with Débris.

The streets at Peshawar are littered with débris and stones which the crowds threw at the soldiers.

Metcalf the deputy commissioner who was wounded, is an Oxford graduate. He was assistant private secretary to the viceroy from 1914 to 1917. Later he was on the Indian staff of the prince of Wales during his tour of 1921 and 1922. He was appointed deputy commissioner of the Peshawar district in November, 1928.

Twelve Killed in Battles.

CALCUTTA, India, April 23.—(AP)—Conditions of unrest in India increased in gravity today. The day's events included information that twelve persons were killed yesterday, when troops clashed with the insurgents who raided the Chittagong arsenal Saturday, a demonstration by thousands in Calcutta, the shooting of five persons at Fenny, and the deadly riots at Peshawar.

The twelve deaths resulted when detachments of the eastern frontier rifles and the Ourma valley light horse dislodged a group of the Chittagong insurgents from a strong position in the hills. In addition to those killed two were seriously wounded. Fourteen were arrested. No military casualties were reported. The main body of the rebels escaped and the soldiers were continuing the search.

The demonstration in Calcutta fol-

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the 26th division, A. E. F., and for fifty years a soldier, denounced prohibition before the house judiciary committee today as a military failure and as "legislative fanaticism" invoked without the consent of service men in the world war.

Standing erect and speaking in a clear, forceful style, the seventy year old retired soldier proved the most impressive of four witnesses presented by the wets in the opening of their rebuttal testimony at the committee's prohibition hearings.

Pierre S. du Pont, millionaire chemical and munitions manufacturer, took the stand for a second time before Maj. Gen. Edwards was called, setting forth a volume of evidence in refutation of claims made by the drys in their seven days before the committee three weeks ago.

Woman a Witness.

Other wet witnesses today were Miss Elizabeth Harris, representing the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, and Dr. Clarence F. Buck, secretary of the Federal Dispensary-Tax Reduction league.

Chairman George S. Graham [Rep., Pa.] announced at the close of the hearing that the wets will be allowed to proceed tomorrow, after which the committee will consider the half dozen repeal and modification measures on which the hearings have been based.

Unlike many other witnesses, Gen. Edwards lost no time in reaching what he had to say. In his first words he criticized the drys' "stubborn and blind loyalty to certain manifest convictions in the very face of concrete and evident facts," and their "lack of knowledge of what is going on in this country."

Declaring that "temperance" was his objective in coming from his farm in Westwood, Mass., to talk to the committee, he described prohibition as "the most intemperate thing that exists."

Tells What Soldiers Think.

With this preface Gen. Edwards launched into a discussion of the results of prohibition experiments in the army and the attitude of the men who were in uniform in 1918 and 1919 toward the eighteenth amendment.

"You ask what does the veteran of the world war think of prohibition?" he said. "Bear in mind that although your veterans were the defenders of our nation when its safety was endangered, these same veterans were denied the opportunity of expressing their opinion on this proposed legislative fanaticism. They can never be held responsible for its adoption. They were good enough to fight, but not good enough to be consulted as to what they were fighting for."

The old soldier grew bitter as he related his experiences in the Canal Zone, the Philippines, Hawaii, and the Mexican border with the army canteen and the results of its abolition by congress as the first step toward national prohibition.

In each case, he said, the establishment of a regulated wine and beer dispensary on an army reservation solved the liquor problem and worked for discipline and sobriety. He cited as an example the canteen or post exchange at Fort Porter, Tex., where the soldiers, he said, were contented and abandoned the surrounding grog shops.

"About this time," he continued, "came the forerunners of our modern advocates of dry fanaticism—the men and women who demanded the abolition of the army canteen. With absolutely no knowledge about the excellent results obtained by reason of the establishment of these exchanges, those reformers waged an uncompromising battle in the halls of congress for the complete elimination of this most beneficial institution.

"The result of this campaign was the enactment of legislation prohibiting absolutely the serving of any beverage of alcoholic content on a military reservation. Let the army be the dog on which to try this early edition of the eighteenth amendment! Examine the results of this reformation.

Discipline Imperiled.

"A reign of intemperance prevailed in every military garrison. Extreme disciplinary methods were resorted to in an effort to gain a state of temperance which army life and regulation demanded. Punishments were severe and uncompromising, but to our consternation every army post was surrounded by saloons and dives. Men would be away for 20 minutes at intervals between their duties and would return intoxicated and unfit for duty. That was the result throughout the army, wherever troops were stationed."

Maj. Gen. Edwards stated that he took 30,000 men to France and that his division fought in the front lines for ten months. The men were allowed to drink wines and beer without restriction, he said, and he had no trouble with drunkenness.

"I was told by Federal Judge Anderson when he reported from G. H. Q. to my headquarters as colonel and judge advocate of the 26th division that the court martial proceedings in the whole A. E. F. was 3.9 per cent per thousand men, an excellent record, better than that of peace times here in America," he said. "This, gentlemen, was in alcoholic France."

Sees Dry Laws' Overthrow.

Maj. Gen. Edwards asserted that he was confident the youth of the country, like the youth in the army, would eventually overthrow prohibition and that they would never indorse "a law that precludes one from being master of one's own soul, that employs poison and requires bullets to enforce it."

None of the dry members of the committee sought to cross-examine the major general as he concluded his statement, although Representative G. R. Stobbs [Rep., Mass.] asked him for a comment upon the testimony of a dry witness that the British army would have been more efficient without grog. Maj. Gen. Edwards denounced that as the "outrageous statement against a friendly nation by a man who stayed at home and knows nothing about it."

Du Pont Questioned Closely.

Mr. du Pont, however, did not escape with so little cross-examination. Apparently having prepared for his return to the stand, Representative C. I. Sparks [Rep., Kas.], a dry, fired a barrage of questions at the manufacturer.

"Do you permit drinkers to work for you?" Sparks demanded.

"Yes," responded Du Pont. "I do unless they are physically incapacitated."

"Do you let them use all the liquor they want?"

Mr. du Pont replied: "Yes, if they come to work in the proper condition. A poll among the workers in our plants shows that 60 per cent of them have liquor for their own consumption."

Still pressing his point, Sparks inquired if Du Pont tried to employ "that kind of men," to which the witness responded that whether or not a workman drank made no difference to him, adding: "I never ask them about that question."

"Isn't it true, Mr. du Pont," asked Representative C. Ellis Moore [Rep., O.], another dry, "that some big business men like yourself favor the referendum and the government going into business only for prohibition and nothing else?"

Wants Act Repealed.

Mr. du Pont explained that he did not think that the government should go into the liquor business, but that the 18th amendment should be repealed, giving liquor control back to the states. A direct referendum on the 18th amendment, he said, would be "quite impossible," although he favored state referenda.

Answering the dry argument that a majority of the people want to keep prohibition, Mr. du Pont pointed out that seven votes taken on state prohibition questions since 1920 show a total of "more than two to one against prohibition" and that "four other votes showed 58 per cent only in favor of the prohibition side of the question."

"It is a remarkable fact that many, even of the most upright and respected citizens, are in open revolt against the supposed purpose of the 18th amendment, that is, the entire suppression of drinking," he said. "Many who pretend to uphold the law and exalt its benefits do not hesitate to drink when liquor is furnished them."

Discounting the prosperity argument put forth by many dry witnesses, Mr. du Pont quoted from the report of the bureau of economic research, a commission headed by Herbert Hoover, which mentioned prohibition as a prosperity factor only three times. The report showed that it was a minor factor in stimulating the milk business and the sugar business, and a major factor in stimulating the sale of grapes.

He also quoted at length statistics as to mortality rates, drunkenness arrests, drinking by youths, and other related subjects, all tending to counteract figures presented by the drys.

Woman Gives Figures.

Miss Harris, representing the women's wet organization headed by Mrs. Charles Sabin of New York, read a statement challenging the claims of dry women witnesses who declared that they spoke for millions of women who are bone dry in their sentiments.

The claim of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chief marshal of the feminine dry forces, to represent 12,000,000 women and of Mrs. John Sippel, president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, to represent the federation's component clubs, she attacked on two grounds: First, "the inherent improbability that nearly half of the total adult female population of the country was enrolled on one side of this political question; and second, the immediate and widespread protest from women and clubs who denied the views attributed to them."

Miss Harris then presented a long list of women enrolled in clubs affiliated with the general federation, who denied that any poll had ever been taken on prohibition. Mrs. Peabody's "wholesale delivery" of her organization on the dry side, she declared, was entirely unjustified.

Dispensary Idea Explained.

Dr. Buck explained the plan of his organization to establish a federal dispensary system like that in Canada and Sweden as refutation of the dry charge that the wets have no constructive substitute to offer for prohibition. The dispensary plan is incorporated in the resolution presented by Representative Adolph J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.]. It is one of those before the committee.

In the course of his remarks Dr. Buck flatly contradicted the allegations by Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago and dry witnesses who had collected telegrams from university presidents, that there is little drinking among college students.

Since they testified, he said, polls have been taken by several recognized university publications with the following results:

"University of Michigan, out of 902 girl students, 305 admit they drink. Harvard students, 2,646 drinkers to 914 nondrinkers. University of Chicago, 40 per cent of the boys and girls admit they drink. Princeton, 79 per cent drink; Yale, 71 per cent; Amherst, 73 per cent. Out of a total of 24,000 students voting at 14 colleges, 15,000 admit they drink."

Prior to the appearance of the four witnesses, Representative George Holden Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] presented to the committee a copy of a letter written to him by Prof. Irving Fisher, a well known dry, in which Prof. Fisher referring to the effect of prohibition upon business conditions said that "like other economists, I find evidence that prohibition has materially helped the United States, but I do not think it is as important a factor as several others."

U. S. Fights Sale of Pretty Bottles Liquor Is Put In

Washington, D. C., April 23.—(AP)—The government urged the Supreme court today to aid it in more effective prohibition enforcement by preventing stores from selling bottles, casks and other containers which will enable bootleggers to deliver their products to customers in an attractive manner.

The question reached the court in an appeal by Ike Danovitz of Pittsburgh, Pa., as the surviving partner of the Feitler Bottle company, protesting against the seizure and confiscation by prohibition enforcement agents of a stock of empty barrels, bottles, corks, and other articles.

The government defended the seizure on the ground that the articles were intended for sale for the illgal manufacture of liquor.

Argue Use in Manufacture.

Ward Bonsall, as counsel for Danovitz, insisted that the seizure was illegal on the ground that the prohibition law condemned traffic in articles used only in illegal manufacture. He argued that the manufacture of liquor had ceased before it was bottled or placed in other containers.

Assistant Attorney General Sisson took direct issue with this argument, insisting that the bottling and preparation of liquor for market was a part of the manufacture declared illegal by the Volstead act.

Court Attitude Favors Drys.

Bonsall took the view that should the Supreme court sustain the lower courts in declaring the seizure and confiscation legal, it would not only aim a blow at the manufacture and sales of the bottles generally, but the decision also must be extended to the manufacture of fruit jars and all other containers susceptible of use by bootleggers in marketing their product. Assistant Attorney General Sisson asserted that if the government succeeded in preventing bootleggers obtaining whisky bottles and compelled them to use fruit jars and milk bottles it would be a material step forward in prohibition enforcement.

Every member of the court asked questions which indicated approval of the decision of the lower courts authorizing the seizure.

WETS ACCUSED OF LOBBYING IN SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—Spectacular charges by Senator A. R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.] that officials of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment "lobbied with members of the United States Supreme court," coupled with repeated clashes between the Indiana senator and H. H. Curran, president of the association, marked today's senate lobby committee hearing.

Five minutes after he denounced letters from T. W. Phillips Jr., Republican gubernatorial aspirant in Pennsylvania, and a director of the association, to Justice Stone and the late Justice Sanford as "the most amazing thing I ever heard of," Robinson himself was openly accused by Curran of doing "a dishonorable thing."

Robinson challenged Curran to let the committee decide what "is honorable or dishonorable" and the row, in which Senator J. J. Blaine [Rep., Wis.] joined Curran, ended when the committee ordered portions of another letter read by Robinson and reflecting seriously on a Boston, Mass., Republican leader, stricken from the record.

Letters Written to Stone.

In his letters written to Justice Stone on April 2 and April 9 and to Justice Sanford on March 30, 1929, Phillips sought, he said, to give the justices "a new slant as to how some men are thinking and talking." In the April 9 letter to Justice Stone the query of an unnamed lawyer, "Do you have any idea that the Supreme court, as constituted now, would have the moral courage to go into this question thoroughly?" was quoted.

The letter to the late Justice Sanford bitterly assailed the Jones 5 and 10 enforcement law for its "excessive fines and cruel punishment" and complained that law makers and administrators alike seem to have forgotten the primary purpose of the constitution, "to set up some barrier against the persistent encroachment of tyranny."

"I have but little doubt that if the judiciary lies down on its job," Phillips continued in the letter, "and follows the mob along the lines of least resistance our form of government is doomed."

Letter Indicates Response.

Phillips' letter of April 9 to Justice Stone indicated that the latter had replied to the first, but Robinson declared after the hearing he did not find the justice's response in the file.

"It is the most amazing thing I ever heard of," asserted Robinson, pounding the table after Curran asserted he approved the letters. "You are lobbying directly with the Supreme court, apparently to influence that great court in its decisions."

Digging deeper into the association's records heaped before him, Robinson extracted a letter written by W. P. Smith, a vice president of the organization, to Curran, in the course of which Smith warned the latter of reports that the Boston politician who was suggested to lead a campaign for contributions was "unscrupulous."

"Don't you realize what a dishonorable thing you are doing to advertise a man that way?" interrupted Curran.

"Let the committee judge what is honorable and what is dishonorable," snapped Robinson, "but as long as you are a witness confine yourself to answering questions."

"I don't want to take responsibility for allowing imputations as to the character of a person not here to defend himself to stand in a public record," interjected Blaine, "and I ask that that portion be stricken."

Senators Walsh and Blaine laughed with the hearing room crowd at Robinson's obvious discomfiture when Curran, after Robinson had read a letter from a dry critic attacking the association's activities, remarked it was a "nut" letter and that he received letters from members of the Ku Klux Klan.

"Are they along the same line?" queried Robinson, who, it is generally regarded, was supported for election by the klan in Indiana.

Sees End of Income Tax.

Answering questions by Walsh, the wet leader availed himself of an opportunity to point out that "this marble lobby building of the Methodists near the capitol is probably exempt from taxes." Curran contended that repeal of the eighteenth amendment would probably permit repeal of the federal income tax law because of the resultant revenue to the government.

NEITHER SALOON NOR SPEAKEASY, WOMEN'S MOTTO

Would Modify Dry Law to Kill Its Evils.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., April 23.—Good ac[t], good manners, good clothes, good temper and forthright speech have distinguished this opening day's session of the three hundred delegates representing a hundred thousand members of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

With careful utterance the views of the first nation-wide conference of women opposed to prohibition were formulated at afternoon and night sessions in these main declarations:

"Keep away from the saloon and do away with the speakeasy.

The Dry Voting Drinker.

"If there is one type of inferior lawmaker more loathsome than another, it is the dry voting drinker, and to him we serve notice in the language of ancient Job: 'The triumph of the wicked is short and the joy of the hypocrite but for a moment.'

"We cannot insist that because a law is a law it must not be changed, or because well intentioned aims have gone awry that other methods must not now be tried.

"The repeal of an unenforceable law is always preferable to nullification. The women's organization for national prohibition reform is confident that the electorate of this country will change this obnoxious law by legal and peaceful means."

Lobbying at Washington by church bodies was emphatically condemned by the conference, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, and the Anti-Saloon league being criticised by name.

Deplores Church in Politics.

In her keynote speech as temporary chairman, Mrs. Henry B. Joy, Detroit, an honorary vice president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which last week forbade discussion of prohibition at its Washington congress, said today:

"The churches which we love and which mean so much to so very many millions of us women are becoming tainted with politics. This is one of the greatest of the disasters wrought by prohibition."

The same warning note is being sounded at tonight's session. Mrs. Carroll Miller, now of Pittsburgh, formerly of Aurora, Ill., who was voted for as candidate for President of the United States at the Madison Square convention of 1924, has just said to prolonged applause:

"Certain Protestant church groups crying bitterly to make people believe that the prohibition law is one with the Christian religion are rapidly raising up a race of skeptics; not merely persons who are skeptics as to the church and religion, but as to law and government itself. The result is that we are now perilously close to a church directed state, a condition unthinkable to every true American citizen."

For True Temperance.

Simultaneously with their condemnation of ecclesiastical lobbying and intrusion of church into legislative matters, the delegates are taking as the keynote of their program of work for what they define as "true temperance," as opposed to what they call "bogus prohibition," this passage from St. Paul's epistle to the Corinthians:

"Giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity."

Prolonged applause for that.

Like their sisters—more or less—of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the delegates to this anti-prohibition convention are wearing badges of red, white and blue ribbon. Unlike their sisters of the opposition, most of them also are smoking cigarets in the hallways, parlors and committee rooms of the Hotel Cleveland, where the convention is being held. Only in the ballroom, where the formal sessions convene, is the air clear of tobacco smoke.

Committees Begin Work.

At tonight's secret session of the committee on platform and resolutions, which is to report in the morning, a contest is on and, although not hysterical, it is hot. The question which this committee, composed of delegates from 25 states and the District of Columbia, is arguing is whether it shall submit a report on coming out emphatically for repeal of the eighteenth amendment or merely for modification of the Volstead act. Delegates from eastern states favor a declaration for repeal of the amendment, but tonight they lack three votes of a majority.

On that commitee—the most important of the convention—the middle west is represented by Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Illinois; Mrs. Amos Noyes Currier, Iowa; Miss Elsie Mershon, Michigan; Mrs. H. Gunner Nasburg, Minnesota; Mrs. Gertrude E. Bowler, Wisconsin, and Mrs. H. V. D. Moore, Indiana.

Mrs. Charles Sabin, New York City, formerly Pauline Morton of Chicago, founder of the organization, opened its first convention with this declaration:

"We are less than eleven months old and we have a hundred thousand members. Our goal is a million. Last April, eleven women from seven states founded us. Today we have members in every state.

"In the matter of temperance, the cause we all are serving, our country has made one mistake—national prohibition. God forbid that it should make another. The time has come for us women to announce a program of remedial legislation and then work for it."

Mrs. Sabin Probable President.

It is expected that Mrs. Sabin will be elected first president of the organization tomorrow.

In keynoting the purposes of the organization, Mrs. Joy of Michigan said:

"If so-called prohibition, with which we women were, I think, almost universally sympathetic when it was inaugurated, had succeeded in promoting temperance, reducing crime, decreasing our prison population and benefiting our social and economic conditions, we should not be here today.

"But it has failed, and we, clearly recognizing the facts, have come to admit our error, and to find a plan in which we women can coöperate to bring the alchoholic beverage traffic under the pure food act and lawful regulation and taxation.

"We must return to the basic principle of enacting laws which have the support and approval of the multitude and which, therefore, practically enforce themselves."

The most pisturesque public utterance of the day has been Mrs. Carroll Miller's apostrophe to what she described as "a certain law of nature called fermentation, a law which so many of our prohibition friends evidently disregard."

Thereupon she blazed out with this:

"I would suggest to our friends in the other camp that even though they lay waste every wheat field in Kansas, ruin every rye field in North Dakota, plow under every barley crop in Minnesota, demolish every corn stalk in Iowa, destroy every orange grove in Florida, cut down every apple tree in Washington, uproot every grape vine in California and trample down all the sugar cane in Louisiana, there would still be millions of gallons of intoxicating liquor made from the potatoes of Maine and the cactus of New Mexico."

Tydings Addresses Session.

When she introduced Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, who was received with loud but ladylike acclaim, Mrs. Sabin said, "This statesman, who has made in the senate the most effective exposure of the evils of prohibition that ever has been made, is christened Millard, but to our organization he is known as Glad Tydings."

This day of the realization of Mrs. Sabin's long toil for the creation of an organization which should make articulate the anti-prohibition sentiment of American women is also her birthday, and she said, "Little did I think ten years ago, when I was for prohibition, that my forty-third birthday would be passed as it has been passed today."

These women are not afraid of anything, not even of telling their ages.

"MRS. ERLANGER" LOSES POINT IN SUIT AS WIDOW

New York, April 23.—[Special.]—Charlotte Fixel, former actress who is contesting the will of the late Abraham Lincoln Erlanger, theatrical producer, lost two major points today in her legal fight for a share in the $75,000,000 estate.

Surrogate James A. Foley upheld the right of Saul J. Baron, one of the executors, to serve as temporary administrtor of the estate in the face of the contestant's allegations of prejudice and undue influence, and also denied the right of Miss Fixel to have her status as alleged common law widow determined by jury trial.

In his decision the surrogate held that Miss Fixel's position was not that of the usual contestant in a will case, such as a blood relative, and that until she has had her day in court any objections which she might interpose against the estate or its administration could not be judicially passed upon.

TAYLOR MURDER CONFESSED, BUT POLICE DUBIOUS

Los Angeles, Cal., April 23.—(AP)—A hope of solving the eight year old mystery of the murder of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, was raised and then shattered here today. Police detectives, to whom Russo Rinaldo, 41 year old accountant, 'confessed" he killed Taylor, are holding the man for examination of his mental condition, but they have decided his "confession" is probably false.

Taylor was found in his bungalow, dead from a bullet wound, in February, 1922

Two weeks ago, the day after Rinaldo came here from Tuscon, Ariz., the police received an anonymous telephone "tip" concerning the murder mystery Consequent to investigation of this, Rinaldo was arrested last night and police said he voluntarily confessed to shooting the motion picture director in a quarrel over a screen actress. Discrepancies of his narration with the known facts led to doubt, and finally discredit of the entire confession. His estranged wife, Mrs. Alice Rinaldo, music teacher, added the last touch that broke down the story.

"I was living with my husband at the time of the Taylor murder," Mrs. Rinaldo told Chief of Detectives Joseph Taylor. 'He had nothing to do with the murder and his story is a figment of what I believe to be a disordered mind."

WOMAN BITES BAILIFF; GETS 10 DAYS IN JAIL

Mrs. Lucille McGowan, 27 years old, 3224 Waveland avenue, was sentenced to serve ten days in the county jail for contempt of court yesterday by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg after she had bitten the hand of a bailiff, hurled several law books at court attachés, flung a bottle of ink at a deputy sheriff, and defied the judge.

The woman was a defendant in an action brought by the Straus National Bank and Trust company as receiver for property which she formerly owned. She was charged with withholding rentals which she was said to have collected in advance. The judge questioned the testimony of one of her witnesses.

"I won't be called a liar in this court," she screamed.

The judge imposed the sentence after efforts to placate her failed. As she was taken from the courtroom she hurled law books and the ink bottle. Later the sentence was rescinded when she apologized. Louis Green, the judge's personal bailiff, handed her her pocketbook as she prepared to leave the courtroom.

She shouted that she had been robbed, declaring that the purse had been rifled. With the charge she sprang at Green and bit him. The judge restored the ten day sentence. Three deputy sheriffs were required to subdue her.

PHOTO OF 1924 BARES WHAT MAY BE NEW PLANET

Study Shows Body Is Not "Planet X."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23.—Is there a tenth great planet in the heavens? The discovery of the ninth, "planet X," was announced on March 13. Has Miss Burland, a young woman scientist of the Dominion observatory here, discovered this new trans-Neptunian world, millions of miles distant from the earth?

These questions were being asked here tonight as Dr. Meldrum Stewart, director of the observatory, and other scientists, studied photographs of the heavens on which the young woman had pointed out a tiny black spot. From Harvard university, at Cambridge, Mass., came word that Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory there, was convinced that Miss Burland had found an entirely new planet.

Phot Taken in 1924.

The photographs through which the new planet appears to have been discovered had lain in the observatory since 1924. They were dug up with dozens of others in an effort to learn if there had been any earlier traces of "planet X," which was discovered by Lowell observatory, a Harvard institution, at Flagstaff, Ariz.

Dr. Stewart and Miss Burland thought the little black dot, which she found on the photograph, was "planet X." The photographs were enlarged and triangulated. The data was telegraphed to Cambridge.

Back came word from Prof. Shapley. He said the moving speck on the Dominion observatory negatives, made on Feb. 7, Feb. 24, and Feb. 29, 1924, was not "planet X."

May Be a Comet.

"This body is apparently a trans-Neptunian object," Prof. Shapley said, "or at least very far out in the planetary system, but since no magnitude or form of the object has been given by the observers, it is impossible to say whether this is another trans-Neptunian body like "planet X" or whether it is the nucleus of some great comet at or near aphelion. The position in 1924 shows that it is not the Lowell observatory object."

However, Canadian scientists are continuing their search.

"The object we have discovered is in about the same position, apparently, as planet X would have been in 1924," declared Dr. Stewart. "While the tiny speck on the Canadian celestial photographs is in the same position as the Lowell planet, certain other data do not coincide and it is possible that Canada may be credited with a new discovery. Planet X is about 40 times the distance of the earth from the sun, so the possibility of another tiny dot being on the plate instead of the trans-Neptunian planet is not too remote."

QUINCY DENTIST FREED IN MEXICO FOR $200 RANSOM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, April 23. — Dr. George Edward Purnell, 66 year old American dentist, formerly of Quincy, Ill., who was kidnaped near Guadalajara last Sunday, was liberated this morning on the payment of $200.

Dr. Purnell, who was driving along the Rio Blanco road Sunday, was attacked by six bandits, who shot from a cliff above, killing the chauffeur. Mr. Purnell and a companion took refuge under the cliff and fought off the bandits for half an hour, until their ammunition was exhausted and they were forced to surrender. The bandits first asked $3,000. Dr. Purnell's companion was sent to Guadalajara to get the money.

During his absence the bandits, knowing that troops were near and being in need of money, accepted $200. Immediately after Dr. Purnell's release, troops, which had been held in waiting on the request of the American consul, lest close pursuit might endanger Dr. Purnell's life, began pursuit of the rebels.

AUTO KILLS BOY POLICEMAN IN SCHOOL TRAFFIC

Hit as He Aids Pupils at Crossing.

James Clemens, 13 years old, 3147 Darwin terrace, was injured fatally yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while, in his rôle of junior traffic policeman at the Darwin elementary school, he was escorting fellow pupils through the traffic at Fullerton and Kedzie avenues. He died last night in the University hospital of a fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

James had just given the signal for east and west traffic to proceed on Fullerton avenue when he was struck. As he stepped backward out of the way of eastbound cars, he walked directly into the path of a machine driven by Otto Fogelstrom, 55 years old, 3714 Castello avenue, who was driving west. Fogelstrom was arrested by the Shakespeare avenue police after he had taken the boy to a doctor's office and was released on $1,000 bond on a charge of assault.

Street Car Riders Killed.

Christ Coff, 53 years old, 4157 Princeton avenue, and Michael Morley, 62 years old, 525 West 78th street, were injured fatally when they and William Page, 21 years old, 3137 Parnell avenue, were brushed from the step of a moving 47th street car by the protruding end gate of a parked Consumers company truck. The accident occurred between Halsted street and the Chicago junction railroad.

Coff and Morley died at the German Deaconess hospital. Page was injured seriously.

These three deaths and two others yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll for 1930 to 278. The other victims:

Salvatore De Francisco, 7 years old, 1403 West Ohio street. Died in the Mother Cabrini hospital of injuries incurred Monday evening when he was struck by a truck.

Unidentified Negro, about 80 years old, believed to have been the victim of a hit and run motorist. He was found lying in the street at 59th street and Michigan avenue. In his clothes police found a piece of paper on which the name Barnes was written in pencil.

DIESEL MOTORED PLANE HITS HILL; 3 OCCUPANTS DIE

Attica, N. Y., April 23.—[Special.]—Maj. Lionel M. Woolson, army air reserve, chief aeronautical engineer of the Packard Motor company and inventor of the Packard Diesel aircraft engine, and two companions were killed this afternoon. The Diesel motored four passenger Verville air coach in which they were flying from Detroit to New York crashed, in a blinding snowstorm, on a hillside near this village.

Maj. Woolson's companions were Carl D. Knight, chief test pilot for the Verville Aircraft corporation of Detroit, and Harold B. Scutt of Douglaston, L. I., who recently passed tests for a transport pilot's license and is believed to have been at the controls when the crash occurred.

The plane, the product of two and one-half years' research, and the first to fly with a Diesel motor, was hailed as likely to revolutionize aircraft travel, and was to be exhibited at the aircraft show in New York May 3.

Flying Low at Time.

The party reached Buffalo just after noon, landed there, and at 1 p. m. took off for New York. Nearing Attica, the plane ran into a blinding snowstorm. Apparently the pilot decided to land and wait until the storm abated, for workmen heard the drone of the motor as it passed overhead, going east; then, a few minutes later, heard it again flying low, to the west. Suddenly they heard a terrible crash as the plane thudded against the steep slope of the hill and rolled, a mass of wreckage, into a ravine below.

The section hands ran to the spot. They found the wings of the plane torn away, the motor ripped loose and the fuselage flattened, but the ship did not catch fire. The Packard-Diesel is an oil burning motor, and one of the principal claims made for it is that it eliminates fire hazards in airplane accidents.

Widely Known as Designer.

Detroit, Mich., April 23.—Capt. L. M. Woolson, killed today in a plane crash near Attica, N. Y., was the designer of motors used in a number of famous air flights.

Commander John Rogers' flight to Honolulu in 1926 was with a motor designed by him. Capt. Woolson designed the engines on the navy dirigible Shenandoah.

He designed the 24 cylinder X-type motor for Lieut. Al Williams' racing ship two years ago, the first motor of that type ever created.

VOID WOMAN'S SENTENCE FOR COURT SHOOTING

The Appellate court yesterday voided the six months contempt of court sentence imposed on Mrs. Ida Dembo Burt, 27 years old, by Municipal Judge Haas last Sept. 9. Mrs. Burt had fired several shots during a civil hearing in his court. Mrs. Burt was sentenced to serve eight months in the Bridewell by Judge John P. McGoorty in the Criminal court Tuesday when she was found guilty of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon for the same offense. In the contempt case the Appellate court held that Mrs. Burt must have been insane when the sentence was imposed as she was sent to the asylum after the shooting. Her attorneys have asked for a new trial on the assault charge.

LINDY TO START FOR SPAIN, THEY SAY, NOT SOUTH

(Copyright, 1930, By the News, New York.)

New York, April 23.—[Special.]—Then Col. Charles A. Lindbergh hops off from Miami, Fla., on Saturday he will point the nose of his record breaking plane not toward Havana and Panama, as he is scheduled to do, but upward Spain on the first half of a Europe and return flight.

This, at least, was the fascinating speculation advanced tonight by a veteran Long Island flyer and aeronautical authority, who is a friend of the Lone Eagle. The aviator, who crystallized recent gossip of the flying fields in this terse guess, would not permit himself to be quoted by name. But, in offering his personal belief that Col. Lindbergh would try to hop to Europe and back in his nonpareil Lockheed Sirius plane this summer, the expert was highly skeptical of plans that call for Lindbergh's inauguration of another mail service over a trail already blazed by airmen.

Figures Round Trip.

"I think there's better than an even chance you'll see Slim hop over the big pond again, so that he can hop back and become the first to make a Paris to New York nonstop flight," this expert said. "The east-west passage, so far as hitting the bull's eye of New York from Paris is concerned, is one of the few great feats in aviation left to do, and I think that the colonel with a 450 horsepower Pratt-Whitney Wasp to push him along and a flying range of better than 4,300 miles, will be the boy to try it this summer."

How He Figures It Out.

But his friend, the aeronautical authority, offered an interesting chain of circumstantial evidence to support the speculation that, behind the announced plans for the Miami-Havana-Cristobal flight, the colonel is masking a secret hop for Europe.

"You will remember," he said, "that when Slim Lindy, the air mail man, came across the country in two hops the last time, he took off pronto on the flight that made him famous. In May of 1927 he hopped from California to St. Louis, then to New York, and then to Paris on May 22. Well, he hopped here Sunday in two hops, with Wichita the stop this time. And, when he flew that specially built racer of his here in 14 hours and 45 minutes from Los Angeles at high altitudes, he certainly was not testing it for a long rest in a hangar, was he?

"Looked as if he wanted to get the feel of the ship, just as he did with the Ryan monoplane in 1927. Then, you'll notice if you want to look, that the number of this Lockheed is NR-211. The number of the Ryan he flew to Paris was NX-211."

BROTHERS HELD FOR PLOT AFTER WIFE VANISHES

Russell Lowe, 27 years old, a mechanic of 9206 Merrill avenue, and his brother Frank of the same address were arrested in their home last night by Sergts. Edward Galvin and John Hass and locked up at the detective bureau, charged with conspiracy to commit an illegal act. The arrests followed an investigation begun a year after the disappearance of Russell Lowe's wife, Mary, from their former home at 8711 Essex avenue.

Mrs. Lowe, then 24 years old, disappeared on Sept. 18, 1928. A few days later Lowe reported to the police that his wife was missing. Neighbors said they had quarreled frequently, according to the police.

Last summer Mrs. Lowe's mother, Mrs. Mary Sloan, 10306 Hoxie avenue, asked Attorney H. J. Berman to make an investigation after she learned, the police said, that the Essex avenue property held in joint tenancy by her daughter and Lowe had been sold.

Berman found, the police said, that the property had been sold by Lowe's brother, Frank, who apparently had obtained title through a warranty deed signed by Lowe and his wife. Mrs. Sloan said she had never seen her daughter since the disappearance and expressed doubt, according to the police, that Mrs. Lowe had signed the deed.

FROM SAN SALVADOR, SALVADOR

A gentleman from Chicago who is visiting Central America, mailed this letter from San Salvador. The inhabitants of this city carry on a precarious existence, inasmuch as it has been wrecked by earthquakes eleven times since it was established by the Spanish conquistadors in the early sixteenth century. To make things more insecure, there is a volcano within three miles of the city.

But after each disaster the people have gone back to erect even finer buildings, until today it is one of the most picturesque spots of Central America.

The city is the capital of the republic of Salvador and is set upon the shore of the Pacific at the mouth of a little stream which forms a well watered vale between wooded heights. It contains the national palace, a university, library, astronomical observatory, and botanical gardens.

Behind the city the ground runs fairly level until about fifteen miles from the sea. There the mountains begin and the country takes on a wild appearance, with rugged peaks, many of them volcanic, soaring toward the sky. One of these peaks, which is called Izalco, became volcanic toward the close of the eighteenth century and has been active almost continuously since then.

Salvador has about 200 miles of coast line, deeply indented with several fine harbors. To the north and east lies Honduras, with Guatemala on the northwest.

The country is exceedingly fertile in places, yielding crops of indigo, coffee, rubber, sugar, and some cotton.

MISSIONER TELLS HOW TWO MILLION STARVE TO DEATH

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 23.—The Rev. F. S. Russell, a member of the English Baptist mission, who has been stationed for 17 years in Shensi province, arrived at Shanghai today to confer with famine relief officials.

The Rev. Russell said wheat is now selling in the city of Sianfu, capital of Shensi, for more than $5 a bushel, with millet and corn proportionally high.

He said that due to lack of seed only about one-fifth of the available farm land had been seeded this spring and that despite the expenditure of $350,000 through Chinese agencies and $150,000 through foreign agencies for relief measures, about 2,000,000 of Shensi's previous population of 6,000,000 had starved to death.

He said that there is a deep trench about 15 miles long around Sianfu which is almost completely filled with bodies of famine victims. When he left Sianfu on April 5, he said, people were still lying in the streets and that bodies being carried out to be dumped in the trench no longer excited comment or attention.

In reference to the relief agencies, he said that the foreigners now operate a dozen refugee stations and the Chinese relief organizations have about 15 stations, but that it was practically impossible to cope with the situation.

KOHLER BRAVES STATE FIRE; SAYS HE OBEYED LAW

Company Told to Keep Out of Campaign.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sheboygan, Wis., April 23.—[Special.]—Gov. Walter J. Kohler was on the witness stand for four hours today at the opening of evidence in his trial on the charge of having violated the state corrupt practices act when he won the nomination in the primary election of 1928.

He was called unexpectedly by the state as an "adverse witness" and waived his constitutional rights in testifying. All day he fenced with Attorney Harold M. Wilke of Madison, special prosecutor and an able lawyer of smiling appearance but bulldog tenacity.

Governor in Difficulty.

At times the governor appeared in a hole, as point after point was made to show how the Kohler company organization of 4,000, which he heads, was used in the campaign without specific arrangement for the expenses involved. The governor is not eloquent and had difficulty in presenting his point of view. But he did get across the footlights of this political drama occasionally and at one time had the courtroom audience applauding him and the jury smiling.

On the whole, the day's duel appeared about even. The governor was on the stand when the session ended.

The whole story of what this trial is to develop was outlined before the jury in the morning session by attorneys for the state and for the defense. It promises to be a long proceeding with the main evidential question centering around the responsibility for the campaign expenses. The limit of $4,000 allowed by the law was exceeded admittedly, but the defense is that this was done in a legal manner.

Mr. Kohler could not spend more than this and his company could not contribute, but his sisters and mother and wife and loyal employés could spend all they wanted to, and the committees could raise and spend all they wanted to. This interpretation is objected to by the state, and after the evidence is in it remains for the court to say what the governing law is.

Kohler Perfectly Groomed.

The old green shades of the courtroom were pulled down, shutting out the soothing view of Lake Michigan waters and the harsh lights were turned on when the perfectly groomed governor walked to the stand amid a buzz of excitement. He wore a gray suit with a white carnation in his button hole, a black tie with pearl stud, a white handkerchief showing from the outside pocket of his coat. He was grave, a little troubled in mind, but calm and poised, seldom letting irritation show at the smiling jabs of the cross-examiner.

His examination began with the Green Bay conference of conservative Republicans on June 20, 1928.

At this meeting he was indorsed for nomination. He then was in Kansas City as a convention delegate. He returned to Green Bay after the meeting was over and met George Vits, national committeeman; George Glikey, state chairman, and other leaders. L. P. Chase, attorney for the Kohler company, informed him that he had been named, he said; and here he injected a statement that was made many times today, as follows:

"I told Chase to keep the Kohler company out of this campaign."

Having told the attorney that, he paid no more attention to the details of how the company was kept out.

"Front Porch" Campaign.

The testimony showed that what might be called a "front porch campaign" was run from the Kohler home and the model village of Kohler. Thousands of persons, described by the state as "political pilgrims," visited there during the summer. It was Mr. Wilke's task to force the admission that all this was for a political purpose. It was a hard job. Some of it might have had a political effect, Mr. Kohler admitted.

"At least it wouldn't do any harm," he said smilingly. But later, when badgered again on this, he burst out:

"I never thought I could influence votes with mint, lemonade, tea, or cigars. I would not insult the intelligence of people who came to Kohlerville from all over this state. During the campaign I was bitterly attacked, especially on my 'relations with my employés. They used such words as 'wage slaves.' I wanted people to come and see conditions there. I invited tens of thousands to come."

Assails "Inquisition."

When an effort was made to impeach him by showing that he had said, in a John Doe investigation of this case in Milwaukee, that "some might have been influenced" in this way, the governor said:

"In my opinion the John Doe investigation was an inquisition. The witness is alone, with no one to counsel him. There are two opposing attorneys. The purpose seemed to be to entrap me into admissions for publicity purposes. One of the prosecutors was the man who signed these proceedings against me."

Again and again Mr. Wilke drove at this point, that the meals, cigars, and other entertainment at Kohler were for political effect.

"I told them of things of humanitarian nature," said the governor. "I never asked any individual to work for me or vote for me. I wanted them to see the type of citizen I was and what I had spent my life in building. If they thought I was a good candidate I suppose they would vote for me."

"What's more, apparently a good many did," interposed Attorney Harry D. Butler, dryly. The audience broke into applause.

Mr. Kohler said that when he decided to be a candidate he asked his attorney for a digest of the corrupt practices act. He was not permitted to tell of his conclusions at that time.

Attorney Walter D. Corrigan of Milwaukee outlined to the jury at the opening of court what the state charged and would seek to prove. He is a big man, with a head modeled somewhat on the lines of Senator Borah, and his presentation was impressive.

BISHOP GREETS SON IN HOMICIDE COURT; HEARING IS DELAYED

New York, April 23.—[Special.]—One week's adjournment to give defense counsel, Martin W. Littleton, time to investigate and study the case was taken today when James Matthew Maxon Jr., 21 year old son of Bishop Maxon of Tennessee, appeared in Homicide court for hearing on a short affidavit charging suspicion of homicide.

The hearing will be held next Tuesday, April 29.

In the meantime the district attorney will submit the case to the grand jury and ask for an indictment on evidence which, he says, shows that young Maxon killed David Paynter, 73, in a drunken brawl in a rooming house on West End avenue early last Friday.

Bishop Maxon, who hastened here from Chattanooga when he heard of his son's arrest, came in Homicide court today half an hour before his son arrived in charge of detectives.

The father and son greeted each other with a handshake and a kiss as they met for the second time since the boy has been under arrest, and then were together for half an hour.

"I visited Jim as a father and not as a lawyer," Bishop Maxon said when he left the room. "We didn't talk about his present difficulties—we had many other things to talk about."

The bishop repeated his conviction that his son is innocent.

"Jim told me he did not kill David Paynter," he said. "I believe him."

PUTS 1928 CANAL BOARD AUTO BILL AT SUM OF $243,272

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup yesterday charged in an amended petition for a duces tecum subpœna for the records of the Central Auto Service company that the sanitary district trustees during 1928 spent $243,272 for automobile hire and maintenance. The prosecutor is asking Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle of the Criminal court for permission to seize the so-called whooper records of the automobile company. The records are now impounded in the federal courts.

The money was spent either for upkeep, gas and oil for the district owned cars or for cab hire, it is charged. In his petition Northup says the trustees spent an average of $380 per day for automobile hire for the first 26 days of 1928. As many as fifteen automobiles were hired at once for periods of from 12 to 24 hours, it is claimed. Legal arguments on the petition will be made tomorrow.

INTERPRET LAW TO FIX DATE OF TAX DELINQUENCY

Will Be 30 Days After Last Bill Is Out.

The delinquency date on 1928 tax bills will be automatically fixed at thirty days after the last of the tax bills are out. This was announced yesterday by County Treasurer Harding after a conference with his attorney, George W. Lennon. All tax bills unpaid thirty days after the last bill has been mailed will be subject to a penalty of 1 per cent a month.

The legal tax delinquency date for 1928 bills should have been May 1, 1929. The last session of the legislature removed the enormous tax penalty burden that would have fallen on property owners by providing that no penalty be assessed until thirty days after the bills are mailed. A similar bill to solve the same problem on 1929 bills is to be introduced at the proposed special session of the legislature.

Calls Language Clear.

"The language of the statute is clear," Mr. Harding said. "It does not mean thirty days after a bill has been mailed to a particular taxpayer, but broadly includes every tax bill. If some bills are to be sent out earlier those receiving them will enjoy a few days' grace over many other taxpayers.

"It is my opinion that the date fixed will be July 1. I do not believe that all bills can be out before June 1. This date would give local governments money as the $74,000,000 fund raised by the Strawn citizens' committee is exhausted.

"It has been predicted that the bills may be out by May 15. I sincerely hope so. I shall exert every effort in my office to make this possible. In this event the penalty date would be fixed as June 15. The penalty date has been left off the 1928 bills. It will be inclosed in an envelope with the bills when it is determined."

Last Book to Clerk.

The board of review yesterday officially completed its share of work on the reassessment when books for the last townships, Stickney, Wheeling, Worth, and Thornton were turned over to County Clerk Sweitzer. The turning over of the books was a formal matter as the board finished its work Tuesday night.

The task of reassessing and reviewing the 1,300,000 parcels of property in Cook county occupied one year, six months and thirteen days. The expense of the work on the county corporate fund was set at $7,000,000 by J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert. The estimate includes the actual cost of the staff and supplies and also interest charges of approximately $50,000 a day to local governmental bodies because of the delay in collection of taxes.

Illinois Man Leaps to Death from High Silo

Oglesby, Ill., April 23.—(AP)—Emil Conti, 32, leaped to death today from the top of a 100 foot high silo.

OFFICIALS OF COUNTY WARNED TO KEEP IN TEN MONTH BUDGET

President Cermak of the county board yesterday warned department heads that they must live within the ten months' pay budget for the fiscal year of 1930. All heads summoned to the meeting were represented, with the exception of County Treasurer Harding and Circuit Court Clerk Wallace. These officials and State's Attorney Swanson, the board of assessors, and the board of review are now operating on the old budget.

Mr. Swanson declared: "I have some forty assistants, all of them college graduates, with salaries from $200 to $250 a month. I don't see how we can expect these men to work twelve months for ten months' pay. I don't see how the office can function efficiently. But if I must I will live within the appropriation. I can resign."

Representatives of the boards of review and assessors stated that they will begin slashing May 1. Coroner Bundesen is the only official who has lived fully within the new budget.

LAPSED WAR RISK POLICIES ARE HELD VALID

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Two $10,000 verdicts against the government were awarded by juries in Federal court today to a world war veteran and the widow of another, who had sued to recover the face amount of war risk insurance policies on which premium payments had been allowed to lapse after the veterans had been incapacitated by illness.

The cases were said to be the first brought to trial of several hundred begun in various parts of the country.

17 PLEAD GUILTY TO LIQUOR STAMP PLOT; SENTENCED

U. S. Judge Imposes Jail Terms and Fines.

Seventeen of twenty-four defendants in a national whisky strip stamp conspiracy case pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Wham and received sentences totaling five years in jail and fines totaling $15,000.

The syndicate, including the Acme Bottling works and the Ogden Bottling company of Chicago, was alleged to have operated throughout the country, manufacturing and distributing millions of counterfeit revenue stamps for bootlegging purposes.

Eleven Chicagoans Sentenced.

The Chicagoans sentenced are Harry Dennison, two months in jail and a $500 fine; Louis Bernstein, four months and $500; Al Balkin, $250 fine; Morris H. Goldman, four months and $500; Manuel Moshiek, Robert Goldman and David G. Kohn, one month each; Carl Stricker, four months and $250; Henry Cohen, four months and $500; Samuel Freeman and Ben Bender, one month and $500. Probation was recommended for Robert Goldman and Kohn by Assistant United States Attorney Eugene A. Tappey.

Three officials of a New York bottling compay also pleaded guilty. They were sentenced as follows: John J. Garibaldi of New York, alleged leader of the conspiracy, eight months in jail and a $5,000 fine; John Matteo, eight months and $2,500; Americo Friscia, eight months and $2,500.

Three Others Plead Guilty.

The three others who pleaded guilty and were sentenced are Dan Flynn of Rock Island, $1,000 fine; Samuel Holzman of Milwaukee, four months in jail and $500, and Fred A. Blust Sr. of Milwaukee, four months and $1,000. Probation was recommended for Holzman and Blust.

Four of the defendants were dismissed and two, Richard Burke and Harry Losen, have never been apprehended. The case of Borris Lipkin of Peoria was continued on his refusal to plead guilty.

RUM SUSPECT WINS ACQUITTAL ON CHARGE HE SLEW DRY AGENT

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 23.—(AP)—George W. Moore, alleged bootlegger, was acquitted by a jury in the Criminal court here today on a charge of second degree murder growing out of the slaying of Robert K. Moncure, prohibition agent, during a raid on Moore's home on Jan. 18 last. The jury deliberated only 25 minutes.

Testimony of an eyewitness that federal prohibition officers raiding the Moore home, had called out: "Shoot him, shoot him!" as they forcefully entered the house, was given today. Moore was charged with killing Moncure, who with Franklin R. Patterson was shot to death allegedly by Moore during the raid. Two other prohibition agents escaped uninjured.

The defense, adding the element of self-defense to that of defense of home and property, yesterday introduced testimony that on one occasion two prohibition agents, one of them Moncure, had threatened Moore with a warning that they were coming to his house with loaded guns.

"Never Lose the Key to Your Hope Chest"

Beatrice Fairfax

WIVES write so frequently to me asking what is the secret of keeping romance in marriage.

The secret of the successful wife is simply this—she has never thrown away the key to her hope chest.

It may be only a bureau drawer or a box, but the successful wife retains the idea of the trousseau hope chest—she keeps herself dainty and feminine every day of her life.

A wife must believe in her own femininity, must FEEL dainty and womanly—before she can impress others.

The surest way to build up this faith in oneself is to wear enchantingly colored underthings and negligées. Then you, yourself, will feel exquisitely feminine, and this joyous confidence of charm will inevitably impress others. Confidence is contagious.

Some wives hesitate to wear these lovely underthings, sheer hosiery, every day—think they cannot afford them, feeling that frequent washing will lessen their charm, shorten their life.

But such fear is needless, for if you use Lux they will stay colorful, beautiful as new, surprisingly long. Lux is made to preserve the vibrant life of color, the shimmering beauty of dainty fabrics. Anything safe in clear water alone is just as safe in Lux.

318 FELONS DIED NEEDLESSLY, FIRE CHIEF SAYS

Prisoners Yell Threats at Ohio Warden.

BULLETIN.

Columbus, O. April 24.—(AP)—A threatened disturbance was quickly averted by guards at Ohio penitentiary early this morning after a group of prisoners working on the night shift in the prison coal house deserted their posts. The prisoners, at first reported in a defiant mood, returned quietly to their jobs as soon as the guards approached them.

Columbus, O., April 23. — (AP) — Charges that prison officials could have saved all of the 318 prisoners who died in the Ohio penitentiary fire Monday night and an admission from Warden Preston E. Thomas that no general fire precautions are taken at the institution were read into the record of the board of inquiry today.

A. E. Nice, Columbus fire chief, declared that all the victims could have been saved if they had been released from their cells as soon as the fire was discovered. He told the board that there must have been undue delay, because the first alarm came from a box outside the prison walls.

Warden Thomas, recalled to the witness stand after Nice finished his testimony, was questioned in detail as to what precautions were taken against fire and why he went outside the prison walls to prevent escapes when a serious situation prevailed inside.

Explains His Policies.

He replied that he did not provide general fire protection at the prison because Columbus fire companies can reach there in 2 minutes and that he did not go to the scene of the fire because he had given orders and expected them to be carried out.

The warden also blamed the state for overcrowding the prison to almost twice its capacity.

The day was marked by another scare at the prison, which caused the number of guards and troopers to be augmented. Several thousand prisoners in the idle house and 600 Negro convicts in the dormitories created a disturbance, but were quieted without serious violence.

Prison routine was returning to normal. One hundred and forty men were transferred to other state institutions to relieve overcrowded conditions and within a day or so the convicts will resume work in the prison factories.

Dead Delivered to Kindred.

At the improvised morgue in the state fair grounds horticultural building, where long rows of caskets were stretched out on wooden benches, relatives of the fire victims called to receive their bodies.

For the first time since the holocaust Warden Thomas ventured into the prison yard. He walked over to the deputies' office and then started across to the chapel, where hundreds of cellmates of the dead men were installed in temporary quarters.

Jeers and cries of derision greeted him. Thomas watched the prisoners for a moment, then continued his walk across the yard. Guards were sent to quiet the jeering men.

DECISION ON POSTAL SITE FOR CHICAGO IS DUE THIS WEEK

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—A decision on the question of whether Chicago is to have its new postoffice being built over the railroad tracks near the Van Buren street postal station rather than on the Marshall Field site is expected the latter part of this week.

Treasury officials stated today that a letter had been received from Graham Anderson, Probst & White, Chicago architects, stating that studies of a proposed air rights postoffice are about completed.

It is understood that these studies will show that the plans already completed for a building on the site purchased some years ago can be utilized, with few alterations, at the Van Buren street site.

Postoffice officials estimate that by use of an air rights building over the railroad tracks it would be possible to save a quarter of a million dollars annually in main transportation charges.

REVIVE WORKER DECLARED DEAD AFTER CAVE-IN

Roscoe Johnson, 28 years old, 6230 South Park avenue, a calker for the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, was resuscitated by an inhalator squad last night after he had been buried for 20 minutes beneath several tons of earth in a ditch at Lincoln avenue and Roscoe street. Johnson was working at the bottom of the 16 foot hole when the walls collapsed.

Earl Smith, 10547 Sawyer avenue, a fellow workman, rescued Johnson with the aid of passersby and carried him to a nearby drug store where a physician pronounced him dead. Inhalator squad No. 3, under Lieut. Eugene Canning, worked over him for a half hour, however, and revived him. He was taken to the Montrose hospital, where an examination revealed that several ribs were fractured.

WILLIAM ["KLONDIKE"] O'DONNELL, boss of the O'Donnell clan and brother of Myles. He served one term in Leavenworth for a booze robbery.

FRANK RIO, alias Cline, gunman and bodyguard for Capone. He served a year in the Philadelphia penitentiary with Capone for gun toting.

JAMES ["FUR"] SAMMONS, once sentenced to death for murder. Served twenty years of a life sentence, only to be sent to federal prison for 18 months for a booze robbery.

DANNY STANTON, south side bootlegger, named in many murders but convicted of none. Recently joined Capone gang and is said to have been doing Capone's bidding in labor union matters.

Mr. Loesch, Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the commission, and Chief of Detectives John Stege discussed the problem in Commissioner Russell's office.

Commissioner Russell said he would cooperate in harassing the "public enemies" in every way possible and that a "hoodlum squad" would probably be formed and charged with hunting these twenty-eight men and arresting them whenever they appear on the streets. Copies of Mr. Loesch's recommendations were sent to Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle of the Criminal court, Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, State's Attorney Swanson, United States Attorney Johnson, and Sheriff Traeger.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

START EXTORTION TRIAL DESPITE PLEA OF ACCUSER

Business Man Wishes to Drop Charges.

Jacob Gidwitz, president of the Langdon Corrugated Box company, 2435 North Rockwell street, asked yesterday that he be allowed to drop the prosecution to be started against Thomas Cregan, business agent of the Machinery, Local Movers and Riggers union, local 136. He denied he had been threatened by Cregan or any of his friends, but said that his family and he himself thought it best for him not to testify against the labor agent.

However, Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Bellows said that Gidwitz will have to be a witness against Cregan regardless of personal desires. If Gidwitz refuses to testify when called as a state's witness, the judge will be asked to call him as a court's witness and make him tell his story of the alleged $1,000 extortion, the prosecutor said.

Start Selection of Jury.

Attorney Benedict J. Short, representing Cregan, insisted that the prosecutor make it plain that neither his client or any of his friends had in any way communicated with Gidwitz.

Despite the attitude of Gidwitz, selection of a jury was started, and it is hoped that the taking of testimony will open today. Four jurors were sworn in yesterday in Judge Phillip Finnegan's court.

Demanded $1,000, Claim.

Cregan was arrested last fall as he was about to take a $1,000 bribe, according to the state's charge. Gidwitz was moving his box factory from 22d street to the present Rockwell street location when Cregan appeared and wanted to know by what authority he was moving machinery without the aid at least of men from his union, the state claims. Gidwitz replied, so it is charged, that it was his own employés doing the job and that he did not need to consult the union and would not do so.

Cregan, the prosecution claims, then instigated a strike among the trades working on the new box factory. He told Gidwitz that it would cost $1,000 "to straighten out the situation," according to authorities. The manufacturer went to the Association of Commerce and was sent to Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office. A trap was arranged for Cregan, authorities said, and he was arrested.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Victor Watkins and James Madison, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge D. J. Normoyle.

Ernest Tolbert, attempt to commit burglary, sentenced to 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary by Judge Otto Kerner.

TRADE TOURISTS WATCH OIL MAKE A POOR MAN RICH

See Well Brought In at Oklahoma City.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 23.—[Special.]—Standing on the outskirts of the capital of Oklahoma today, Chicago's business men, touring the southwest, saw a poor man raised in a few minutes to wealth. Oil, the source of the millionaire fortunes of this state, wrote the story of success. When he arose this morning Farmer J. W. Dunn was only the possessor of ten acres of ground, which he purchased two years ago for $2,500. At the moment this patch of ground is now bringing him an estimated $2,200 per day.

See Final Preparation.

Oklahoma City's chamber of commerce today's host to the thirty-five Chicago business men who are on a two weeks' trade junket in this region, provided the thrill for the visitors. Detraining from their special, the Chicagoans were driven swiftly through the business district to the city oil field. Dotting this expanse are 196 wells—197 now—identified by steel derricks, 124 feet high, and each located in the center of a ten acre tract.

Through this tangle and bustle the party was driven to a derrick, surrounded by a group of men and women. Farmer Dunn and his three sons and two daughters stood to one side, in silent anxiety.

The drilling had been completed and the "uncapping" was delayed for the Chicago party. Seeking places of protection against a possible spattering, the visitors watched last minute preparations. Finally the derrick attendants scattered from the mouth of the pipe and a subdued murmur, "here she goes," swept through the crowd. The valve was released and a thick stream of muddy water poured from the pipe three feet into the air. The valve was applied again to allow momentum to gather, and the crowd shuffled uneasily.

Suggest Well Exhibit.

Again the drillers scattered, the valve was twirled, and with a low roar a spouting geyser of gas and oil shot from the pipe, gathering force until it plumed almost 150 feet in the air, far above the derrick top.

Geologists estimated the twenty-four hour initial flow to average 8,500 barrels. Of this, Mr. Dunn will receive a little less than one-eighth royalty, the remainder going to the company which sank the well.

CHINA BOY SCOUTS RIOT AT REVIEW; 3 KILLED, 30 HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 23.—Three Chinese Boy Scouts were killed, ten seriously wounded and twenty received minor injuries in Nanking today as a result of serious fighting between scout delegations from Shantung and Hupeh provinces attending a national review under the auspices of the Nationalist government.

The fight developed as a result of a dispute which occurred during the distribution of prizes. One hundred and twenty-five companies, made up of several thousand scouts from all parts of the country, participated in the review, but only 300 participated in the fight, which, however, was most serious, as it required military forces in order to settle it.

President Chiang Kai-shek addressed the scouts and said that their nation-wide development of physical culture assures that the future generation of Chinese will be physically superior to the present and past generations.

Newsboy Who Wed U. S. Heiress Gets Canada Job

TORONTO, Ont., April 23.—(AP)—Alfred Cecil Durban, the erstwhile English newsboy who married an American heiress and then came to Canada in quest of a job to support her, has found the job.

He arrived here today with his bride, the former Miss Vivienne Huntington, daughter of the late Charles Pratt Huntington, New York architect. A Toronto electric fixture company decided it could use the young Englishman's services.

LIFER FREED AT JOLIET; DEATH IS EXPECTED DAILY

John Anderson, 29 years old, who for 12 years has been serving a life sentence for murder, will leave Joliet penitentiary today. Gov. Emmerson yesterday signed a commutation of sentence on the certification of Dr. E. J. Chmelik, prison physican, that Anderson would die within the next few days of tuberculosis.

Anderson shot and killed Edward Eggert, owner of a saloon at 1932 West 63d street, during a holdup in 1918, when Anderson was only 17 years old. His brother, Dennis, who participated in the robbery, was tried and convicted and died on the gallows a few months later. As he went to his death, he advised John to plead guilty to escape the noose.

CENSUS TAKING GIVES BRIDEWELL INMATES A REST

A hearty reception was accorded Theodore Bayes when he called at the House of Correction yesterday to enumerate the 2,000 inmates for the federal census. Census enumerators are not always kindly received elsewhere, but it was a big day at the Bridewell, for it meant a respite from the brick pile.

Most of the prisoners were found to be nonresidents of Chicago and few of them were found to be foreign born, although the majority of them spoke English. The usual questions relative to the employment situation were omitted by Mr. Bayes in recording the prisoners.

RECTOR WHO WED CATHOLIC PUTS LOVE ABOVE ALL

Defends His Marriage at Church Trial.

guilty of no misdemeanor. I feel that I have done no wrong.

"My wife may be a Roman Catholic, sirs," he said. "I did not marry her because she was a Roman Catholic, but in spite of it."

Turning to Attorney Stricklett, the rector then denied the latter's charge that he had signed a pledge not to marry Miss Rogers without resigning his order "with a mental reservation."

"I signed the paper under protest," he said. "I said it was unfair. I signed it knowing that the standing committee had no canonical right to ask me to do so, and confident that it could be rescinded after my ordination, which it was, and as long as it was not rescinded, I kept the vow and did not marry my sweetheart."

The Rev. Theodore S. Will of Ashland, secretary of the standing committee, Mr. Velasco said, had done "all he could to dissuade me from marrying Miss Rogers, and even told me that I should sin against the Holy Ghost by doing so. I told him, gentlemen, that I would marry the woman I loved, and that I did not see why doing so was incompatible with my orders."

Pledge Presented Him.

The day before his ordination, when Miss Rogers and other friends from Maryland had come to see him ordained in Lexington, he was told of the written pledge he must sign. "My friends had come from near and far," he said. "My former fellow parishioners had sent me a silver communicant service, and here I was presented with this instrument. My fiancée said, 'Let us think about it,' so we drove to Franklin, talking it over.

"I decided to sign it, because I knew, as I say, I could take steps to have it rescinded. Furthermore—how dared the standing committee say to what extent my wife could be helpful or a hindrance to me? How dared they say what she should believe? She loves Jesus Christ just as fervently as I do. I signed it, gentlemen, because I knew I was driven into a corner, that I had my back against the wall. And I told Bishop Abbott 'If I do anything to jeopardize my ministry you need not ask for my resignation,' and I still hold to that."

Signed Pledge Rescinded.

"Later the paper was rescinded and, if it is still in existence, it is unfair," he said. "My wife and I went to an Episcopalian minister in Baltimore and he refused to marry us. We went to another and by that time, although he was willing, she had had a change of heart.

"I felt by then that I had been badly treated by my own church, and I was worked up to such a point that I cared not a whit what I did. I went to a telephone, called a Catholic minister, and he said he would marry us. I was married before God and before men, though not before my church."

"I want to clear up this point," he continued, turning to face the courtroom as a whole. "In the event that children are born of this marriage, I shall bring them up, not as the Roman Catholic church wishes them brought up, but as my wife wishes them brought up. And I believe that my wife, in recognition of the dignity of my position, will spare me the humiliation of bringing them up Roman Catholics. But I owe her the privilege of deciding. And if she does decide they should be brought in that faith, I shall give up my priesthood.

Resents Humiliation.

"It's a resentful fact, sirs, that the early months of my mariage should have been dragged through the mud, when you men have married happily without knowing the humiliation I have known."

He told then of receiving word, on returning to his parish, from Bishop Abbott asking him to resign. He spoke of his discharge by Bishop Abbott which followed that, and "I did speak loudly when Bishop Abbott came. But when I realized that he had met with my parishioners and that they were railroading me out of my parish, I tell you, sir, I did not smile. I will never smile at that. It was not hard. It was criminal."

The Rev. Theodore S. Will, rector of the Calvary church of Ashland and secretary of the standing committee, was the prosecution's first witness. He took the stand after Mr. Velasco's long statement was ended:

He told of a meeting of the committee Sept. 6, 1929, in Trinity church, Covington, when the committee agreed that Mr. Velasco "had led a sober and Godly life," deserving their consent for his ordination, "on the one condition that he first give a written resignation of his orders to Bishop Abbott to become effective in the event he married a member of the Roman Catholic church."

At a meeting on Oct. 9, in Newport, he testified, it was voted, "at the request of the bishop, the record of the proviso to the consent to the ordination of Rev. J. A. Velasco be expunged from the minutes, the proviso being retained."

The Rev. James D. Gibson, presiding officer of the standing committee, injected an element of mystery in the case when he testified that a letter from Bishop Abbott which inclosed the written pledge Mr. Velasco had signed was missing.

Presbyterian Report Presents Final Plan for Organic Union of Several Church Groups

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Final plans for organic union of several members of the Presbyterian family of churches will be recommended at the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. when it meets on May 29 in Cincinnati. This was announced yesterday by Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, Chicago, moderator of the church. Dr. McAfee stated that more progress toward Presbyterian unity had taken place in the last year than in his 40 years of ministerial life.

Last May, in his speech of acceptance as moderator of the general assembly at St. Paul, Dr. McAfee diverted attention of the assembly from fundamentalist-modernist discussion centering about the control of the Princeton theological seminary by hurling a challenge of church unity at the commissioners. Unity instead of controversy filled the program, and churchmen say the result is that Presbyterian bodies of many names are bending every effort toward eventual union of Presbyterians, Methodists, Episcopalians, and others.

Ask Action on Union.

The Presbyterian department of church coöperation and union, of which Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, president of Princeton seminary, is head, presented its report yesterday to Moderator McAfee. The report asks that the Cincinnati general assembly name a commission with power to negotiate complete union with similar commissions of the Dutch Reformed church, the United Presbyterian church and other members of the Presbyterian denominational family.

The Dutch Reformed church has a communicant membership of 160,000, the United Presbyterian, 241,000, and the Northern Presbyterian, more than 2,000,000.

In addition to the department's recommendation for immediate Presbyterian unity, feelers were extended in the direction of the Methodists and Episcopalians. The formal report speaks of a conference with representatives of the Methodist Episcopal church in February at Philadelphia that laid plans for more extended conversations in June.

Tell of Conference.

The report announced that a commission with delegations of Episcopalians, Presbyterians and Methodists will meet at Atlantic City on June 11 and 12 and make further study of Christian morality, looking ultimately toward organic union. This conference, churchmen say, follows the ideas of the late Bishop Charles H. Brent of the Episcopal church. The Presbyterian report points, however, that "The Episcopal committee is not making an approach on the basis of either doctrine or polity."

"Rather," the report reads, "it seeks conference and a hope for agreement with reference to sociological questions, particularly those dealing with the family, temperance, and racial problems, as well as a clearer understanding what is the wisest relationship of church and state."

Dean F. C. Grant of the Western Theological seminary, Evanston, an Episcopalian institution, yesterday stated that the Presbyterian commission's report on marriage, divorce and remarriage will greatly aid the Episcopalian commission on the study of the whole problem of divorce. Dean Grant is a member of the commission.

Church unity and the divorce problem are two of the leading questions to be discussed at the Lambeth conference of Angelican (Episcopal) bishops from all over the world to be held this summer in London. The late primate of the American Episcopal church, Bishop Anderson of Chicago, was consulted by the Archbishop of Canterbury in the preparation of the program. Pronouncements by the bishops on unity and marriage problems are expected by churchmen to articulate Episcopal opinion in a way that will either clear the decks for definite attack on the problems or else let the church sail away on a lonely sectarian course.

The present Presbytery report considers European Protestantism and says that it is between two forces and looks to a united American Protestantism for aid and inspiration.

Describes Two Forces.

The two forces listed by the report are: First, "an invigorated, politically powerful and aggressive Roman Catholic church" and, second, "the rising tide of atheistic bolshevism."

"The first is not put forward in any spirit of antagonism or fear," the report says as it goes on to cite Roman Catholic advance in social, political, scientific and literary fields.

The report says that the settlement of "the Roman question has strengthened the pontificate," but asks what effect "the Italian recognition of Catholic canon law" will have on Waldensians, who are the first Protestants, and other Protestant groups in Latin countries.

"The notice just received from the Waldensian paper, 'Echo des Vallees,' that it has been temporarily suspended, is somewhat disturbing," says the report, and says that "nowhere in the world is Protestantism united in such a way as to aid Italian brethren."

THE CONFERENCE ENDS.

As an engagement binding the great sea powers of the world—save Germany, temporarily hors concours—to limit their naval building and maintenance, the treaty just signed at the palace of St. James will be given the careful analysis and scrutiny of all the governments concerned. Whether it is adopted as signed must depend upon that process. In our own country, and we trust in all countries involved, it will be received with the sympathy for its high purposes which will go a long way toward, if it does not insure, adoption. In the United States, which will make the greatest concessions under its terms, there is every disposition to waive objections which are not compelled by serious considerations of national welfare. The most determined advocate of American naval strength cherishes the ideal of world peace and is anxious to avoid inordinate expenditure and provocative conditions of armament. There is no difference among Americans upon these objectives. There are serious differences as to the methods and means by which these objectives may be attained.

At this stage, meanwhile, the American people may pause to reflect upon the essential aspects of the situation which the negotiation and signing of the treaty by its distinguished delegates, with the guidance and approval of the President, presents to the world. It is to be hoped, but, we think, with not much confidence, that the full significance of the American contribution to this situation will be recognized elsewhere than in America.

The most significant and by far the most important aspect of this situation is that under this treaty, as under that of Washington, the United States testifies to its will to peace and good will among nations, not by words merely but by the most substantial sacrifices of potential power. The United States is able, in other words, to build and maintain that "incomparably greatest navy" which Woodrow Wilson suggested might be the object of our policy. At Washington the United States abruptly resigned such a policy, and at London in 1930 its representatives have proposed that American sea power, in those very elements in which we are most able to outbuild any other nation, be further limited. The cessation of capital ship building and the substantial concession on cruisers, to say nothing of the considerable and, we think, very challengeable concessions to Japan, represent such a sacrifice of obtainable power as ought to quiet any fears of American naval policy as may sincerely exist among the other chief naval powers.

We do not think these fears are sincere. The United States has given too many proofs of its self-restraint, of its persistent will to peace, and the London negotiations, following the unprecedented initiative of the Washington treaty, should in common decency silence any further pretense of concern over American naval purposes. We are not inclined to expect that it will, but that is less important than that the American people shall not permit themselves to be deceived, and thereby induced either into making improper concessions of national interest or into failing to make energetic provisions for developing the national defense within the framework of international agreement which they may adopt.

If the treaty of London is approved by the senate and by the signatory governments, the naval force which it defines for us should be energetically brought into being. The treaty, as Mr. MacDonald remarks, is not a finality. It fixes conditions for five years. After the Washington treaty was signed our naval program was interrupted even as to categories the treaty left unlimited. The other signatories continued to build and the result was that our naval position was rapidly lowered and the balance of our fleet destroyed. This balance should be re-created by the building of necessary ships. It is essential to military efficiency. It is essential to the defense of our increasing responsibilities.

Serious objections to the terms of the treaty will have consideration in congress and out. It is to be hoped discussion will inform and energize American opinion, not merely on the terms of the treaty, which does not reach the vital issues of our naval policy, but also upon these vital issues. Out of such discussion should come a clearer perception of the relation of sea power to the welfare of the American people, present and future, and through that perception such a sound and foresighted policy as has made Great Britain the greatest sea power of history and keeps it the greatest today.

OUR ONE WAY TIME.

Time in our small world goes on in one direction, but two way time, says Dr. G. N. Lewis, may be required to explain things now studied by the modern scientist. Time goes one way for us because our world of energy is a one way world. From the sun streams all the power that our world has. From the sun comes the energy of coal, of winds, of life, even of the earth's rotation. Our experience is set to the one way mechanism of our world. We know no other way; and time, a pattern of our experience, is one way, too.

Time is a pattern of experience, says the modern scientist. It is a form of reference and of relativity between events, and when we find events that need a two way time, a two way time will be. In the inner theories of the new atom, in the recent studies of the flow of energy from stars, in Millikan's researches with the so-called cosmic rays—the birth cries, as he calls them, of new matter—time may be reversible. It is a strange insanity to our imagination, but it may be true.

The world swings on, and Lindbergh and his Anne fly in fifteen hours from one coast to the other. The young man came across again, in key with his great reputation, and time was refined a little more by our mechanical invention. It was one way time. If Lindbergh tried to fly across by two way time there might be some confusion.

Time, and space, too, are abstractions that we may have to change as the world grows older. The old forms of simple time and space, objective, absolute, unchanging in their definitions, are giving way before our new experience. A new world is with us. No wise men will claim to know its secret.

THE VERY SAD CASE OF MR. HEFLIN.

Senator Heflin of Alabama not infrequently takes his fellow Conscript Fathers into the confidence of his sorrows and the tragedies of his soul, but he never was before such a complete waterspout of grief as when he explained how it came about that he went out of the Democratic party on his ear. Mr. Heflin bolted Al Smith as he would Sathanas himself, but he thought that when the Hoover minded Jeffersonians returned to their senses he would be measured for a new halo. Instead of that he was dumped out on his ear and refused a place on the Democratic ticket for renomination to the senate.

Mr. Heflin gave the secret of this outrage to the senate. When the brethren of the Alabama committee gathered to consider Mr. Heflin's case they came heavily hipped. Word of this spread around and the federal prohibition authorities tried to help Mr. Heflin by raiding the committeemen's rooms and headquarters, but before they could get the proper papers in shape the avid dry Alabamians were soused to the gills and nothing could be done with them. They had passed out of all control. They went back upon the leader of their principles and the champion of their hopes. Mr. Heflin says they were so drunk they did not recognize virtue when they saw it and they took the great and good man by the seat of his pants and threw him out in the alley. If they could only have remained sober long enough to have done justice to their great prohibitionist there would have been no great scandal in getting drunk afterwards, but Mr. Heflin rightfully thinks that even an Alabama prohibitionist ought to stay sober long enough to indorse an outstanding dry career.

TEN DOLLARS FOR A GOODMAN SEASON.

Five years of operation have given to the Goodman theater Chicago's affectionate regard. Though other shows may be produced more brilliantly, now and then, though other actors may be better known, the Goodman is the Goodman, and Chicagoans would greatly miss its going. It is a gracious place within sound almost of the breakers of Lake Michigan. It is casual and intimate and friendly. No other theater in our knowledge can approach it in the beauty of the house and the light and loveliness of stage settings, and the shows that come and go there, at a dollar and a half a ticket, rarely can be seen in any other place.

Galsworthy, Rolland, Ibsen, Chiarelli, Shudraka, Gogol, Pirandello, Sheridan, Capek, Shakespeare, O'Casey, often in their rarer phays, and many others from the world and from Chicago are given here from week to week. Those who tire of the push and pressures of the commercial stage, the high prices and pumped up prestige enjoy visits to the Goodman. They can drop in there for a pleasant afternoon or evening as at no other place.

New York has her guild, Chicago has her Goodman. Though more experiment and more modern methods in direction might be welcome, though production more versatile and costly and more actors highly paid could make the Goodman a world center for the theater, the Goodman now is charming. To go further in these fields requires money. No house in town can so consistently be depended on for a high grade show. To do more, help must be obtained.

The Goodman drive for 10,000 subscriptions for the season 1930-31 opens this week. Eight shows for $10 or $14 are offered. They are worth more by far in enjoyment. They are worth buying. Ten thousand of them will put the Goodman on its civic feet. The Goodman has done well, help will make it even better.

Editorial of the Day

THE MOTOR SLEEPING CAR.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

One hundred years and a few days after the first covered wagon started west from St. Louis the first sleeper bus departed in the same direction. The bus arrived at St. Louis from Kansas City at 8 a. m. Tuesday and started back at 11:30 p. m.

As the Pullman coach differs from the covered wagon, so does this vehicle, with its twenty-six seats, which may be converted into the same number of berths, its hot and cold running water, reading lights, its provisions for serving breakfast, and various other fittings never dreamed of by the pioneers who traveled the Oregon trail. It is one of two sleeper buses which will maintain regular schedules between these points.

People troubled by insomnia may not find the Alsacia and the appropriately named Morpheus all that is to be desired. Although the highways are not burdened with traffic in the small hours of the night, there is a possibility that some belated motorist tooting his horn will drive sleep away. The screeching brakes of some passing car might have the same effect. But it must be remembered that the railroads do not guarantee a sound sleep when they sell a Pullman ticket. A locomotive whistle is not exactly a cure for sleeplessness. Assuming that the air filled cushions and mattresses on which the bus passengers repose are puncture proof and capable of withstanding the strains to which they will be subjected by corpulent persons, the service should prove satisfactory. Of course, each of the buses has a porter.

The sleeper bus is one of the most surprising results of the good roads movement. Had it been tested on Missouri roads five or ten years ago it would have been a failure.

PREVENTION IN DENTISTRY.

THE children's bureau of the U. S. department of labor have joined the new movement of prevention in dentistry. They have issued a booklet written by Dr. P. R. Howe entitled "Your Children's Teeth." Dr. Howe advises that protection of the teeth of babies begin with feeding the expectant mother.

This is based on the well known fact that at the moment of birth a child's first set of teeth are fully formed, so far as the body of the tooth is concerned and the makings of some of the permanent teeth are being assembled. To supply the mother with enough lime for her baby's teeth she should be given a diet which contains at least a pint of milk and at least one serving of cereal. To supply the anti-scorbutic principle so necessary for tooth formation she should eat fresh fruit, such as oranges, lemons, and grapefruit; green leafy vegetables, such as spinach, cabbage, and lettuce; a raw vegetable or canned tomato and at least one other.

The mother of a breast-fed baby should eat these same foods that she may supply her baby's tooth needs. The very first supplementary food a baby should have is fruit juice. This should be started within the first month of life. A bottle-fed baby is in especial need of fruit juice in fair quantity. Dr. Howe advises that at the end of the first month a baby take one teaspoon of orange juice twice a day. It should be diluted with an equal quantity of water. By the third month the quantity should be increased to one tablespoonful. One-half tablespoon of tomato juice can be substituted for one teaspoon of orange juice. Two tablespoons of tomato juice can be given daily in the third month. In the sixth month he would add one teaspoon of strained green vegetables daily. This is increased to three tablespoonfuls by the ninth month. In the tenth month he allows strained apple sauce or prune pulp once a day. In the eleventh month two tablespoons of baked potato.

Older children are in even greater need of tooth-protecting foods. Dr. Howe advises two daily servings of fruit, one fresh, and at least two vegetables besides potato. Raw cabbage, lettuce, celery, and carrots, finely chopped, are allowed all children who have all their baby teeth. Fresh or canned tomatoes should be given frequently.

SCURVY AND THE TEETH.

Dr. A. R. R. writes: That scurvy is a cause of poor tooth development and early decay strikes me favorably. Long before there are skin manifestations of scurvy there must be harmful processes at work. In the aged, too, scurvy in a mild form is doing its evil work. Chapped hands, cracked lips, winter itch, and such things no doubt are due to mild scurvy. I fancy, too, that mild scurvy may render one more susceptible to contagions of many kinds, but of course proof of this will long remain elusive. You speak of a pint of orange juice a day as the dosage to prevent scurvy, and of the value of tomatoes, all fresh fruits, and vegetables, and the value of lime and lemons on sailing vessels in the old days of long cruises. I wonder what the daily dosage was per man per day? It was singularly efficient, whatever it was, and that suggests the thought that maybe limes and lemons have some quality for that purpose that other fruits lack. I have some evidence that a half lemon every other day will cure up cracks in the skin of the knuckles within a week's time.

REPLY.

Experimenters are now establishing how much of this vitamin is present in different foods. It has been proved that the amount required to protect the teeth is about twice as much as is required by the shipping laws in order to protect sailors against old fashioned scurvy.

IT IS REASONABLY SAFE.

Mrs. L. E. W. writes: Do any bad effects follow the taking of mineral oil for constipation for an extended time?

REPLY.

This practice is reasonably unobjectionable.

WHITE SPOTS ON EYELIDS.

M. Y. writes: What causes a crust formation on the eyelids? Also, numerous white spots under the lids?

REPLY.

These spots suggest herpes or cold sores of the eyes. The crust formation along the edge is genefally caused by eyestrain. Either calls for examination of the eyes.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ANYHOW IT'S WORTH TRYING.

Inventors are out with a scheme to put a coin-in-the-slot machine over your door bell. They say that will keep you from running to the door only to find it's a book agent or a man who wants to sell you a new patent mop. Also said to be a sure preventive for bond salesmen, your Uncle Willie when he's drunk, and spruce young men selling magazines to work their way through college.

Well, it might work, and then again the very people we didn't want to see would probably have a nickel or a dime to work the coin machine and take a punch at the bell. There's some people we wouldn't want to see even if they dropped a hundred dollars into our patent door bell protector.

And then there's others that we'd like to have drop in if they didn't have a two cent postage stamp in their jeans. The book agents and the magazine salesmen would probably devise a way of beating the game the second day we had our door bell protector installed anyhow, and the guy that was trying to get us to the door to tell us the house was on fire wouldn't have a coin to put in the slot and couldn't find one within three blocks. And if bond salesmen couldn't push our bell they'd crawl up the fire escape and come through the window. Again we ask you, what's the use?

ARIZONA HIGHROADS.

They find their path through canyons
  And hold the safer way,
They bridge the coulees over
  Where fountained sunbeams play.

They skirt the deep abysses,
  The jagged rocks below,
To hold safe courses free and far
  Where you may want to go.

The shimmering peak, the arid plain,
  Where giant cactus stands,
And boulders bear the heat of day
  In lurid desert lands.

These roads run on and on and on,
  To speed the passing time,
They draw the sting from desert hours,
  Run perfect as a rhyme.

A song of triumph over space,
  The victory of men,
Where once the rutted wagon groaned
  They bear you home again.

CLARENCE P. MILLIGAN.

PRIME MINISTER RAMSAY MacDONALD in his farewell to Secretary Stimson and the American delegates to the naval parley said: "Other people will come after us and finish our work." From what we hear from the senate in Washington, Ramsay, there's a lot of people coming after you and Mr. Stimson right now, and the way they howl they're liable to finish your work all right. And how!

AGAIN as we wade through the daily newspapers and the magazines and read columns and columns and columns of stuff about prohibition, we are more than ever convinced that the 18th amendment should be repealed so that we the people could have something else to worry about.

WE'D REALLY LIKE TO KNOW.

Reports from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth say the prison now has a total of 5,201 prisoners and that the normal capacity is 1,640. And before something happens in Leavenworth of the same horrible kind that happened at Ohio State, will the eminent gentlemen and ladies who have passed the drastic laws that are jamming the prisons from the top of the attic to the cellar kindly arrange for Bigger and Better jails? When society takes hold of a man and keeps him in custody, is it not a duty, to a certain extent at least, to prevent the unfortunate individual so held from being burned alive or strangled to death? At the risk of being called a sickly sentimentalist, we humbly ask this question.

A POLICEMAN up in Evanston assigned last Sunday to guard the cloakroom in a church from which overcoats and wraps had been stolen during services reported that he had kept the thieves from the coatroom, but that they had stolen his new hat. Not of great account from a news standpoint, you may say, gentle reader, but, ah! Then you do not live in Evanston. Up there the newspapers will call this a crime wave.

AND STILL ANOTHER MAN has confessed to the murder of the motion picture director, William Desmond Taylor, eight years ago. So many people have confessed to that murder that the murder must have been committed at a ball park on the opening game of the season with every spectator there firing at least six shots. Still that doesn't quite account for the full number of confessions.

PROTEUS.

(For Maj. George P. Lee, U. S. A., 1885-1919.)

Rifles cracked in the Pine Ridge campaign,
Mindanao was hell;
The flag and the fever were yellow and high
In San Mateo's spell.
And there were bodies to tread upon
Ere even Tientsin fell—
Wars, and Aeneas' wanderings . . .
(Zeus, 'tis a rather far cry
From ports of the world to a lamp-lit room
Where my kids happy lie
In the arms of a grizzled giant-man
Whilst he hums them a lullaby.)

THE SOLICITOR.

Lagniappe.

THE HOUSE has passed the bill to make "The Star-Spangled Banner" the national anthem and sent it to the senate. Now there ought to be an amendment to the constitution putting everybody in jail for sixty days who insists on singing it, "Oh la la la la la, la la la la la la."

THE ALWAYS informative (AP) cables from London regarding the burning question of the hour as to who will be the next poet laureate of England say one of the candidates is "Rudyard Kipling, one of the most widely known British writers." Oh, thanks a heap! But what, (AP), has this now Mr. Kipling written?

AND NOW HARVARD thinks it's discovered another new planet on the other side of Neptune. That's the trouble; discovering one new planet is all right, but it starts everybody doing it and we haven't even got the first planet named yet. Wait, astronomers, wait till we get a name for that first baby.

REVISED VERSION OF MOHAMMED AND THE MOUNTAIN

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 24, 1865.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Surgeon General J. H. Barnes announced that Secretary of State Seward is doing as well as could be expected considering the nature of the wounds inflicted by the assassin. Fred Seward is somewhat stronger.

PHILADELPHIA.—The illustrious dead has been lying in state all day. Independence hall has been literally thronged with thousands who could gain admission to gaze upon the pale, placid features of the great, good Abraham Lincoln. The doors were thrown open at 6 o'clock in the morning, but long before that hour the streets were filled with one living mass of humanity, men, women, and children. Lines were formed miles long. Many women and children fainted in the crush at the hall. Soldiers with fixed bayonets strove to drive back the crowd, but the effort was vain.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The agreement between Gen. Sherman and Gen. Joseph Johnston entered into on April 18 near Durham's station, N. C., has been disapproved and Gen. Grant and Gen. Sheridan are on their way to Sherman's camp. All sorts of rumors were current after Sherman's dispatch carrier reached the city and before Secretary Stanton's bulletin was published. None was prepared for the astounding terms in Sherman's agreement. The sorrow was all the greater because of the unlimited confidence Sherman has of late inspired.

NEW YORK.—Circumstances which have come to the knowledge of the government render it nearly certain that the horse of Booth, the assassin, fell on him on April 14 and broke one of his legs.

NEW YORK.—The Suffolk, Va., correspondent of the Herald states that rebel officers who arrived there report that Jeff Davis received the news of Lee's surrender at Danville, and that he immediately left for Greensboro. He said that if he were pushed he would go to Texas, where he was sure he could rally an army.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 24, 1900.

OTTAWA.—The government was questioned in the house respecting the three men arrested for an attempt to blow up the Welland canal at Thorold with dynamite. The occurrence has revived stories concerning the existence of a Fenian organization with branches at Chicago, Buffalo, and New York which planned for destruction of public works in Canada.

WASHINGTON.—The senate will vote on the Quay case tomorrow and the chances seem to be strongly against his admission to the senate on the certificate of Pennsylvania's governor. It is admitted the vote will be close. Senator Spooner of Wisconsin, a close friend of Quay, said the result would hinge upon one vote.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Cape Town confirms the reports of a few days ago that the only hope for the relief of Mafeking lies in Gen. Frederick Carrington, and that no relief force of any kind is operating from the south. British relief forces sent to aid Dalgety's garrison at Wepener are reported within eight miles of the place, with the Boers preparing to withdraw.

CHICAGO.—B. M. Shafter has been relieved from command as captain of the Illinois Naval militia and Albert A. Michelson, professor of physics in the University of Chicago, has been appointed to succeed him.

CHICAGO.—A surprise was sprung in pugilistic circles when Tom Hanton, president of the Fort Dearborn Athletic club, announced that he had severed his connection with that institution to become president of the Tattersall Athletic association. Other Tattersall officers are Harry Franks, secretary and treasurer, and L. M. Houseman, director and matchmaker.

HELENA, Mont.—Hiram Johnson of California has evidently made a clean sweep of Montana in the Republican preferential primaries for president held today. Early returns indicate he is leading four or five to one his closest competitor, Gen. Leonard Wood. Hoover and Lowden ran third and fourth.

THE TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOLS; A CRITICISM.

Chicago, April 17.—On several occasions recently articles have appeared in the papers relative to the work being done for underprivileged boys by philanthropic organizations and individuals. These organizations and individuals deserve the highest commendation, but it would seem that if their efforts were directed toward the removal of the cause of underprivilege rather than ameliorating its effects, more lasting good would be accomplished.

The reason boys are underprivileged is because the board of education has failed in its duty. The boys should have been taught trades. When the technical high schools were established in Chicago parents were assured that their boys would be taught trades, yet up to the present not a single boy has been taught a trade in these schools. Strange as it may seem, even today parents of boys of high school age send them to the technical high schools so that they may learn trades! Truly the gullibility of the parents is exceeded only by the incompetence of the school authorities. The educational program of these schools is noted for its aimlessness. Students drift from fad to fancy and back again. There is a welter of fads in a sea of expense littered with the flotsam and jetsam of fool publicity stunts. There is no sustained instruction in solid basic effects and, as a result, ninety per cent of the male students are graduated into blind alley occupations.

Students get a smattering of anything and everything in these schools except the very subjects the schools were established to teach. They are regular serendipity shops. There are classes in folk dancing and classes in saxophone playing. Students tinker with radios and model airplanes. Valuable time is squandered in dramatics, athletics and other side issues. A magazine of national circulation gave wide publicity to a picture taken in one of our schools showing girl students assembling an airplane engine. One would expect that if girl students could dismount and reassemble an airplane engine, male students could install our water meters, partly man and later take over the maintenance division of the school system and the technical branches of the municipality, thus economizing for the benefit of the taxpayers. A recent addition to the curriculum is a course in World Affairs. World Affairs forsooth! Citizens ask for bread for their boys and are given tripe. Taxpayers are in despair and their despair is either conveniently ignored or looked upon with cynical indifference. No wonder the Japanese delegation that came to study our school system turned away in disgust.

Taxpayers demand instruction for their boys in plumbing, electricity, steamfitting, bricklaying and other crafts in the building trades to the prosperity of which they have contributed so much. The labor unions in the building trades have restricted apprenticeship in most of the crafts to boys who are sons of journeymen and contractors and at the same time prohibited the board of education from giving instructions in these crafts, thus closing the gates of opportunity to deserving boys.

To urge thousands of citizens to invest their life savings and mortgage their future incomes in the building industry and at the same time prohibit their boys from learning the trades employed in that industry is a brazen effrontery and a cruel injustice. It shows how far we have strayed from our ancient guarantees of equal rights and equal opportunities.

If the state interprets "the essential right to an education" as its authority to give instruction in professional subjects, law, medicine, engineering, with how much more reason should the great industrial city of Chicago interpret "the essential right to an education" as its authority to give instruction in trades? The son of a plumber, for instance, may study engineering at the state university at the taxpayers' expense. There is none to say him nay. But how different with the son of a poor laborer. He is possessed with the worthy ambition to do a little better than his father, but the professional schools are beyond his reach. He wants to be a plumber. The avenue to his goal, paved by the hard earned money of taxpayers like his parents, is barred by an accident of birth. Something to think about in a democracy! Multiply this instance by thousands and you have conditions in this city today. The boys who are not sons of journeymen in the building trades are treated as pariahs or helots. They become our underprivileged boys, victims of a reactionary labor policy acquiesced in by compliant educational authorities. The plight of the great mass of toil-worn and overworn taxpayers evokes no sympathy from these puppets of a militant organized minority.

There is nothing to be expected from the educational system as at present constituted. The board of education is a hissing and a byword. It is the handmaid of reaction. JOHN LANE.

ROOSEVELT ON THE INTERNATIONAL COURTS.

Jacksonville, Ill., April 18.—You say Ruth Hanna McCormick says the "only substitute for the world court is The Hague court." Theodore Roosevelt, on page 108 of his book, "America and the World War," says: "The simple fact is that none of these existing treaties and no function of The Hague court hitherto planned and exercised have exerted or could exert the very smallest influence in maintaining peace when great conflicting international passions are aroused and great conflicting national interests are at stake."

And on page 133 he urges a world court, similar to the one now in operation, and adds: "It would be a long step toward at least minimizing and restricting the area and extent of possible warfare."

Aldermen Eye Provisions in Draft of Car Franchise Covering Building of Extensions

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Chief aldermanic interest in the proposed transportation franchise appears to center in the promised extensions and improvements. Engineers are preparing the list of improvements which will form an exhibit to the ordinance and will be submitted later.

The text of the indeterminate franchise ordinance, which the council local transportation committee will begin reading today with Attorney Walter L. Fisher, contains the pledge for additions and betterments. The aldermen are interested in ascertaining whether the city has gained as strong a guarantee of the extensions as it is practicable to obtain.

What Ordinance Says.

On this point the ordinance says: "During the first ten years immediately following the effective date of the ordinance the company agrees, out of moneys derived from the sale of its securities upon terms approved by the transit commission and lawfully issued for the purpose, to construct or acquire such extensions and additions with such additional equipment and facilities as are described in Exhibit B hereto attached and made a part thereof and within the time specified therein; and the company further agrees that it will take all steps which it may lawfully take to procure such moneys in the manner and for the purposes aforesaid."

Long Period of Building.

These obligations are subject to delays from causes beyond the control of the new company. There is also this further proviso:

"All additions or extensions which depend for effective operation on the use of city owned subway structures provided for in Section 9 of this ordinance shall be completed by the time said subways are constructed and equipped for such operation."

After the initial 10 year construction period the company pledges to build other extensions and additions as authorized by the city council, which the transit commission shall decide will serve public convenience and necessity.

But the first 10 years is the period which concerns the aldermen. The aldermen want to know what all of the ordinance language regarding extensions means, but hesitate to make comments for publication because of fear they may later be shown to be uninformed.

Ask Cause of Delay.

The aldermen understand that it would be useless to build miles of "L" extensions, putting more cars on the tracks which could not get through the loop until subways are constructed. The subways are to be built by the city, but equipped by the company.

But they do not understand why the "L" extensions and addition should not be completed when the subway is finished. They cannot see any reason why completion of extensions should be delayed until the company provides subway equipment, which the company might delay providing. It was pointed out by one alderman yesterday that the ordinance does not require the company expeditiously or diligently to equip the subways after the city constructs them. He also asserted that the ordinance in one place says that the company shall "provide" and in another place "furnish" the equipment without saying that the company shall install the equipment and do it within a reasonable time. He added that the ordinance pledges the city to construct subways with "due diligence" but does not require any diligence on the part of the company in equipping them and then makes the completion of certain extensions dependent upon the equipment of the subways for operation.

Cites Case of Buses.

"It may be argued," said one alderman, "that the company for its own interests would equip subways as soon as possible, but the officials might get into a wrangle on the kind of equipment and cause unnecessary delay. Take the surface lines or buses. Busby bought buses and Blair would not let them be put into operation; yet on the buses inaugurated last week the company is actually making profits."

Another alderman commented sarcastically on the clause that the company promised to "take all steps which it may lawfully take" to get the $200,000,000 for extensions and improvements.

"I'm no lawyer," he said, "and what does 'steps' in law mean. I looked up that word 'step' in my dictionary last night and it said that a step is 'an act of progressive terrestial motion,' and then went on to explain the difference between a step in a walk, canter, trot, gallop, and pace.

Want Progress Forward.

"Another meaning," continued the alderman as he read from a pencil notation, "was 'the distance that one passes over with a single movement of the foot in any direction.' That is not satisfactory to me. I don't want a movement backward, sidewise, or diagonally, but I want the movement straight toward the point."

"But did you not find other meanings for the word step," was asked.

"Yes; the fifth meaning in my dictionary," said the alderman, "reads, 'a single action or proceeding regarded as leading to something'; but that is an acquired meaning or an applied use of the word. Even at that the company should make a more definite promise. If the company intends to take all action and proceedings likely to get the money, why not say so, instead of taking steps, and only legal ones at that?

"Maybe 'steps' is all right, but my dictionary says that a step is only half a stride for a biped, and I want a complete motion ahead for these extensions. If all the guarantee we need for extensions are 'steps,' why was not the city obligated to take only steps to construct a subway?"

Delicious—New!

. . . a luscious cereal with a "VEGETABLE EFFECT"

An entirely new creation by HEINZ of "57" fame.

See how it wins your children.

You, Mother, know the good that vegetables do in regulating the important health-habits of children. But you are aware also of the difficulty of getting such good foods consumed in right amounts, so this new delicious cereal should be a boon to you. The reason is this:

HEINZ of "57" fame has included a fine cereal-cellulose in flavory, crunchy, oven-toasted flakes of rice—a natural food-substance which is part of rice itself.

NOT BRAN

No, this food-substance isn't bran. It is soft and fluffy—not harsh or irritant in any way. Its volume, however, is increased four to six times by the absorption of moisture after eating, forming the mildest, gentlest, natural bulk and roughage that Science has developed.

HEINZ with more than 60 years' experience in food making, spent 8 years in perfecting it.

Proof is easy, Mother. Let a children's jury try these alluring Rice Flakes on the point of flavor only. If they sustain our claims to the most delicious of all cereal flavors, let your children have this luscious food twice daily for one week to start the regulating "vegetable effect"; once daily thereafter to continue it.

IN ONE FOOD ONLY

Here is a food the benefits of which you need not "take on faith". In a few days children's health-habits are definitely improved. And you need do no urging—think what that means to you! If you are not satisfied in every way, your grocer will refund the purchase price.

Of course HEINZ Rice Flakes contain all the usual energizing food value of rice. Don't serve in place of vegetables but to supplement them.

Remember that HEINZ patents control this extraordinary feature, in the daintiest of all flaked foods. No other cereal of any type supplies it. To get it for your children, therefore, you must insist on HEINZ Rice Flakes, for no other cereal will answer if you want to make this test.

Just as good for grown-ups as for children.

ASK YOUR PHYSICIAN

He will tell you of the importance of the effects of cereal-cellulose in the absorption of moisture and the resulting bulk.

OPEN WORLD BANK MAY 5 TO CLEAN UP GERMAN DEBT

Raise First Loan Before French Quit Rhine.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, April 23.—The organization of the Bank for International Settlements was completed today when the directorate decided that the issue of the shares of stock of the organization will take place on the eighth day after the ratification of the Young plan by Great Britain and Italy. On that day the new scheme of handing German reparations becomes officially operative.

It is expected that the bank will formally open for business about May 5, and will immediately proceed to issue $300,000,000 of bonds, the first section of the international reparations loan. The bank intends to float this amount before the end of May, and before the French complete the evacuation of the Rhineland in June.

Cuts Cost of Handling Debt.

The superbank will cost about one-third as much to administer as the Seymour Parker Gilbert organization which has been handling the Dawes plan and the reparations commission in Paris which consumed $1,500,000 annually.

The salaries of the principal officers which were fixed today were kept secret, but neither President Gates W. McGarrah, Deputy President Leon Fraser nor General Manager Pierre Quesnay will receive nearly as much as the 150,000 marks [$45,700] Mr. Gilbert received as agent general for reparations under the Dawes plan.

Other Officials Chosen.

The reports on the international organization of the bank were approved, Dr. Hulze, reichsbank official, was made head of the banking department and assistant general manager; Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium was appointed head of the investment section; a Japanese was made head of the exchange department, and it was decided that M. Quesnay would handle the liaison department with the central banks until permanent officials are chosen.

The directors decided to enter into trust agreements with Hungary, Bulgaria, and Czecho-Slovakia to handle the collection of their reparations.

Mr. McGarrah was empowered to open banking accounts whenever he pleases if the local and central banks do not object.

Mr. McGarrah and Mr. Fraser are proceeding to Paris tomorrow and will return here when the bank opens. In the meantime Mr. McGarrah is empowered to start negotiations without delay relative to the mobilization of the first reparation loan.

County Lists First Highway Projects of 1930 Program

BY HAL FOUST.

Within a week or ten days, Cook county will advertise for bids on twenty-one road projects that will cost approximately $1,396,000. This announcement was made yesterday by County Highway Superintendent Quinlan.

The contracts will initiate Cook county's $8,000,000 road program for 1930. The first batch of contracts will call for 7.81 miles of pavement forty feet wide or wider, 5.33 miles of twenty foot pavement, 3.37 miles of widening from two lanes to four lanes or more, a bridge and a railway grade separation.

With the exceptions of the bridge and the grade separation, Maj. Quinlan said he hoped to have all these first projects completed by July 1. Other contracts are to be let, he added, at the rate of eight or ten miles of pavement every two weeks.

Some of the projects are being financed jointly by the county and villages. The following is a list of the first contracts to be let, showing the highway to be improved, the village participating when there is one, the mileage and the width:

Harlem avenue, River Forest, Central to Chicago avenue, .5 of a mile; forty-two feet.

Busse highway, Miner road to Lundergan road, 1.09 miles; twenty feet.

Burnham avenue, Burnham, 143d street to C. & C. T. railroad; .5 of a mile; forty feet.

Ashland avenue, 119th to 115th street; .5 of a mile; twenty feet. The state is to add another twenty feet to the width.

Cicero avenue, Cicero, 26th to 22d street; .43 of a mile; fifty feet.

Dixie highway, Flossmoor road to Holbrook road; .33 of a mile; widening.

Southwest highway, 111th street to Ridgeland road; 2.12 miles; forty feet.

Oakton street, Rand road to Milwaukee avenue; 1.93 miles; twenty feet.

Lincoln avenue, state and Tessville participating; Devon avenue to Jarvis street; 1.8 miles; fifty-six feet.

Burnham avenue, Calumet City, 154th to Dalton avenue; .78 of a mile; forty feet.

Crawford avenue, Niles Center, Simpson road to Harrison road; .51 of a mile; forty feet.

Dixie highway, Homewood, 183d street to I. C. railroad; .48 of a mile; forty-eight feet.

Devon avenue, Carpenter road to Ionia road; .55 of a mile; twenty feet.

95th street, Hamlin to California avenue; 1.24 miles; widening to forty feet.

26th street, 1st avenue to Des Plaines avenue; .5 of a mile; forty feet.

Hillside avenue, connection with Northwest highway; .3 of a mile; twenty feet.

Railroad avenue, Evanston, McCormick road to Isabella street; 1 mile; fifty-one feet.

Railroad avenue, Kenilworth, through the village; 1 mile; forty feet.

Waukegan road, grade separation bridge over North Western railroad tracks near Techny.

Maj. Quinlan said he hoped to have all the 1930 road building program under contract by July 15 in time for construction before next winter.

lowed upon yesterday's announcement that political prisoners in Allpore jail had gone on a hunger strike in protest against treatment by jail officials. Reports spread today that one of the prisoners, Mayor J. M. Sen Gupta of Calcutta, arrested in connection with the civil disobedience campaign, was dead.

Demand to See Body.

Thousands gathered outside the jail, shouting, "Show us even his body." The jail officials refused to permit an independent witness to enter the jail and later they issued a communique stating that the prisoners had not been injured and that Sen Gupta and the others were alive.

The affray at Fenny resulted from the arrest at the railway station of four men who were believed members of the Chittagong raiding party. After being taken from the train, they drew revolvers and wounded Jatindranath Roy, in charge of the Fenny police, two constables, and two railway workers, and escaped.

At Karachi several persons were sent to the hospital after they had eaten contraband salt gathered from creeks. The health officer declared the salt was impregnated with ferrous oxide (an iron compound) and was unfit for human consumption. He ordered that it be destroyed.

HALE PREPARING TO OPEN SENATE FIRE ON TREATY

Finds High Navy Officials Oppose Its Provisions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—The opening gun in the senate battle over ratification of the London naval agreement will be fired by Chairman Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the naval affairs committee within the next few days, it was disclosed tonight.

In his first onslaught against the treaty the Maine senator will charge that its ratification will not give the United States parity in naval ships with Great Britain during the life of the pact. He also will attack the treaty on the ground that its provisions allowing Japan an increase in cruiser, submarine, and destroyer ratio will weaken the American naval position in the far east and lower this country's prestige in the orient.

Gathering ammunition today for his attack on the treaty, the Maine senator found many of the highest ranking admirals of the navy hostile to the pact, principally because of limitations placed on American construction of 8 inch gun cruisers and the increase in the Japanese ratios.

Plans Committee Inquiry.

The Hale attack on the senate floor will be followed within a few days by the opening of three congressional committee investigations of various phases of the naval treaty. Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], chairman of the house naval committee, has announced that Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and a number of admirals will be called before his committee next week.

While the naval committee is operating, Chairman William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] of the senate foreign relations committee will be conducting an investigation of the treaty provisions. He has indicated his desire that several points be cleared up. It is assumed that Mr. Borah, with Senators David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] and Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority floor leader, will lead the drive for ratification.

Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, one of the naval advisers to the American naval delegation until illness forced his return to the United States, will be one of the first witnesses.

Delays Building Plans.

It was learned today that adoption of the treaty will not only make necessary a change in certain phases of American naval policy but will also necessitate a change in war plans in the Pacific.

Further analysis of the treaty discloses that if the United States maintains a navy up to the maximum treaty tonnage limits in ships under the treaty age limits it will be necessary to complete and build 471,100 tons of new vessels by Dec. 31, 1936. The cost of this program would be just over 900 million dollars. Two 8 inch gun cruisers included in the 471,000 cannot be completed under the treaty until 1937 and 1938. This tonnage would include 69,000 tons of aircraft carriers, 150,000 tons of 8 inch gun cruisers, some now building, 73,000 tons of 6 inch gun cruisers not yet authorized, 150,000 tons of destroyers, none authorized, and 29,700 tons of submarines, some building. This program includes all ships now authorized and building.

As a result of a treaty provision which permits destroyers laid down prior to 1921 to be replaced as obsolete after twelve years' service, all American destroyers could be replaced by 1934 as by that date all will have reached the treaty age limit. All destroyers laid down after 1921 will not reach the age limit until they reach the age of sixteen years.

FIGHT INVASION OF ALIEN SHIPS IN HAVANA TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—Condemnation of foreign shipping lines entering such trade routes as that between New York and Havana was voted today by the third national conference on the merchant marine held under the auspices of the shipping board.

The menace of foreign line competition in direct trade routes of the United States was brought up by Franklin D. Mooney, president of the Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Steamship lines.

Saying the British Cunard line had put trans-Atlantic liners in the New York-Havana trade in the winter months, Mr. Mooney commented: "That line must think it sees in the New York-Havana trade the opportunity of temporarily employing its surplus north Atlantic tonnage during the profitable months of the winter season, leaving the American established lines to care for the trade during the unremunerative months of the year."

Such unfair competition can have no other effect than to break down the American service, Mr. Mooney asserted.

HYDE DESCRIBES FARM PROBLEMS IN CHICAGO TALK

Secretary Says Surplus Is Chief Difficulty.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The ills of agriculture and the interest of the government in effecting their cure were detailed by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde last night before business leaders of Chicago. The secretary spoke at a banquet given for him by the Commercial club at the Blackstone hotel.

"The troubles of agriculture, if I were to sum them into one word, are due to overproduction," he said. "Throughout its history the policy of the nation has been one of overexpansin in lands. We have awakened suddenly to find ourselves with too large an agricultural plant, and a policy of limitation is the only logical solution."

Outlines Economic Changes.

Secretary Hyde outlined the economic changes of recent years, all of which he declared had militated against the farmer. The development of inventions and their practical application have made the American farmer the most efficient in the world, he said, and this in turn has caused overproduction and resultant lowered prices for his products.

"Surplus is the nub of the agricultural situation," he said.

Casting aside the theory that farmers owed it to the world to raise all that their lands and methods could produce, the secretary declared that the government should aid farmers in reducing the nation's "farm plant." Millions of acres of land are submarginal, he said, while a million and a half farmers now have an average income of less than $800 a year.

"The only effective means of effecting this change is through organization of farmers, and that," Mr. Hyde said, "is the real purpose behind the efforts of the federal farm board—to limit production of farm products as labor and industry have limited the supply of their output by organizing.

Tells Farm Board's Aim.

"The farm board has not, as many seem to believe, had any intention of 'pegging' prices of farm products. There's nothing of that sort in the bill.

"The board merely set out to safeguard a falling comodity price level which threatened agriculture and the nation's entire financial structure. In following trade and economists' figures on world wheat supply and demand, the farm board made a mistake because it had to make good its promises to farmers."

The decline in world demand for grains could not have been foreseen by the board, Mr. Hyde declared. He added his belief that "one President and one farm board" had saved a critical situation for agriculture in recent months.

Stationery Co. Wins Right to Sue on 'Trust' Charges

The federal Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday ruled that Sidney-Morris & Co., loop stationers, has cause for action against the National Association of Stationers, Office Outfitters and Manufacturers, 101 South Wells street. The court reversed a ruling of Judge Carpenter of the federal District court who had dismissed a $750,000 damage suit and a petition for injunctive relief from alleged restraint of trade.

The complaint, filed more than two years ago by Sidney-Morris & Co., charged that the members of the association, manufacturers, jobbers and retailers of office supplies and equipment, refused to sell materials to the company because the latter declined to become a member and would not comply with the resale list prices compiled by the association. Eighteen overt acts of intimidation with intent to injure the plaintiff's business were alleged.

The opinion of the appeals court sets forth that Judge Carpenter sustained a demurrer to the petition for an injunction and dismissed the suit for alleged failure to show cause of action. The plaintiff's allegations are sufficient ground for action and are traceable to two provisions of the Clayton anti-trust act, the higher court's opinion says.

The complaint named 104 defendants, members of the association. Fletcher B. Gibbs was named as general manager. Morris A. and William J. Pancoe own Sidney-Morris & Co.

In 1920 the brothers sought criminal prosecution of the association and in 1924, when the department of justice failed to act, complaints were filed with the federal trade commission. The Pancoes' testimony at hearings in Washington before the commission fixed responsibility for refusal to prosecute under the anti-trust laws upon Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general.

It was charged at these hearings that "luncheon agreements" had been made against the plaintiff concern with the view of keeping up prices, and that school children's furniture and supplies were directly affected.

In 1921 the case was presented to a federal grand jury in Chicago, but no indictments were returned. In 1922 a special state grand jury investigating school scandals was told by the Pancoe brothers that failure to purchase a $500 advertisement in the Republican, a Chicago political weekly, resulted in their getting no more orders from the board of education, although their bids were the lowest received.

STRAWN REVENUE PLAN PLACED IN FORM OF BILLS

Delay Presentation to Seek Accord.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

With a view of getting the local taxing bodies, city, county, schools, and sanitary district, into accord, a delay of a few days was announced last night by Silas H. Strawn, head of the citizens' rescue committee, in placing before Gov. L. L. Emmerson a program of financial relief and budgetary safeguards for Chicago and Cook county as a basis for a special session of the legislature.

The committee held a conference of several hours at which different taxation experts presented their views, and on adjournment Mr. Strawn said in three or four days he would have a definite announcement to make as to a projected program.

Program Nearly Complete.

It developed that a contemplated program has been worked out quite definitely by the committee, and bills have been drafted covering nearly all the subject matter. The main items embrace validation of tax warrants and the completion of investment so that those advancing money will have something to show for it, and the supplemental question of restricting the spending of the money by tax spending agencies when it has been raised.

Authorities on the ways of legislatures have pressed the idea that to accomplish results at Springfield agreement is essential among the Cook county governmental agencies. Now the committee is working out a cooperative support among the various bodies. The avowed aim is to have ready for the governor a compact program embracing means for raising money for the local governments and protective measures to insure that the money will not be tossed to the birdies. It is proposed to have the bills all shipshape and ready for legislative action to have behind them united action from Cook county.

Discuss Changing System.

One question under discussion was that of remodeling the assessment machinery in Cook county. George O. Fairweather, chairman of the joint commission on real estate valuation, has urged that the boards of assessors and of review be abolished and a body be substituted with more localized responsibility.

Gov. Emmerson has pointed out that this item might be better left to the regular session, as it would perhaps involve some political opposition and would overload the call for a special session.

County Treasurer G. F. Harding yesterday declared for a budgetary system in connection with the financial relief program. He likewise spoke strongly against the Fairweather suggestion for abolition of the boards of assessors and of review, and the reorganization of the county tax machinery.

Mrs. Chris Marie Meeker, portrait painter, yesterday won a divorce from Russell C. Meeker, also a painter, before Circuit Judge Lynch. She said that she met her husband in France when she was a model in Paris, living with her parents, Comte and Comtess Gabriel de Saint Victor Jacquemont.

RAID CHARGE AGAINST WEBER IS DISMISSED

Lowell L. Weber, son of William H. Weber, chairman of the board of review, was discharged for lack of prosecution yesterday when arraigned before Judge Alfred O. Erickson, in Chicago avenue court. He was charged with disorderly conduct after a raid conducted on Tuesday night upon an apartment of 210 East Pearson street at the instigation of young Weber's estranged wife, Mrs. Beryl Jackson Weber.

Mrs. Weber had represented to police that "another woman" was in the apartment with Weber, but Weber was found there alone. Divorce proceedings are now pending between the Webers. They were married two years ago after Mrs. Louise Wolf Weber, Weber's former wife, had divorced him, naming the present Mrs. Weber as co-respondent.

BOOTS DURNELL TO THRASH OUT OLD TURF FEUD

Threatens to Bare "Skeletons."

BY FRENCH LANE.

Before the Boots Durnell case is settled there is every possibility that some old turf skeletons will have to be dragged out of the closet and given an airing.

BOOTS DURNELL.

Durnell, noted trainer of thoroughbreds, whose application for a license was tabled in Kentucky last week, hurriedly withdrew a similar application as the Illinois Turf association's license body went into session here yesterday.

The former trainer of the king's horses in Rumania, it was reported, will make his fight for reinstatement in New York where for twenty years—without a ruling against him—he has been unable to obtain racing papers.

Durnell's trouble with the Jockey Club of New York is an old story, according to a narrative related at the Illinois license committee meeting and it dates back to 20 years ago when Durnell was in his prime as a trainer and the late Billy Pinkerton's detective forces policed most of the race courses in the country.

Quarrel Never Made Up.

Durnell and Pinkerton were the warmest of friends. Durnell had trained the famous McChesney on which Pinkerton and his friends had won many large wagers.

But 20 years ago during the meeting at Morris park in New York, which was then the gathering place for the elite in the metropolitan section, Pinkerton and Durnell quarreled. Some say it was over the payment of a wine check. Others say it was over the settlement of a bet. Still others say there was another reason. At any rate the quarrel was never patched up. Pinkerton, so the story goes, using his influence with the Jockey club, was successful in preventing Durnell from being granted a license the following year. A definite ruling against Durnell was not made, it was said, yet season after season his application for a license was tabled.

Kentucky Granted License.

Durnell quit the American turf for Europe. He trained in England and France and later went to Rumania to train the king's horses. He met with success. A half dozen years ago he returned to this country. The ban against him, according to the story, still prevailed in New York. He applied for a license in Kentucky. It was granted after the Jockey club in New York failed to furnish the Kentucky racing commission with the reason for his inability to get a New York license.

Durnell's Kentucky license permitted him to race the horses in his care in Illinois, Maryland, and in all other states except New York. But in the meantime turf leaders in New York are reported to have passed the word along to the Kentucky racing chiefs that if they persisted in granting Durnell a license, Kentucky rulings might not be observed in New York.

Now Durnell threatens to unfold the story of his controversy with the Jockey club of New York. His quarrel with Pinkerton will be retold, his friends who gathered at the Illinois Turf association offices declared late yesterday.

Meeting Is Peaceful.

When Durnell withdrew his application for a license the meeting of the Illinois board became a very peaceful affair. Most of the jockeys and trainers who were banned from the turf in Kentucky last week withdrew their applications in Illinois. Jockeys Andy Anderson and Tommy Luther and Trainer T. M. Botts had their applications denied. The applications of jockeys Newton Barrett, James Mullikan, A. Rodriques, and Gregg White were tabled.

The applications of 40 apprentice riders were held up until their contracts are filed with the Illinois license committee.

KIDS WHO RACE IN RELAYS GET LITTLE REWARD

They Run in the Rain and Few Notice Them.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—This is the week of the Pennsylvania relay carnival at Philadelphia and I assume that Mr. Joe Labrum, the director of public relations at the university, is writing interesting releases for the papers again about a field of some three thousand odd athletes who will face the starters.

Mr. Labrum is fond of large numbers, as befits a director of public relations, and I would not go so far as to suggest that there is a catch in the publicity, although it might be closer to the reality to say that some two thousand odd of the three thousand odd athletes are little, spindly legged lads from the grammar schools around Philadelphia enjoying their first glorious moments of athletic drama in the presence of paying customers.

Most of Them Are Kids.

Of course there will be a lot of college athletes, including some with temporarily famous names, and a stimulating procession of colts from the prep schools, including some whose names will be set in 36 point type across the tops of the sport pages many a time before they finish their athletic careers in college four or five or six years hence. But as I recall these Penn relays, having seen a long succession of them, the majority of the three thousand odd athletes are juveniles, young enough to forget which is the right way of the track sometimes or fall down heroically in the mud like dying football martyrs sometimes for the glory of good old grade 6-B.

They come on to the track in shoals as the traffic managers of the relay carnival run off the long succession of relays in bang-bang succession. A gun pops somewhere off on the rim of the field and away they go, in common two piece summer underwear or old swimming suits with moth holes glaring pink where their hides show through, splashing through the puddles, for the weather is always awful at the relay carnival, and throwing their arms and legs in wild motions.

One trips over the toes of his soggy canvas sneakers — his big brother's sneakers, maybe—and flops in a black puddle, piling up two or three more. They get up, fish their batons out of the muck and dash on again to the place where the next relay awaits them, fidgeting and screaming, "Come own, Butch!" As they hand over the tokens they stagger against the wall or into the infield, limp and floppety, like Fred Stone in his scarecrow number, or dive into the mud again, done up.

Get Little Reward.

Meanwhile another batch of them are falling in on the far side of the track for the next relay, and another gun pops starting another relay race before the announcers get around to saying which team won the last one.

There isn't much reward for these relay athletes. The members of the winning teams get some trifling mementoes to sustain their ambition, but probably the real prize is a clipping from the Philadelphia papers stating that such an such a school boy race was won by the team from the seventh grade of the William Penn public school, and giving the names, but spelling them altogether wrong.

There must be thousands of those newspaper items, years old now, stuffed away in the household catchalls of those rows of red brick flat houses which line so many of the Philadelphia streets with peeping Tom mirrors set at the front windows, so that the inmates may spot the installment collector on the stoop. One sees those peeping Tom things, the original of the periscope, in no other city, although their appeal should be universal.

These young athletes are guilty of no style nor polish. They run all over the track and their little wishbones heave and fall in agony, especially if they are running way behind. But they are amateurs of the purest motives, and one always knows that they are out yonder in the rain—for it

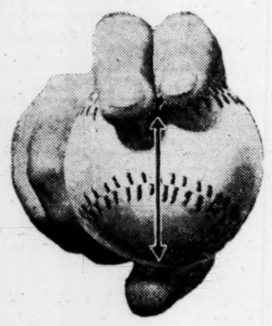
GABBY'S GRIP



This is the way Gabby Hartnett grips the ball before throwing. He explains in the accompanying story.

A Tip to Major League Magnates

[Sports Editor.]

WILLIAM WRIGLEY and Charles Comiskey from time to time have demonstrated they know something about running a big league baseball club.

But doesn't it seem a waste of money for them to send their teams to California or Texas to prepare for the opening of the season? They would get more satisfactory returns, it seems, by picking an antarctic training camp. The players then would come back equipped to battle the rigors of April weather in Chicago.

Rain or cold prevented the Sox from playing four of their first seven home games. The Chicago teams, however, are not alone in their climatic problems. Five of eight games scheduled in the majors yesterday were postponed. One of them, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh, was interrupted in the third inning by a snowstorm.

It apparently takes more than freezing temperature to keep the fans away from Wrigley field. Nearly 40,000 turned out to welcome home the Cubs Tuesday.

This is evidence that the citizenry is becoming more intelligent

Shires Still Is News.

IT seems that the question of whether Art Shires is really a great baseball prospect or merely a highly press agented braggart still is explosive enough to disturb the placidity of the peasantry. Write a flattering line about the Sox first baseman and letters begin tumbling into the office. Many of them agree with your commen', but not a few contain a raucous squawk.

This is a sample: "Mr. Sports Editor—Did you ever see a ball game? Of course not, or you wouldn't rate Art Shires as an outstanding first baseman. Hasn't it ever occurred to you that Donie Bush has a better first baseman sitting on the bench? If Shires didn't chew tobacco nobody ever would have heard of him. What a laugh you give the people who want to be Sox fans, Comiskey is losing followers by the thousands and THE TRIBUNE drops readers proportionately every time you mention that bum. Signed. ——."

Then comes one like this: "Mr. Sports Editor—You're right in tagging Shires as a real comer. He's got the fire and dash the Sox need to make them a rustling ball club. You'll find that he will work 100 per cent for Bush. More power to Shires and the Sox! Signed. ——."

Good News for Fans.

KING LEVINSKY, styled the Pharaoh of the Ghetto by stadium press agents, has been saved to boxing.

Last week it looked like the career of the west side light heavyweight was to end abruptly by a foot ailment. Fearing he might be laid low like Rogers Hornsby, Levinsky sought a foot specialist.

"Doctor, I can't move around with accustomed speed," he explained. "My feet bother me."

It took the specialist only five seconds to diagnose Levinsky's trouble.

"You wear your shoes on the wrong feet," he remarked.

Levinsky, it is reported, has corrected the pedal handicap, and is working at top speed for his bout with Al Keegan at the stadium next Wednesday night.

HARTNETT TELLS HOW HE GRIPS BALL FOR THROW

Holds It with 2 Fingers and Thumb.

This is the fourth lesson Gabby Hartnett has written for boys who desire to become baseball stars. He'll give a personal demonstration on catching at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning at Wrigley field. A FREE TICKET will appear in The Tribune Sports pages Saturday.

BY GABBY HARTNETT.

There is something more to throwing than a strong arm. This has been shown time and again. There have been many outfielders, also many catchers, with powerful wings and yet they failed to build up reputations for themselves as men who had to be respected. The answer is that they never made a study of throwing. Either that or they simply couldn't master the mechanics involved.

The first thing to consider about throwing is the grip on the ball. I hold it with the thumb and the first two fingers. The fingers should be close together. When the ball leaves the hand it begins a back spin caused by releasing the thumb first while the two finger tips serve as a sort of drag. The finger tips should cover the topmost point of the ball as it leaves the hand.

Assures True Flight.

This means a vertical line would run between the two fingers, through the middle of the ball and through the center of the thumb. This way of releasing the ball assures true flight.

I have mentioned before the importance of keeping the body in position to make an unexpected throw and to get a throwing grip on the ball the instant it pops into the glove.

With that much done correctly and a sudden throw necessary care must be observed in avoiding a side arm or half side arm delivery. The arm should be drawn back straight over the shoulder, the two fingers always on the top of the ball, not to either side. When the throwing hand is just about opposite, maybe a bit back of but at least close to the ear, the arm should spring straight out.

Stride Forward Helps.

As the arm shoots out you take a step in the direction in which your throw is to travel. The step can be a long one, just so you retain your balance. The stride forward, properly timed, gets the weight of the body backing up the arm. Try throwing without taking the stride and you will see the difference. Without the stride you won't have the same speed.

In a game a throw to second is called for so suddenly that the pitcher is still in erect position when you draw back your arm for the throw. In that instant before he dodges I pick out his head as a target. Never worry about hitting him. He will look out for himself. Occasionally they forget to duck, but that's their hard luck. If you can shoot the ball through the spot where the pitcher's head was when you take your aim you are fairly sure to get it so close to second that it will be helpful.

FRENCH PRESS ASKS TILDEN BE DISQUALIFIED

PARIS, France, April 23.—(AP)—Disqualification of Bill Tilden because of his match with the professional, Karel Kozeluh, is being demanded of the French Tennis federation by a portion of the French press.

Andre Foulon, general secretary of the federation, declared today, however, that this would not be done.

"Admitting that Tilden broke the rules of amateur tennis in France," he said, "the French Tennis federation would be incompetent to act. It would be up to the International Tennis federation or his own United States Lawn Tennis association.

"You may announce that as far as the French federation is concerned Tilden's entry for the French hard court championship, May 19, is accepted."

SLIDE, HACK, SLIDE! HE DOES

Hack Wilson had to move rapidly to score the Cubs' fifth run in the third inning yesterday. He was on second when Grimm slashed a single to left. Hafey of the Cardinals made an accurate peg to Catcher Jimmy Wilson, so Hack hit the dust and skidded over the plate. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Yanks, Britons to Battle on Soldiers' Field

One of the biggest international track contests in the history of the sport will be held at Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 27. Arrangements were completed yesterday to bring fifty-five of the best athletes of the British empire to meet a team of American champions.

The Association of Commerce and other civic groups coöperated with officials of the National Amateur Athletic union in booking the games for Chicago against the bidding of Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.

The British team will be chosen from the winners in the empire games at Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 16 to 23, in which stars of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, England, and Ireland will compete.

The national amateur championships will be held at Pittsburgh the week previous to the international event, and the winners will make one of the strongest teams the United States ever has assembled.

BERLIN PAPERS WAX SARCASTIC AT MAX'S TOUR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Germany, April 23.—[Special.]—The Berlin press continues its sniping of Max Schmeling's shadow boxing barnstorming tour of Germany.

Utterly disregarding explanatory allegations that Max is bound not to undertake any major bouts before his big fight with Jack Sharkey, they continue to bawl him out in song and story—the same old song and the same old story.

"This ridiculous shadow boxing tour is unworthy of a future world's champion. It isn't popular. It doesn't draw. Why not call it off? Let's see Max fight somebody, somebody who can stand up to him."

Max's latest exhibition, in Frankfort on the Main, is scantily and sarcastically dismissed by the Berlin Zwoelf Uhr Blatt like this:

"On the spot where Max Schmeling was once knocked out in the first round by Gipsy Daniels, he shadow boxed again the other night."

Maroon Tennis Team Plays Indiana at Bloomington

Chicago's tennis squad will open its season Saturday in a Big Ten dual meet with Indiana at Bloomington. Even without George Lott, who last year won the singles title in the conference and with Capt. Bill Calohan took the doubles, the Maroons have a squad that ranks as one of the best in the Big Ten.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

CHANGING BOSSES.

FRIEND Don: Well, Don, although you are not my immediate boss any more and cannot now order me around like you used to do and have me do all that hard work like going to the fights in Florida and to the Kentucky Derby, you and I go along pretty well, so I thought I ought to write you a few lines to wish you well in your promotion, if transfer from the sporting department can be regarded as a promotion.

Once when I was a young fellow, Don, yes, even younger than you are, they wanted to promote me. I was a sporting editor, too, and I was happy and contented, and they wanted to make a city editor out of me. But I didn't want to be promoted and I said so pretty emphatically, more emphatically than the occasion warranted, I guess. Anyway they didn't promote me. They just fired me, that's all. So then I wasn't either sporting editor or city editor. That was another paper, not THE TRIBUNE.

So after that, Don, I just made up my mind that if any bosses ever wanted to promote me again they could promote me whether I wanted to be promoted or not, and that's the best way to get along in this newspaper business and still keep in touch with the pay roll clerk.

Well, Arch, who succeeds you, is a nice fellow and I like him, and I think we'll get along, but I just can't help wondering whether he understands about expense accounts. You were so understanding about them. When I put in $20 for "good will" and the auditing department questioned it, you knew that I had spent $20, or more, for "good will" and that I ought to have it back.

If Arch is agreeable, I'll be leaving for Louisville soon and I don't care to put in "good will" again, since all the argument it caused, but I had thought of "experience." I've never used that one. You'd know what I meant and that I really had the "experience."

I suppose you'll be talking some with Arch about the department and if it comes in all right without your seeming to bring it up, I wish you'd explain to him about my expense accounts and "good will" and "experience" and the like, and that they just mean I've spent more money for the paper than I can get in under hotel, meals, cabs, and miscellaneous,

Mother and Golf.

I will to thee: My walks on spring's inviting days
Along familiar country ways;
My reading in the inglenook
Of many a much-prized, long-loved book;
My porch with all its peaceful hours,
Its quietude, its vines, and flowers—
I am learning golf.

I'll miss with friends the cozy chat,
The contract bridge and all of that,
Of bidding three and doubling four.
They are yours. Alas!
But think how sweet and slim I'll be,
Just like a graceful poplar tree,
When I am through with golf.

This is so sad it makes me weep—
The dreamless hours of morning sleep
I will to thee while I play golf.

Commercializing a Gag.

Dear Harvey: At the museum in Lexington, Va., they have the skeleton of Traveller, Gen. Lee's favorite horse. The colored man who shows you around pulls this line: "Ladies and gentlemen, behold the skeleton of Gen. Lee's great horse Traveller. We used to also have his skeleton when he was a colt, but some one done stole it." And he has made a living out of this wheeze since the civil war. C. A. K.

Schwartz' Hand Broken, Fierro Credited with K. O.

Cincinnati, O., April 23.—(AP)—Corporal Izzy Schwartz, bantamweight, New York, broke a bone in his right hand in his fight with Harry Fierro, Chicago, here tonight, and lost by a technical knockout. Schwartz hurt his hand in the fourth round of their ten round encounter but continued fighting. He was compelled to forfeit the match in the ninth round when he could not continue.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The loss of a five run lead was merely an incident to the Cubs yesterday. An advantage of that size got away from them bit by bit until the eighth brought a deadlock. Then, with their titular class questioned, they popped back in the ninth, tore off three hits, and whipped the Cardinals by 6 to 5 in the second of the series.

Three men figured in the activities that enabled Charley Root to score his first triumph, after the speed baller had gone through a perilous afternoon. The first was Cuyler, who, with one out in the ninth, almost annihilated Haid, the third Cardinal hurler to perform, with a drive that caromed off the young man's ankle into right field. Wilson was unable to assist with anything more than a forceout, but Stephenson slashed a double to left and Hack pulled up at third. Then Capt. Grimm lined a single into center, Hack strolled over the plate, and 10,000 chilly folks went home.

Jar Herman Bell in Third.

The Cubs registered all except their winning tally in the third. Herman Bell was hurling when the round started, but not when it finished. He hurled himself into a jam, and the champs then took advantage of him by twice playing billiards with his glove. When relief was sent to him, four runs already were home and two men still were on the sacks. One of these was pounded over the plate against Lefty Grabowski, after which the north side clouters went into retirement until the ninth.

Root's hurling looked like the real Root was working until Fisher, the ex-Giant, hit a homer with none on in the fourth. It was only the second hit for the Cardinals. They gathered them rapidly in the next round, however, four blows sending two runners home and reducing the Chicagoans' advantage to a pair. Root regained his bearings for a couple of innings, but in the eighth was the victim of Hack Wilson's inability to gauge a stiff cross wind. Two runs and the tie grew from this.

Root Wild at Start.

Root started his work in a way that indicated that he had thoughts of leaving immediately for more comfortable surroundings. He opened by walking Douthit. Adams also profited by Root's wildness. The situation was cleared up considerably when the dangerous Frisch bounced to Beck for a double play. This put Douthit on third and brought up Bottomley. Root took the easiest way. He passed Sunny Jim. Then Hafey was coaxed into a pop foul to Grimm, ending the inning.

The first hit off Root came at the start of the third round. The author was Pitcher Bell, who later paid for being so gay with the Cub star's offerings. Bell was forced by Douthit, who in turn was forced by Adams. This brought back two of the most bothersome customers in the Cards' attack. A pass answered the question of what to do with Frisch. Bottomley sent a long fly to Wilson in center. Then the Cube went to work.

Beck Starts Big Inning.

The entering wedge to five runs in the home third was Beck's single. He was shoved along by Root's sacrifice bunt. English was plunked on the left forearm by a wild pitch. Blair then hit the first pitch to center for a single, Beck racing home. Cuyler drove a whistling hopper to Bell, who reached for it with his glove and deflected it toward first. Bottomley recovered, but Cuyler beat it for a hit.

Bell, who had covered first on Cuyler's drive, then made a grievous error. Instead of going to the center of the diamond to make sure no one would run on him, he rolled the ball toward nobody in particular. Before it was captured English was over the plate with the second run of the inning, Blair was on third, and Kiki on second. Wilson was purposely passed. Stephenson showed that he appreciated such slurs on his hitting ability by bouncing a single off Bell's hand, Blair and Cuyler scoring. This was where Bell expressed a desire to punch the time clock. He did. Grabowski assumed the rôle, and Grimm flicked him for a single that scored Wilson with the fifth run of the chapter.

Cubs' Lead Begins to Melt.

Root's lead was sliced just a bit in the fourth, when Fisher hit the ball into the right field seats for a home run. Then more of the lead went away in the fifth, two scoring. Grabowski started this with a single. Douthit fanned, and Adams hit one safely. Frisch also hit, Grabowski going to the plate. Bottomley popped out, after which Hafey clicked a double down the left field line, Adams scoring. This returned Fisher to a front line position, but instead of passing him Root gave him a diet of curves. He popped to English.

Root was back on the fire in the sixth, but escaped without being singed. With one out, Gelbert walked and Grabowski singled. English saved some embarrassment by racing back into short center and pulling down Douthit's pop. Taylor, who was catching because Hartnett's left leg was sore after being hit the day previous, then brought the round to a halt by picking up a roller in front of the plate and tossing out Adams.

Wilson Cleans in Wind.

The 5 to 5 tie began to accumulate in the eighth on J. Wilson's pop single to right center with one out. The wind carried the ball away from Hack. Watkins batted for Gelbert and forced J. Wilson. High swung for Grabowski and hit a single that had Hack running around aimlessly trying to figure the wind. Martin ran for High and a moment later followed Watkins across the plate on Douthit's double over Hack's head.

Phillies Beat Robins, 16-15; 38 Hits Made

Philadelphia, Pa., April 23.—(AP)—The Phillies and the Brooklyn Robins shattered all of the young baseball season's slugging marks today as Philadelphia gained its second straight victory, 16 to 15, in a game that lasted almost three hours.

The two teams, first one leading, then the other, got 38 hits for their 31 runs, but it took an error to decide the issue. Jake Flowers, Robin second baseman, booted Thompson's grounder with two out in the ninth and let Spotts come home from third. The lead had changed hands on three previous occasions.

Phillies Beat Robins, 16-15; 38 Hits Made

Philadelphia, Pa., April 23.—(AP)—The Phillies and the Brooklyn Robins shattered all of the young baseball season's slugging marks today as Philadelphia gained its second straight victory, 16 to 15, in a game that lasted almost three hours.

The two teams, first one leading, then the other, got 38 hits for their 31 runs, but it took an error to decide the issue. Jake Flowers, Robin second baseman, booted Thompson's grounder with two out in the ninth and let Spotts come home from third. The lead had changed hands on three previous occasions.

SNOW HOLDS UP SOX CAMPAIGN AGAINST INDIANS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., April 23.—Large flakes of bona fide snow this afternoon drifted away the scheduled second game of White Sox-Indians series here and brought the total cancellations for the Sox in nine days of the season to five, a most unusual number.

The forecast holds out little promise of improvement for tomorrow, and it is probable that the first two series of the year scheduled for the Chicagoans and Clevelanders will show a net of one game played in each city. Tomorrow night the club moves to St. Louis for four games and there is hope that there will not be so much snow and cold in Missouri.

Arthur Displays Wounds.

Most of the off day was spent in diagnosing the case of the Great Shires, knocked out yesterday for the first time in his athletic career. C. Arthur spent the morning in an X-ray parlor, and in the afternoon in visiting the apartments of his teammates and the gentlemen of the press. At each stop Arthur displayed his wounds, the while apologizing for the inharmoniqus color scheme effected by wearing pink silk drawers with a green striped shirt.

Shires will be out of the game for at least four days with an inflamed sciatic nerve and a hemorrhage over the right hip. He reported a sleepless night and the "greatest pain of my career."

Manager Donie Bush continues pleased with the behavior of his employés and feels that the aggressiveness he has instilled in the outfit has been amply rewarded. Of the three games the Sox have won out of four played, each victory can be traced to pep as much as sheer talent. Each game has been won by one run and in each at least one run has followed

GALLANT KNIGHT SHOWS SPEED IN DERBY WORKOUT

Louisville, Ky., April 23.—[Special.]—Gallant Knight, the Audley Farm stable's hope for the Kentucky Derby, showed high speed in a work out this morning, when he clicked to the tune of 1:13 3-5 for three quarters.

He was timed the first quarter in :23 3-5; three eighths in :35 3-5; half in :48; five eighth in 1:01; and the three quarters in 1:13 3-5. Nellie Custis was used as pacemaker, but the Derby colt passed her and finished his task in a gallop. Nellie Custis was timed the three quarters in 1:15 4-5.

Elmhurst College Defeats Wheaton Baseball Team

St. Louis Beats Detroit in Game of Wild Pitching

St. Louis, Mo., April 23.—(AP)—Dazz Coffman was wild, but the Tigers could do nothing with his delivery when it meant runs and St. Louis defeated Detroit, 5 to 1, here today. Coffman issued ten bases on balls. Detroit's two pitchers, Herring, who started, and Samuels, his successor, were nearly as wild, giving eight walks.

Manush, with a double and a triple, and Schulte, with a double and two singles, led the Browns' attack.

Banker Prefers Workers Who Take Up Golf

Golf was acclaimed big business and cheered as the link that completed the chain of happiness in other big businesses yesterday at a meeting of the Association of Commerce to mark the installation of Albert R. Gates as dictator of golf.

David R. Forgan of the National City Bank of the Republic presided and pointed out the value of golf to the modern business man. The banker, with a twinkle in his eye and a burr in his voice, was born in the birthplace of golf—St. Andrews. St. Andrew, Scotland's patron saint, is, according to tradition, the game's first expert, he said.

Relates Golf Legends.

"There is a legend," related Mr. Forgan, "that St. Andrew and his brother, St. Peter, were teeing off. Both got excellent drives. St. Andrew's second shot was good, too, but his brother made a phenomenal one and got a hole in 2.

"St. Andrew placed his arm affectionately around his brother and said: 'Now, Peter, let us agree to cut out the miracles and play the game.'"

One of the King Jameses, continued the speaker, was on the course when a runner brought the tidings that an English army was crossing the border. The king finished the game and then lined up his army.

Prefers Golfers in Bank.

"The business man of today," Mr. Forgan added, in a more serious vein, "must work hard to earn the right to play golf, and he must play golf to recreate his bruised mental and physical being to enable him to carry on his business. I would rather pay a man in my bank more money for the same job if he plays golf, because he is better equipped physically, mentally, and morally to do his work."

Alex Pirie, president of the Professional Golfers' association, told of the great business in golf, amounting in investment to some $50,000,000 in the Chicago area alone, with 209 golf clubs. A half dozen golf professionals shared the speakers' table along with captains of finance and merchant princes.

Read Walton, Becker Tells Early Trout Fishermen

BY BOB BECKER.

If early season trout fishermen, the boys who annually go north the first week in May to catch the first fish of the season, will turn to Izaak Walton, the patron saint of angling, they will find explicit advice on how to use worms to catch the bottom feeding trout. Walton in his discourses on methods of angling for the trouts is most interesting to the average trout fisherman. When he talks about fly fishing in his famous book on angling he devotes many pages to this subject. But the famous old English fisherman who always talked of fishing as an "art" did not overlook the method of angling which hundreds of trout fishermen resort to the first week in May. That is, garden hackle on the hook dropped deep for the bottom feeding trout.

Trout Caught with Worm.

Turning over the yellowed pages of our old volume of Walton's Angler we found this passage the other day:

"The trout is usually caught with a worm—or a minnow, which is sometimes called a penk—or, with a fly, viz, either a natural or an artificial fly; concerning which three I will give you some observations and directions."

After listing the different kinds of worms which can be used the master angler continues:

"But for the trout—the dew worm which some also call the lobworm, and the brandling, are the chief; and especially the first for a great trout: and the latter, for a less. But tell you, that what worms soever you fish with, are the better for being well scoured, that is, long kept before they be used." Following his suggestions on how to keep worms for a trout fishing trip Walton gives detailed instructions on baiting with worms, adding naively at the end of the lesson, "you will find it very useful and thank me for it."

Tells of Patterns.

When it comes to Walton's famous discussion of artificial flies wherein he describes the 12 artificial patterns "to angle with on top of the water," the May trout fisherman will be interested especially in the statement which he makes about fishing earlier than March. He says: "In the middle of March, till which times a man should not in honesty catch a trout—or in April, if the weather be dark or a little windy or cloudy—the best fishing is with the palmer-worm."

The annual sportsman's show, sponsored by the Izaak Walton League of America, opened yesterday at the Stevens hotel and will continue until Saturday.

Arlayne Brown, the thirteen year old girl, who is accredited champion woman revolver shooter by the National Rifle association will give an exhibition each afternoon and evening. Another feature of the daily entertainment is trick bait casting done by W. L. Coller. Chief Evergreen Tree, a Pueblo Indian, gives a series of bird imitations.

The league will give a general banquet tomorrow evening in the grand ballroom of the hotel.

Boxers Ready for Fights at Coliseum

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The boxers on Walter George's card in the north hall of the Coliseum tomorrow night wind up their conditioning activities this afternoon. In addition to the six round fight between Jack Kraken of Oslo, Norway, a student at Illinois, and Fred Caldori of Philadelphia, George has lined up several attractive bouts for his first promotion.

Danny Delmont, west side Italian lightweight, meets Jimmy Lundy of Montana in six rounds. The Jimmies have swept the program, for Jimmy Mollette, colored welterweight, and Jimmy Murphy of the northwest side are scheduled; also Jimmy Chase, former Golden Gloves scrapper, will box with Nick Clementi, west side bantamweight.

Barney Ross will attempt to stage a comeback against Mickey Genaro of Connecticut. The clash between Tommy Polacio and Johnny Nasser is another six-rounder. Nasser, one of Bud Taylor's boys, has been substituted for Joey Bosak.

Earl Mastro will get his chance at Fidel La Barba, so Leonard Sacks of the Coliseum announces. Mastro was scheduled originally to fight the Italian featherweight last Monday night, but canceled the bout because of the death of his mother.

After La Barba fights Kid Chocolate in Madison Square Garden May 16 he'll be back in Chicago for a tenrounder with the west side favorite in the first of Jack Dempsey's outdoor cards. The date will be some time in June.

George Blake, manager of Fidel La Barba, will keep his fighter in Chicago for ten days or more. La Barba will continue training at Kid Howard's gymnasium for his battle with Chocolate.

Jimmie Evans of Cleveland, who faces Mexican Tommy Rios in the windup of Jim Mullen's card at White City Monday night, will have plenty to do if he expects to defeat the South Chicagoan. Ted Goodrich, when he met Rios here two weks ago, found that the Mexican wouldn't lead, but was a whale of a counter fighter.

Evans thinks he knows how to settle that kind of business and, according to Mullen, is prepared to do a bit of countering himself.

If Baxter Calmes, the Wichita, Kas., heavyweight, who refuses to sit down in his corner between rounds and is a bit of a grandstander, keeps up these tactics he may steal the show from Rios and Evans. In his two fights here Baxter has shown promise. He carries a right hand that is deadly when it lands.

Jack Thompson, the Negro welterweight contender, who faces Champion Jackie Fields in Detroit May 9, will go ten rounds with his sparring mates tomorrow afternoon at the Arcade gym. When Thompson signed for the title bout he agreed not to engage in any fights in the meanwhile. Believing he needs a hard workout to sharpen his attack, he has hit on this plan. He'll make weight tomorrow morning just as on the day of the fight.

always rains on relay days—running for a little screaming acclaim from the class sitting in the stands, and the glory of old 6-B.

I hope I don't seem to be running down the show they give at the Pennsylvania relay carnival, for it is the most colorful pageant of sport on the calendar, and the more colorful of recent years since the college and prep school teams went in for showy uniforms. It was a happy idea to equip the boys with flannel zipper suits done in their respective college colors, with the cuffs and piping and shoulder straps picked out in bright contrasting shades.

They used to wear common pants and skin them off with some show of embarrassed modesty, hiding behind one another, for there seems to be something indelicate about a young gentleman removing his pants in full view of a crowd, including, perhaps, his girl, even though he has a track suit underneath and intends to put them on again promptly after his race is run.

But a flannel zipper outfit is something quite else. These are pants, to be sure, but one may shuck them with complete nonchalance, and the colors not only improve the spectacle, but stimulate the ambition of the little leggedy kids in the old swimming suits. It is something to aspire to, a scarlet zipper outfit with Harvard across the front, but there wasn't much inspiration in common pants, which are every man's ordinary due.

They're Good Sports.

The most sporting episode that I have ever seen occurred in one of these college distance races in the Penn relays a few years ago, in which one runner knocked down the leading man, trying to pass him on a turn, then stopped instinctively, helped him up and gave him a five yard lead before he would move another step. These two were out in front of their field and the boy who passed the other one bumped him down by accident trying to go around him. The young man who went down plodded on and the boy who had fouled him now passed him again to beat him to the tape where the officials had to disqualify him.

The coaches in their social evening at one of the hotels that night had much to say about the incident, not quarreling with the verdict, which was fair enough, but admiring the instinctive conduct of the young man who stopped to wait. If he had gone on five yards, they said, then thought it over and turned back, that would have been premeditation and possibly a play to the stands. But his heels came down and he stopped dead on the instant and that, I heard them say that night, was as fine a show of decency as they had ever seen in athletic competition.

CAN'T CURB DOG RACING NOW, IS SWANSON VIEW

The electric rabbits at the Hawthorne and Thornton Kennel clubs have been given new coats of white fur. The greyhounds are to begin the season May 1. And nothing can be done about it, State's Attorney Swanson said yesterday.

The dog track issue, which has been fought in the courts for almost two years, is at a standstill. Last September Circuit Judge Harry Fisher dissolved a temporary injunction restraining the police from interfering with the tracks, but allowed them to operate pending an appeal to the Supreme court. In his decision the judge declared that he believed the statute limiting pari-mutuel betting to horse races was unconstitutional, but said that the question should be decided by the Supreme court.

A week ago the Supreme court remanded the case to the Appellate court. Mr. Swanson interpreted this action as upholding his position that there is a distinction between the pari-mutuel system for horses and for dogs.

"Judge Fisher had the power to allow the tracks to continue to operate," he said. "Under his decision nothing can be done until the matter is decided by the Appellate court. This may not be done until next fall."

NORTHWESTERN HANDS PURDUE 8 TO 5 BEATING

Timely hitting with fine defensive ball enabled Northwestern to open the Big Ten season at Evanston yesterday with an 8 to 5 victory over Purdue.

The Wildcats received effective pitching from Malcolm Fyfe, veteran right hander. However, he weakened in the second and third innings, when the visitors collected four of their eight hits and counted five runs. Eb Caraway, Purdue's heavy slugger, who led the Big Ten in hitting last year, failed to get a hit.

Northwestern scored six runs in the first and second innings off Palo. He was replaced in the third by Cox, who pitched airtight ball until the seventh when he weakened, permitting two runs. Score:

"Drunkenness Is a Disease and I Can Cure It"
—Leslie E. Keeley, M. D., LL. D.

THE EDITOR of a powerful Chicago Newspaper before his death, challenged this statement of Dr. Keeley that "Drunkenness is a disease and I can cure it." He defied Dr. Keeley to cure the men whom he would send to the Institute. The results were so convincing that, through his great newspaper, he was personally responsible for thousands of men and women taking The Keeley Treatment for Liquor.

REALTORS' G. H. Q. TO BE MOVED TO THE BUCKINGHAM

National Association to Quit Boul Mich.

BY AL CHASE.

Headquarters of the National Association of Real Estate Boards will be moved on May 1 from the Straus building, where they have been for the last six years, to the new Buckingham building, at 59 East Van Buren street, just west of the Chicago club.

The first official event to take place in the new quarters will be the meetings of several division executive committees which have signified their wish to convene at that time. The meetings are so scheduled as to fall just previous to the quarterly meeting of the National Association's board of directors, to be held May 9 and 10 at the Drake hotel.

Plan Postal Garage.

Work is scheduled to start within two weeks on a one story brick garage which has been leased for ten years at a term rental of $100,000 to the United States post office department for sole use of trucks operating in the parcel post delivery service. The building is to be erected on the east side of North Cicero avenue, between Wabansia and St. Paul avenues, and will represent a reported total investment in land and building of $150,000.

The building will be 200x100 and will stand in the center of a lot having a frontage of 267 feet on Cicero avenue, with a depth of 125 feet. The grounds surrounding the new structure will be landscaped with grass, flowers, and shrubs. W. E. Ramsey is architect.

Owned by Corporation.

The owner is the North West Postal Building corporation, of which J. E. Jenkins is president. Mr. Jenkins specializes in construction of buildings for government service. The financing of this project was arranged by P. A. Caswell & Co. The ten year lease will start with the date of completion of the building.

The Eureka Coal Dock company has acquired the property 104x572 feet at the southeast corner of Elston and Clybourn, extending to the Chicago river, from Louis F. Dreiske of Los Angeles for an indicated $230,000. The firm has occupied the premises under lease for twenty years.

BUSINESS FAIR AND IMPROVING, REYNOLDS FINDS

Reviews Note Gain in Retail Trade.

BY O. A. MATHER.

ARTHUR REYNOLDS.

Business isn't bad enough to cry about and isn't good enough to cheer about. But it is fair and getting better, so the Polyannas are apparently more justified in their hopes than are the Gloomy Gusses in their fears.

"Business is improving more slowly than the optimists would have us believe," Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, said yesterday in analyzing the situation. "Nevertheless, it is improving and, in my opinion, will continue to improve. However, I do not believe there will be any considerable upturn until after July 1.

"The farm equipment business has been good this year. I look for better profits in the packing industry this year than last year. Both the packers and the farm equipment companies are in better shape than they have been for some time. Earnings of our bank so far this year are about equal to those of a year ago and we look for satisfactory earnings for the year as a whole."

Further Gains Expected.

Various reviews and summaries of trade and industry yesterday bore out the general premise.

"Improvement noted in retail trade during the present month over earlier months of the year was further stimulated in most lines by the lateness of Easter," the Standard Statistics company says. "It is expected aggregate sales for April will exceed those of April, 1929. Further gains in trade may be expected during the balance of the spring, but volume for the first half of 1930 will not compare favorably with that of the like period last year.

"Normal volume is not to be expected before fall. The decline in profits indicated for the majority of retail trade companies during the first half year probably will be largely retained in the final half. In other words, results for the full year should be only slightly below 1929 returns."

Improvement in the automobile industry is enabling the steel industry to maintain fairly satisfactory operations.

"Cross current in demand, coupled with a sensitive price situation and extreme caution among buyers, present a picture that is out of keeping with the actual performance of the iron and steel industry," the Iron Age says. "Although specifying is from hand to mouth and the requirements of certain consuming lines are diminishing, the aggregate of all business has shown further slight improvement. Steel ingot output for the country at large, registering the increase in total business, now averages 78 per cent compared with 78 per cent last week."

Larger Auto Orders.

"This gain is attributable mainly to larger orders from the automobile industry, particularly the makers of low priced cars. The current moderate gain in motor car production is expected to continue into May and it now is estimated that output for the second quarter will reach 1,100,000 cars, making a total of 2,100,000 for the first half of the year, compared with 2,500,000 in the same period last year.

Construction awards in the thirty-seven states east of the Rocky mountains totaled $100,146,500 for the week ended April 18, according to the F. W. Dodge corporation. This compared with $113,866,400 in the preceding week and $117,753,000 in the same week last year. Contracts thus far this year have totaled $1,879,067,100, compared with $1,719,086,400 for the corresponding period last year.

The monthly review of the federal reserve board, which deals with conditions in March, says that industrial production declined, contrary to the usual seasonable trend.

Banamerica Corp. May Get Big General Foods Interest

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—Acquisition of an important interest in the General Foods corporation, which holds a leading position in the food specialty line through its control of sixty trade-marked products, has been arranged by the Bancamerica-Blair corporation, it was learned in Wall street today. The transaction, the final details of which are expected to be settled tomorrow, represents probably the largest deal of this nature in recent years and preliminary negotiations between the bankers concerned have been carefully guarded.

Soaring Insull Shares Feature Chicago Stocks

Spectacular rises in shares of the two big Insull utility companies, Commonwealth Edison and Public Service were the features of a generally strong market on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday.

Gains in Public Service common and no par were achieved on light trade, turn over in each issue was less than 500 shares. About 2,600 shares of Commonwealth Edison changed hands as the price soared nearly 23 points to set a 1930 high at 330.

Explanation of the market action of the Insull shares remains a matter of conjecture as far as most of La Salle street is concerned. It is known, however, that the movement in the group is puzzling to many persons close to the Insull interests. Peoples Gas was strong on the big board yesterday while Insull Utility was heavily traded in here but showed no important price change.

Cities Service Gains.

Other utility issues notably those representing natural gas interests were actively dealt in yesterday. Cities Service moved up to 43⅝ on sales approximating 27,000 shares. Twin States, Inland, North American Light and Power were active but showed little change.

Grigsby Grunow was a feature early in the session and touched 26 on heavy dealings, but settled back to 25 before the close. Majestic Household was less active than it has been and was down 2⅛ for the day.

Utah Radio was up more than 2 and U. S. Radio and Zenith made moderate gains. Application for the listing of 143,380 additional common shares of Utah Radio was announced yesterday following a meeting of the board of directors. The stock, which has been authorized by holders, will be used to acquire the Caswell-Runyan company, Huntington, Ind., and the Carter Radio company of Chicago. Utah's balance sheet as of Dec. 31 shows current assets of $2,456,546 and current liabilities of $331,187.

Rise on Buying.

Lincoln Printing issues were high on good buying. The common advanced to 28½, up 3½, and the preferred moved ahead about 1. The company has purchased a block of its preferred stock, it was announced. Other strong spots among the specialties were U. S. Gypsum, Gleaner, Kalamazoo Stove, and Process. Meyer T. Horwich, president of Process corporation, announced yesterday the acquisition by the company of Cambridge Press, Inc., for a cash consideration.

Exchange governors yesterday approved the listing of 215,000 voting trust certificates of Columbia Pictures corporation. Of the listing 120,000 are subject of trading, which will begin this morning. No public offering is contemplated at present. Goddard & company recently marketed 50,000 shares at $42.50 a share. The company was formed in 1919. In 1929 earnings were equivalent to $3.18 a share on common stock. The company has announced its intention of placing the common stock on a $1.50 cash and 5 per cent stock annual dividend basis. Listing of the convertible preference stock, series A, of the Burnham Trading corporation was also approved.

SAYS PROFIT OF $92,261,738 W A S MADE IN 24 YRS.

Washington, D. C., April 23.—(AP)—Testimony that the Electric Bond and Share company had net earnings of $92,261,738 in 24 years and that the fees it had charged subsidiaries and connected companies for services would more than pay the total expenses of operations was placed today into the record of the federal trade commission's extensive investigation of utilities financing.

John H. Bickley, a commission accountant, said that from March 15, 1905, to March 13, 1929, the Electric Bond and Share received an operating income of $138,680,325, while its total expenses for the same period were $45,418,587, leaving about 67 per cent of the total income as net profit, or $92,261,738.

VANSWERINGENS OFFER STOCK IN $75,000,000 NEW HOLDING FIRM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—Formation of a new $75,000,000 holding and investment company by O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen was disclosed today with the announcement of plans for early financing for the Van Sweringen corporation.

The company was incorporated this week in Delaware, with broad charter powers, but primarily for the purpose of taking over some of the Van Sweringen real estate holdings in Cleveland. Among the initial investments, however, is a block of about $15,000,000 worth of stock in Alleghany corporation, the railroad holding company organized a little more than a year ago by the Van Sweringen brothers.

Initial financing for the Van Sweringen corporation will take the form of an offering of $50,000,000 five year 6 per cent notes, with common stock purchase warrants, to be offered tomorrow through a syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust company. The warrant attached to each bond, it is understood, gives the right to purchase twenty shares of stock at $25 a share for five years.

Union Pacific's Total 1929 Net Income Is $49,256,042

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—The annual report of the Union Pacific railroad for the year ended Dec. 31, 1929, issued today, reveals that the company increased its holdings of Baltimore and Ohio common stock last year by 10,530 shares through the exercise of rights entitling the holders to subscribe up to 15 per cent of their holdings.

Union Pacific holdings of Baltimore and Ohio now total $6,267,035 par value. During the year the company decreased by $2,660,000 its holdings of New York Central, the total now being $24,807,000 par value.

Assets Over Billion.

The general balance sheet shows total assets of $1,195,687,913, an increase of $8,026,950. Profit and loss surplus was increased by $29,562,683 to a total of $264,485,059.

Investment in road and equipment at the end of 1929 was $909,873,259, an increase of $11,403,618 in the year. Investments in affiliated companies were increased by $7,289,277 to a total of $66,583,502, while investments in other companies dropped $2,219,030 to a total of $170,146,114.

During 1929 the Union Pacific decreased by $47,242,000 the amount of funded debt outstanding in the hands of the public. The principal item was the retirement of $45,000,000 of Oregon Short line 4 per cent bonds maturing Dec. 1, 1929. Net income of the company from all sources in 1929 amounted to $49,256,042, an increase of $3,149,170 over 1928. Gross operating revenues for the year were $217,356,592, an increase of $2,187,347.

Associated Gas Gains.

The annual report of the Associated Gas and Electric company for 1929 shows total assets of $900,491,543 at Dec. 31, 1929, comparing with $818,514,494 at the end of 1928, the gain being principally due to the acquisition of control of the General Gas and Electric corporation and the Rochester Central Power corporation system during the year.

Total gross revenues and other income of the system amounted to $91,480,596 for 1929, a gain of 117 per cent, and net revenue was $45,755,674, up 139 per cent, including earnings of new properties only since the date of acquisition in 1929, while the full twelve months gross of all properties now in the system was $103,556,864, with net, before depreciation, amounting to $50,282,036.

UNITED AIRCRAFT WINS FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF N.A.T.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—The fight for control of National Air Transport, the air mail system that carries the mail on the eastern part of the transcontinental route between New York and Chicago and between Chicago and Dallas, Tex., between United Aircraft and Transport and the directors of N. A. T., headed by C. M. Keys, came to an end tonight with control in the hands of United.

The outcome gives United the trunk line of the air mail between San Francisco and New York. It means in the eyes of the aviation world that the long heralded thirty hour passenger service between the Pacific and Atlantic is to be realized as a single unit. It means that aviation has encompassed what the railroads have never yet been able to accomplish—a single transcontinental system from ocean to ocean.

The agreement reached today was said to be something of a compromise, since United agrees to give one share of its stock for three shares of N. A. T. At closing today United was quoted at 87 and N. A. T. at 30.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO. PAYS USUAL DIVIDEND

C. Penney company who was made a vice president, and F. A. Powdrell, until recently vice president of the W. T. Grant company. Mr. Powdrell becomes a vice president and treasurer.

Complete Diamond Co., Square D Consolidation

Merger of Square D company, Detroit, and the Diamond Electrical Manufacturing company, Los Angeles, was completed yesterday. An initial dividend of 50 cents a share quarterly, payable in cash, and of 2 per cent semi-annually in stock was declared on Square D. "B," which has not previously been on a dividend paying basis. Payment will be made June 30 to shareholders of record June 20.

New York, April 23.—The stock market went around in circles all day. There was no rhyme or reason to the proceedings anywhere. Bull traders got some of their favorites to higher stamping ground, but the opposing element was just as successful in crashing an equal coterie to the lowlands. Extreme changes ranged from a gain of 10½ points each in Peoples Gas and Ingersoll Rand to a dip of 7⅞ in Vanadium corporation. Pivotals for the most part sold off.

About the only unusual feature of the session was the heavy buying which developed in the oils near the close. Standard of New Jersey was taken across 83 on a flood of buying orders and wound up showing a net gain of nearly 4 points on the day. Other stocks in the department were prompt to follow suit. Standard of California rising 2⅜, Standard of New York 1⅜, and Atlantic Refining, Sinclair, Simms and others advancing from 1 to 2 points.

Volume is Heavier.

Volume was considerably heavier, due in part to the enormous turnover in a number of pool favorites, and the market climbed back to 5,568,610 shares.

The news developments were not particularly inspiring to followers of either side. Most of the quarterly earnings statements now coming to hand proved unfavorable in comparison with results of the corresponding period of last year, and there was a disposition in some quarters to inter-

CORPORATE TRUST SHARES

How the

Functions—

American Depositor Corporation, sponsors of Corporate Trust Shares (Moody's composite rating "A") has departed from the usual custom of other investment trusts of the fixed type in regard to cashing in profits. Instead of adding stock dividends and split-ups to the principal, these are sold as soon as declared and the funds thus secured placed in current distributions. Thus for the calendar year 1929, Corporate Trust Shares paid cash distributions to shareholders equal to a return of 17 1-10% on the average price for the period. This was the largest cash distribution made by any investment trust of the fixed type for the year 1929. Full information concerning the portfolio of this trust; its earning record over the past 17 years; and complete details of the elements that make this sound investment an outstanding opportunity for the investor of large or moderate means will be sent promptly on request.

FOREIGNERS NOW TAKING WHEAT ON BIG SCALE

Gov't Sells at Seaboard as Prices Rise.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Foreigners have apparently become uneasy over future supplies of cash wheat, and have entered the market on a big scale, taking around 4,000,000 bu of American and Canadian grain in the past two days, of which a liberal percentage was American hard winter and durums.

It is known that part of the hard winter sold abroad was secured by exporters from the stabilization corporation. Rumors were current during the day that the latter had disposed of all of its holdings at the seaboard and gulf, but confirmation was lacking, the corporation confining itself to saying that it has sold a liberal amount, but refused to give out the quantities.

Messages from the seaboard intimated that the amount of export business put through in the last three days materially exceeded trade estimates, and No. 2 hard winter at New Orleans went to 3½c over Chicago May bid without offerings, while the same grade sold at Baltimore and Norfolk at 2c over. Some New York exporters did the largest export business in the past two days in any single session in many months.

Expect Large Cash Business.

In pursuance of its policy of being able to take care of the domestic milling demand for choice cash grain, it is expected that a big line of spring wheat will be taken over by the Stabilization Corporation at Minneapolis in the immediate future, the transaction probably involving 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 bu. Negotiations have been under way for several days between the elevator interests and the corporation. It is claimed that the grain is of high quality.

Messages from Kansas City said that the 6,000,000 bu hard winter taken there in exchange for the May future on Tuesday tested 11½ to 13 per cent or more protein, and brought 2 to 5c over the May, storage room paid until June 30.

The marked revival in the export demand, combined with strength in Liverpool and unfavorable crop reports from the dry sections of Kansas and Oklahoma, led to free buying of wheat futures by shorts and a higher range, with the finish at net gains of 1⅞@2⅜c, with May $1.04½@1.04⅝ and July $1.06⅞@1.07.

Kansas Needs Rain.

A bullish construction was placed by the trade on the government weekly weather crop report, which indicated that rains were still badly needed in parts of Kansas and Oklahoma. Wichita, Kas., estimated that the condition in five southwestern counties of that state, with 581,000 acres, was only 61 with 18 per cent of the area abandoned.

Short covering was on in corn, and with light offerings prices advanced and closed ¾@1c higher, with May 82⅝@82½c and July 84@84⅛c. Selling against offers checked the bulge. Eastern cash demand was fairly active, with shipping sales of 104,000 bu, with the spot basis ¼c higher to ½c lower, the latter on low grades.

COTTON UP $2 A BALE

Cotton prices advanced $2.00 a bale in practically all markets yesterday, with the close around the best figures. There was an apparent fight on between the co-ops who are long and the cash interests who have May and July sold against their holdings of actual cotton. Liverpool was 3@4 points higher, with spot sales increased to 6,000 bales. With big buying by shorts, the premium between near and distant months was maintained and closing trades were at gains of 32@38 points in Chicago and 27@48 points in outside markets, May leading the advance. It is expected tenders on May contracts will be heavy.

In the spot market, New York was up 45 points to 16.30c, New Orleans advanced 40 points, equal to $2.00 a bale at a price of 15.60c, Galveston was 16c and Houston 15.90c. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Corn traders are less disposed to sell futures for the present, because of the light country movement and small stock of contract grain here, which is the lightest in recent years.

Navigation on Canadian rivers is open and boats are loading at Montreal for Mediterranean ports. Clearances from there are expected to show a good increase, as the Canadian pool is said to be a ready seller of wheat.

ALBERS RESIGNS AS CHAIRMAN OF KROGER GROCERY

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Disagreement among officials of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, operating a chain of more than 5,000 retail stores throughout the middle west, which resulted in the resignation of several officials last month, was brought to the fore today with the resignation of William H. Albers, who rose from a clerk to become chairman and a director. President Albert H. Morrill also announced that 1929 profits were approximately $450,000 less than previously reported.

The resignation of Mr. Albers was the fourth this year from the Kroger directorate. B. H. Kroger resigned as chairman but continued as a director. Others who resigned their positions and directorships were B. H. Kroger Jr., treasurer; A. L. Nagel, vice president, and George G. Meinser, secretary. All three resigned on March 31.

In a letter to stockholders today Mr. Morrill said that a reaudit of the company's books showed that net profits for 1929 were $5,917,097 instead of $6,378,789, a reduction of $458,692. The revised earnings are equal to $3.47 a share on 1,725,726 no par common shares outstanding at the end of the year, and compares with profits of $5,223,585, or $3.46 a share, in 1928. The company's auditors also reduced earned surplus by $700,000.

Steady Growth is Behind the Steady Price Rise of the Class A Common Stocks of

Twin States Natural Gas

Six weeks ago we recommended the purchase of these stocks as excellent opportunities for price appreciation and investment in the rapidly-growing natural gas industry. At that time Inland was selling at $24¼ and Twin States at $14.

Yesterday on the Chicago Stock Exchange Inland closed at $34¼ and Twin States at $16.

Despite these price appreciations, indications of high public regard and the rapid development and expansion in the companies—we still recommend these stocks for purchase at present levels. Acquisitions and consolidations recently announced by Inland Utilities and anticipated developments in the Twin States company more than offset the recent gains in price, leaving them still among the most attractive stocks in the natural gas group.

For further information on these stocks send us your name and address on the coupon. We shall also be pleased to send you a copy of a new booklet just published descriptive of the natural gas industry. No obligation.

Van Sweringen Corporation

Five Year 6% Gold Notes

(With Stock Purchase Warrants Detachable on or after May 1, 1932)

Under its broad charter powers the Corporation will, it is expected, furnish a corporate instrumentality to buy, sell, trade in or hold stocks and securities or other property and to enter into such other transactions as may be from time to time determined.

To be dated May 1, 1930 To mature May 1, 1935

Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee

A letter from Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen, President of the Corporation, copies of which will be furnished upon request, has been summarized by him as follows:

Van Sweringen Corporation has been organized by the Van Sweringen interests, under the laws of the State of Delaware, to furnish a corporate instrumentality to buy, sell, trade in or hold stocks and securities or other property, and to enter into such other transactions as may be from time to time determined.

The Corporation will acquire forthwith from the Van Sweringen interests (a) all of the outstanding stock of a subsidiary having title, by ownership or lease of building sites (sometimes referred to as "air rights") over the new passenger station and yards of the Cleveland Union Terminals Company, to the co-ordinated group of buildings erected and being erected at the Public Square in the heart of downtown Cleveland, and to certain additional adjoining building sites and land available for improvement as the terminal area develops, and (b) 500,000 shares of Alleghany Corporation common stock.

Business structures on these sites and leased property include the Medical Arts Building and Builders Exchange and Garage Building, which are practically completed, and the Midland Bank Building, which is over 60% constructed. In addition it is planned to erect a department store building and an additional office building, both expected to be completed before the end of 1932.

The Corporation will also control the Cleveland Hotel and the 52-story Terminal Tower buildings which have been erected on building sites leased in perpetuity.

Present Financing

With these Notes and attached warrants, and with 1,744,800 shares of no par value Common Stock and warrants for the purchase of 240,000 additional shares of such Common Stock, the Corporation will so acquire the above mentioned real estate properties and stock, and $17,096,263 cash (available for the projected department store building, additional office building and/or other investments) in addition to sufficient funds to complete the buildings now under construction.

The consolidated pro forma balance sheet of the Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiary, as of March 31, 1930, given in the above-mentioned letter, after giving effect to such acquisition of property and completion of buildings under construction and this financing, shows net assets, after deducting all liabilities other than these Notes, of $73,740,179.

(Note: Negotiations are pending with a large insurance company for the sale of a $10,500,000 Ten Year 5% Mortgage Bond issue on the Medical Arts, Builders Exchange and Garage and Midland Bank properties, the proceeds of which would be available for the purchase by the Corporation of additional securities.)

Provisions of Issue

These Notes are to be direct obligations of the Corporation, and will be isued under a Trust Indenture which will provide, among other things, so long as any of these Notes are outstanding, that the 500,000 shares of Alleghany Corporation common stock presently to be acquired by the Corporation will not be pledged or sold except as set forth in the Trust Indenture.

Messrs. O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, as individuals, will enter into an agreement for the benefit of the holders of these Notes effectively guaranteeing (until at least $15,000,000 of these Notes shall have been retired with the proceeds of said stock) that if at any time and while the market value of said Alleghany Corporation common stock then owned together with the proceeds of any shares sold and or United States Government obligations representing the investment of such proceeds, shall amount to less than 50% of the amount of these Notes then outstanding, they will make available additional readily marketable securities to the extent necessary to make up such deficiency, all as set forth in the Trust Indenture.

For provisions limiting the right of the Corporation to issue secured indebtedness reference is made to the above-mentioned letter.

Warrants

The Notes will have attached thereto warrants (detachable on or after May 1, 1932, but not prior thereto except when exercised or in the event of the redemption of the appurtenant Note) entitling the holders to purchase 20 shares of Common Stock of the Corporation in respect of each $1,000 of said Notes, at $25 per share (the price at which the Common Stock is being issued to the organizers for the assets which are being acquired by the Corporation), such right to expire May 1, 1935.

In addition to the warrants to be attached to these Notes, similar warrants for the purchase of 240,000 shares of Common Stock at $25 per share will be issued in connection with the acquisition of assets and this financing.

Earnings

Annual earnings available to the Corporation upon completion and occupancy of the various buildings, erected and being erected, after usual allowances for vacancies, before depreciation and Federal Income Tax and excluding the department store building and additional office building, will, it is estimated by Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., Inc., be substantially in excess of the annual interest requirements on this issue. The return from the projected department store building and additional office building, planned to represent upon completion an investment (including building sites) of about $20,000,000, should increase such earnings substantially. The foregoing makes no allowance for interest on the bond issue proposed to be sold to an insurance company or earnings from the investment of the proceeds thereof.

These Notes have been listed for trading on a "when issued" basis on the Boston Stock Exchange.

Authorized and presently to be outstanding, $30,000,000 (this issue). Principal and interest payable in New York at the principal office of Guaranty Trust Company of New York. Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 6,500 cattle, 21,000 hogs, 11,000 sheep.

While hogs and lambs broke rather sharply on moderate supplies yesterday, cattle held firm on the largest six-week receipts since January. Prime weightly beeves reached $15.10, the highest price in two weeks, while top hogs at $10.30 equal the lowest since Jan. 22. Best wool lambs slipped back to $9.85, which is only 35c above the lowest point in more than eight years.

Cattle receipts at 9,000 were 2,000 above the advance estimate and came as a surprise to the trade, which has been comparatively weak except on a few top notchers. However, prices held up well considering the size of the supply, and at the close of the day sales were little different than on the preceding session.

Some prime medium and heavy cattle showed slight gains. Two loads of steers averaging 1,526 lbs from Missouri fed lots, brought $15.10, the day's peak. Medium weights averaging 1,189 lbs sold at $14.40 and bulk of sales held at $11.00@13.00. Butcher stock sold slowly at barely steady prices. A string of 76 heifers averaging 661 lbs brought $12.50. Calves sold steady. Stockers and feeders were scarce and steady.

Hog Futures Lower.

The market for hog futures was slower and 5@10c lower yesterday. May light sold at $10.45 and June mediums at $10.25. Bids and offers, however, were plentiful in all months and were only 5@10c apart on several large lots at the close.

There were buyers for fifteen carloads of May and June light weights at $10.00@10.40, but the lowest offer was $10.45 on four loads. May and June heavy were offered at $10.00 and bid $9.85 at the finish. September heavy carried bids of $10.25 and mediums, $10.35. Light weights for the remainder of the week were bid $10.15 on the "to arrive" market, mediums $10.00 and heavy, $9.65, but there were no sellers at these quotations.

Hog prices on the cash trade declined mostly 10@15c in mid-session after a few urgent shipping orders had been filled on a steady basis at the opening. The extreme top and general average prices showed 5c loss at $10.30 and $9.95, respectively, these prices showing a 25@35c decline compared with last Friday.

The spread between light and heavy hogs reached the narrowest point of the season. The top and average prices were only 30c apart against a spread of $1.00 about five weeks ago. A break of 2c per pound in fresh pork loins has limited the buying power of smaller packers, with some remaining practically out of yesterday's trade. Armour, Swift and Wilson handled a combined total of about 6,000, including directs. About 6,000 remained at the close. Five western markets expect an increase of 8,000 today.

Lambs Off 25@50c.

Buyers held the advantage in the lamb market yesterday and prices were forced down 25@50c, showing 45@65c loss since Monday. Bulk of wool lambs sold at $9.25@9.75, with top to shippers at $9.85. Some 107 lb averages were sold at $8.75. A scattering of fair to good native spring lambs sold at $10.00@13.50. Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce, but met narrow demand and ruled weak to 25c lower. Feeding and shearing lambs were unchanged.

BUTTER AND EGGS FIRM

Bullish sentiment showed itself in egg trading with current contracts up ½c, but deferred delivery closed unchanged after early strength. Sales were 31 cars and receipts 24,329 cases. Prices follow:

BULLS WORK IN GOOD LICKS, BUT BEARS DO ALSO

Heavy Buying in Oils Comes Near Close.

pret this in support of the bear contention that the market has been getting somewhat ahead of the business recovery and there was little in the way of fresh outside news to influence speculative sentiment.
found in either group.

General Motors.

Evidently the street found the General Motors earnings statement for the first quarter as published late yesterday a trifle better than had been expected. Heavy buying came into the shares in the early trading and served to boost the price some 3 points above the low of Tuesday. Before the close, however, liquidation developed and the final price showed a small fractional loss.

A number of special stocks sprinted in a more or less spectacular fashion at intervals. Case Threshing Machine made another of its long jumps, advancing nearly 10 points, but ran into profit taking and lost the better part of its gain. At its high today the stock showed an advance of about 60 points in a week. The trading public is still looking for a splitup there.

R-K-O Activity.

Columbia Graphaphone spurted around midday, reviving rumors of a merger with Victor. It was up more than 3 points at the close.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum was active and strong all day, chalking up a net gain of more than 5 points. Fresh talk was heard of negotiations looking to the corporation's acquirement of the Fox holdings of Loews, Inc.

Ajax Rubber.

I would be glad to receive some of the history of the Ajax Rubber company, listed on the New York Stock exchange at 2¼. What are its possibilities, and would it be good to hold?
F. W. S.

Ajax Rubber Company, Inc., is one of the smaller tire and tube manufacturers. Practically all of its volume of sales is in the replacement field. The company was incorporated in New York in 1915 as the successor to Ajax-Grieb Rubber company of Trenton, N. J. In 1916 it acquired the Racine Rubber company. Plants are at Charlotte, N. C., and Racine, Wis., and branches are located in twenty-five cities.

Severe competition from large manufacturers and mail order houses has caused the company to report deficits for the last four years. Net loss in 1929 was $2,468,248, which was equal to a deficit of around $2.80 per share on the common, compared with a loss of $2.34 a share in 1928. Operating loss, before depreciation, in 1929 was more than twice as large as that for 1928, with a very poor second half year indicated.

The consolidated balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1929, showed cash of $160,291, against $886,579 a year before, and a floating debt of nearly $1,200,000 was reported.

Current assets were $3,293,990, and current liabilities were $1,603,028 at the close of last year. This left a net working capital of $1,690,962, which compares with $3,989,486 at the end of 1928.

The company has a funded debt of $1,517,000, and 880,330 no par shares of capital stock outstanding. No dividends have been reported since 1920.

The stock is purely speculative.

Skookum Copper Mining.

I would be very thankful for information about Skookum Copper Mining company, whose office was at Roslyn, Wash. I have 400 shares of their stock.
J. E. C.

Skookum Copper Mining company was incorporated in Washington and had an office at Roslyn, Wash.

Its charter was forfeited for nonpayment of taxes during the period of 1914-1916.

Consumers Power.

Would you kindly advise me what you think of the Consumers Power company first and unifying 4½ per cent bonds, due Nov. 1, 1958?
C. R.

These bonds are regarded as a sound investment.

OIL CONFLICT ENDS IN ORIENT; BOOST PRICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—The price war which has been waged since March in the Dutch East Indies and the Orient between the Royal Dutch interests and the Standard Oil company of New York has been ended with an advance of 100 per cent in prices it was announced today.

The increase, which amounts to 8 cents a gallon on both gasoline and kerosene, places prices at a level equivalent to the present quotations in the United States, plus transportation. This follows the same principle that was adopted in England about a year ago.

The new prices were put into effect last Monday. Prices of petroleum products, which had weakened in other markets in the far east, have since moved higher.

Settlement of the price war is believed to have been one of the results of the recent visit here of Sir Henri Deterding, managing director of the Royal Dutch. While here, he is reported to have discussed the gasoline marketing situation in the east with officials of the Standard Oil company of New York.

Another factor in the settlement of the war, it was reported yesterday in Wall street, was the oil conservation programs launched recently, which have resulted in a curtailed production in oil fields all over the world. The decrease in the production of oil in California, it was said, has been particularly helpful in reducing competition in the far east.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam in the Havre boat train. Macadam is an Englishman who lives in Paris. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is a little apprehensive about the coming visit because she had received just before sailing a letter from Germaine Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs, but he doesn't know that the widow very well. He had heard that she was ill. Arrived in Paris, Catherine is a little disappointed when her cousin's chauffeur is not at the station to meet her. Geoffrey sees her into a taxi, giving her his address and telephone number. He tells her that he will be anxious to know how things are at the Bender apartment and she promises to call him. Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, she is treated coldly by the servants and Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, who suggests that she go to a hotel. Catherine insists on staying in the apartment as she is suspicious of the servants. Jeanne tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine Bender, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and it is a relief for her to get out of the apartment and to tell him of her vague fears. He is disturbed, too. Geoffrey escorts her back to the apartment. She finds herself locked out, but Geoffrey manages to arouse Edmonde, the butler, by knocking. He resents the butler's manner as he explains that he thought Miss West had come in long before.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

A SLIGHT SHOCK.

For a moment Catherine was speechless over the arrant absurdity. Was Miss Cushing serious?

"I knew it, I knew it," her hostess murmured, half to herself. "It is what I have been expecting. O, that such a tyranny can continue unchecked in an age like this! It is infamous, it is——"

"Tyranny?" echoed Catherine again; then thinking it time to play her trump card made an earnest bid for attention. "Forgive me, Miss Cushing," she began seriously. "But there is something I feel you ought to know. You see, Jeanne declares that after you left the other afternoon Mme. Bender was terribly depressed. She thinks it was something you said to her which threw her into that morbid state and made her—made her——" It was difficult to complete the sentence.

She was unprepared for the phenomenon which greeted her tentative statement. The singer stiffened visibly, appeared on the point of bursting. Her round face turned a turkey-red hue.

"That creature said such a thing?" she gasped in a stifled voice. "Impossible!"

For a half minute she trembled on the verge of apoplexy, while the girl looked on in positive alarm.

Yvonne strode into the room bearing on a tray the tiniest glass Catherine had ever seen filled with cognac.

Miss Cushing suddenly grew warm.

"Drink this, mademoiselle, and calm yourself!" she commanded brusquely, and thrust the glass to her mistress' lips.

The artist swallowed, coughed and recovered her balance.

"Yvonne!"—and she stretched forth a detaining hand. "Did you hear that infamy? That devil, Jeanne, is saying that I—I—am responsible for Mme. Bender's trying to take her life!"

"Ah! Unbelievable!"

The staid Yvonne scowled from one to the other of the two women, muttering, "It is a little too much!" Finally, casting her arms with an irate gesture she withdrew with a last gesture, "She is a bad one, that woman," hurled into space.

"Listen," cried Miss Cushing, "now you will hear the truth! On Tuesday afternoon my poor Germaine was her happiest self. She was rejoiced over the thought of your coming. I said to myself that there was really going to be an improvement, now she would not be left alone to mope and brood. When I left her she kissed me and said, 'My darling Lili'—that is her name for me—'promise you will come again very soon. You put new life into me.' So! You see?"

"And you saw no sign of any delusions?"

"Delusions indeed! I may say I have never seen anything of the sort. With me she has always been—well, not normal; that is a strong word, but absolutely sane. Why, the other day she was so much her usual self that I actually ventured to advise her upon a matter I had felt I ought to mention for some time past. I mean, of course,"—here she paused and moistened her lips—"the question of drawing up her will."

Catherine experienced a slight shock.

"O!" she exclaimed a little blankly. "So you spoke of that?"

"I thought it my duty," replied her hostess firmly. "You see, Catherine—I may call you that? Germaine has never made her will. It is a business she is unwilling to face. In consequence, if the poor darling were to pass away suddenly all Harry's entire fortune would go—who knows where? To the state, perhaps. It is appalling to think of such waste!"

Catherine sat quite still, struggling with the confusion of her thoughts.

"But surely Mme. Bender has heirs?" she suggested at last.

"Not one. Amazing, isn't it? But surely you must have been told that?"

Catherine shook her head.

"I know almost nothing about her before she married Cousin Harry."

"You didn't know, then, that it was I who introduced Harry to Germaine Dieulefit when she and I were studying together for the opera?"

"Dieulefit? What an odd name!"

"Yes, most unusual. There are no others, the family is extinct. Her mother was a singer, coloratura, and illegitimate—probably the child of some minor royalty and an Italian peasant. No one knew. Old Jerome Dieulefit was a wine grower from the south, the last of a bourgeois line. So you see there is no one to whom this money can go by law, unless Germaine leaves a will. In her present state of health it is madness not to think of such things."

Catherine fingered her gloves.

"Have you any idea who would benefit if she did make a will?" she asked presently.

Miss Cushing grew suddenly warm. She seized a worn copy of a song and fanned herself vigorously.

"Not the slightest," she declared a little consciously. "All I can say is that there is a certain string of pearls, quite valuable, which she had promised to leave to me. I helped her choose them. 'Lili,' she said at the time, 'one day these will be yours, so be sure you approve of them!' Always she referred to them as Lili's pearls. She seldom wore them, only sometimes the copy she had made. The pearls themselves are insured for three million francs."

Three million francs! Catherine glanced about her. All the small evidences of gentility struggling against poverty which had been apparent to her since she entered the tiny flat took on a new meaning. Three million francs would represent security and dignity in old age to this woman who was striving against difficult odds to gain a decent livelihood. No wonder Germaine was worried lest her friend should die without putting her bequest into legal form.

Suddenly she thought of the Bender apartment, given over to servants. One of the latter was a stranger of whose morals she knew nothing. Eduardo himself was behaving so abominably he all but invited suspicion, and last night there had been some outside person, possibly the little man she had seen with Jeanne, prowling about the place.

"By the way, where does Mme. Bender keep her pearls?" she inquired casually. "I hope they're well locked up."

"Ah, yes, they, at least, are perfectly safe. She keeps them with all her most valuable jewels at the bank in the Place Vendome."

An indefinable qualm shot through the listener. What precisely did Miss Cushing mean by saying that the pearls at least were safe?

A moment later Catherine was listening to a jumbled discourse as full of irrelevant detail as the room about her. She could not take her eyes from the overblown spinster, who, having contrived in some astonishing manner to tuck one foot beneath her, was imbibing countless cups of tea as though to provide her system with the moisture which constantly suffused her pale eyes and occasionally spilled over the edge of her scanty lashes.

Good morning!

Looking for a Big Moment, folks? Well, "Happy Days," over at the Roosevelt, is one. It is, primarily, one of Fox's Big Moments, but you have no idea how gladly the company will share it with you. You have simply NO idea!

The piece is, for Fox—and for us—much as "The Show of Shows" was for Warner Brothers and their eager public. It's a big, gorgeous revue, thickly studded with Fox celebrities whom you know and like—or don't—and the story thread which holds it together is slight, but sufficient unto the cause thereof. "Happy Days" is the first feature length production especially designed for projection on a screen more than forty feet wide—the Grandeur. We haven't one in Chicago and the film is showing on a screen of regulation size at the Roosevelt, but at the Roxy in New York it occupies a silver sheet forty-two feet wide, with knockout effect, so I am told.

The action starts on a Mississippi show boat, whose owner, dear old "Col. White," is in difficulties. His show has been attached. Marjorie White as a soubrette, who has been reared by the colonel and is in love with his grandson, realizing that guardian is a gentleman of the old school and won't ask for aid, takes matters into her own hands. Sezz she:

"I'M a gentleman of the new school and when I'm in trouble I HOLLER!"

She hies her to New York, crashes into the Stage and Screen club, and reveals the colonel's plight to the members, all of whom know and love Col. Billy, who has, it seems, at various times, befriended one and all of them. Of COURSE, they'll help him . . .!

"Where IS the colonel?" queries Mister William Collier.

"Down in Memphis trying to raise money," Miss Marjorie replies.

"Why, we'll just go down there and give that minstrel show we gave here!" suggests somebody—Mr. McLaglen, I believe.

"Yes, only we'll have to clean it up," whispers Georgie Jessel.

So they look up a crony who owns a theater in Memphis that is running a revue and ask him can they have his theater and his girls. He says sure.

To Memphis go the friends tried and true, and the benefit they put on is the show you see.

It is sumptuously staged and costumed, brightly presented, and generally in good taste. I thought the Charles Farrell-Janet Gaynor act rather spoiled by the Lucien Littlefield-Walter Catlett scene attached to it. The number drawing the most laughs was the McLaglen-Lowe contribution. These famous screen enemies do a song and dance together. They carol of how much they really love each other—off the screen. All goes well until—a beautiful lady saunters by. . . . You guess the rest.

The benefit is in two parts—the minstrel first part, bringing in all the screen names, and the revue last part featuring the girls in the show supposedly lent by the obliging Memphis theater manager.

The audience yesterday morning loved Marjorie White and, apparently, the whole show and everybody in it.

"Happy Days" is gay entertainment; be assured of that.

Children Honor Poet, Edwin Markham, on His 78th Birthday

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Edwin Markham, who at the age of 47 became famous as the author of "The Man with the Hoe," celebrated today his 78th birthday, and the borough of Richmond, on Staten island, where he lives, celebrated with him.

School children marched to his home at noon and staged a pageant in his honor on his front lawn. In the afternoon he was presented with a huge birthday cake by the Camp Fire Girls.

Before Jan. 8, 1899, the day on which a San Francisco newspaper printed his "Man with the Hoe," Mr. Markham had been a farm boy, sheep herder, blacksmith, and teacher. His poem, inspired by Millet's painting, immediately made him famous.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Will girls go without stockings and wear long dresses, also, this summer?

The Answers.

Miss Doris Jakeway, 1519 North Kolin avenue, stenographer—I would never have the nerve to go stockingless, whether the dresses are long or short. Mother and father would not consent. We feel that it is more refined to wear stockings. I don't like short dresses.

Clarence Nelson, 5423 Rice street, elevator operator. — It seems to me it would be rather inconsistent to go stockingless when wearing long dresses. But I expect the majority of them will be governed by the styles.

Miss Josephine Handy, 750 Brompton place, secretary.—I was down in Florida recently and they were wearing either long dresses or short and no stockings. I was going around stockingless and wearing all sorts of dresses.

Fred Bruns, 11 East Delaware place, draftsman. — I expect some of them will go stockingless whether the dress is long or short. That's all right, too. I hope they keep cool and comfortable. I suppose that's the reason for going stockingless.

Mrs. Lucille Servies, 5558 Lakewood avenue, housewife. — Not with long dresses. Long dresses and bare legs do not go together. Old fashioned dresses and the flapper ways would be terrible. I went without hose last year, but not with long dresses.

Better Schools Called Way to Reduce Crimes

Parents, Teachers Hear Dr. Coffman.

A better educated citizenry and a decrease in crime proportional to the increase in education in the next thirty years were predicted last night by Dr. Lotus D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, at the banquet of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The congress will close its thirty-first annual session at Evanston today.

"The present increase in crime," said Dr. Coffman, "is due largely to the migratory instincts of the people as well as to the greater wealth now in the hands of individuals. The increased knowledge and the bettered contacts that will come with the newer educational practices will serve to eliminate to some extent the causes of crime."

In modern education, he said, the trend is away from the exclusive use of textbooks and toward the use of educational movies and practical demonstrations. Future methods of education, he predicted, will appeal more to the social side of life to give students a practical view of the courses which they are studying.

"The greatest aid in hastening the coming age of educated children," he said, "would be the conscientious supervision of the social activities and the education of children by their parents. A great number of parents haven't the slightest idea of what their children are doing in their schools nor do many of them know of the advances made in teaching methods."

Mrs. Harry B. Detweiler, Aurora, president; Mrs. Holland Flagler, Chicago, first vice president; Mrs. Edward Jackson, Chicago, second vice president; Mrs. A. R. Williams, Normal, third vice president; Mrs. Robert D. Pringle, Chicago, fourth vice president; Mrs. F. L. Holch, Glen Eliyn, fifth vice president; Mrs. George Rudy, Mattoon, sixth vice president; Mrs. N. G. Hymonds, Hinsdale, seventh vice president; Mrs. C. E. Tullis, Decatur, eighth vice president; Mrs. A. W. Garrett, Chicago, recording secretary; Mrs. W. R. Kerr Jr., Chicago, treasurer.

THE STAGE

"THE MERRY WIDOW."

Franz Lehar's operetta, revived at the Majestic theater April 23, 1930, with Beppie de Vries and Donald Brian as stars, under the management of the Messrs. Shubert.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THERE is no disillusionment to be found in "The Merry Widow," which has come to life after twenty-three years of suspended animation, at the Majestic theater. Lehar's brilliant operetta carries its old thrill, and a pleasant tingle will run up and down your spinal marrow when the world famous waltz begins to pulse through the sparkling score, or when the rakish Prince Danilo starts chanting about the charms of Clo-clo, Margot, Frou-frou, and the other questionable girls at Maxim's.

This revival is the best of the series of exhumations which have made the Majestic a kind of theatrical museum during the last three months. The piece itself outclasses the resurrections from the Victor Herbert repertory, and displays the stamina of a genuine classic in its field. In staging and interpretation, moreover, it shames its predecessors. "The Merry Widow" has been treated in a manner worthy of its renown, and a first class performance of a lyric masterpiece is the result.

Donald Brian, back in the rôle he originated [so far as the American career of "The Merry Widow" is concerned], is not merely in quest of his youth; he seems to have found it. He is almost as good as new. He carries no extra poundage; he is still as tall and straight and debonair as a dancing tenor should be. The loss to his limberness and ballroom grace must be reported as barely more than a trace. He is, in spite of middle age, the admirable heir apparent of Marsovia who can wear a hussar's mess jacket without compromising his waistline.

The Sonia, whose merriness in wealthy widowhood makes the title and the plot, is as good as any of her forerunners. She is Beppie de Vries, a sparkling blonde from the Netherlands who sings admirably, acts with grace, and dances with charm. The naturalization of Beppie, if not already accomplished, should be demanded; the American stage can make excellent use of her in the future.

Oscar Figman, as the cuckold Popoff, and Craig Campbell, as the romantic Jolidon, are spirited contributors to the performance. In general, this is "The Merry Widow" as it should be given.

Speaking of revivals, "The Time, the Place and the Girl" clamors for the attention of sentimental old timers at the Harris theater. This relic of the period when the La Salle theater was a Chicago institution, breeding musical comedies upon which the population doted, has been revamped into a "second edition" by Joe Howard, its composer; and such well remembered ditties as "Blow the Smoke Away," "I Don't Like Your Family," and "Thursday Is My Jonah Day" are again in circulation. To keep in step with the musical fashions of the present, however, Mr. Howard has junked a large section of the score and added six new numbers, among which "Prep Step" may be cited as something to appeal to the taste of the younger generation.

The piece has been smartly restaged, and its chorus of adolescent girls has been drilled in the paces and maneuvers characteristic of Ned Wayburn's dance technique. Frederic Santley does well in Cecil Lean's old part; Madeline Parker, a neat dancer if not much of a song-bird, inherits the Florence Holbrook tradition; Nita Cavalier is effective as the humorous nurse; Anita Case has style as the dashing widow; and the others are passable for the purposes of this homespun show. "The Time, the Place and the Girl" will not set the town afire, but it will be for many a genial reminder of the days that were.

To change the subject again: The new play at the Cort theater, "Many a Slip," is an affair of definite charm and distinction. It deserves high ranking among the light comedies of the season; it tells a lively love story with modern candor and in excellent taste, and it is acted by a perfect cast, including two young players who have had marked success in the Theater guild—Sylvia Field and Douglass Montgomery.

"Many a Slip," which has been somewhat obscured in the mêlée of Easter prèmieres, merits the attention of playgoers. It will be reviewed more extensively next Sunday.

Count to Wed Daughter of Dictator Today

Edda Mussolini Will Be Diplomat's Bride.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 23.—Edda Mussolini, 21 year old daughter of Italy's dictator, at 11 a. m. tomorrow will become the bride of Count Galeazzo Ciano di Cortellazzo, son of Il Duce's minister of communications. The groom is secretary of the Italian embassy in Vatican City. The wedding will take place in Premier Mussolini's parish church of San Giuseppe, in the Via Nomentana. Through her marriage Edda will become a countess.

Il Duce, with whom Edda has always been a great favorite, this morning personally inspected the floral arrangements in the church. Huge bouquets of tulips, lilies, oleanders, lilacs and potted plants are arranged in the three aisles of the small church, which was built only 25 years ago, and is of Romanesque style.

For the marriage ceremonies, rich dark velvet hangings have been draped in the church, and a dark velvet canopy has been arranged before the altar, under which the newlyweds will kneel when Father Giovenale Pascucci, parish priest of San Giuseppe and a Vatican canon, performs the ceremony.

Il Duce and Donna Rachele Mussolini gave an intimate reception this afternoon at their home, the Villa Torlonia, for government officials and immediate relatives and friends.

Besides rich gifts from the king and queen, the Fascist party, the grand council, the governor of Rome, the senate, the chamber of deputies, and the diplomatic corps, the young couple have received presents of flowers from all parts of Italy. Pope Pius this afternoon sent Edda a golden rosary as his wedding present.

The nuptial party will leave Villa Torlonia at 11 a. m. tomorrow by automobile and will proceed to the church through big crowds. They will be carefully guarded by police. In the wedding cortége Edda Mussolini will give her arm to Minister Ciano. The young husband will walk with Rachele Mussolini, and il duce will walk with Countess Ciano, wife of the minister.

The wedding march of Enrico Bossi will be played by Prof. Germani of the Augusteo Symphony orchestra. Witnesses for the wedding will be, for the bride, Senator Torlonia and Arnaldo Mussolini, il duce's brother; for the bridegroom, Count Cesare Maria de Vecchi di Val, ambassador to the Vatican, and Dino Grandi, Mussolini's foreign minister.

MISS MARY LORETTO BRANNAN.

Swedish Choral Club Praised for Its "Elijah"

BY EDWARD MOORE.

As its contribution to the season of spring music, the Swedish Choral club presented Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," at Orchestra hall last eve- ning, and as a result that organiza- tion appeared in the most favorable light it has been in for some time.

There are about 200 singers in the chorus, and their voices have both quality and sturdiness. Apparently their rehearsals with their conductor, Harry T. Carlson, had been both care- ful and fruitful. At any rate Mendels- sohn's polite, suavely written music seemed much to their taste, for they sang it enthusiastically, neither over- eagerly nor carelessly, but with weight and warmth.

The commendable choral singing was given point also by the perform- ance of the assisting artists. Frederic Baer of New York sang the part of Elijah in a way to confirm the opin- ion of last winter that he is one of the best concert baritones on the plat- form today. His voice is firm and pol- ished at the same time, he tinges it with a completely dramatic expres- sion, and he uses the English lan- guage as though it were a good tongue to sing in, which it is.

With him were Olive Nevin, so- prano; Isabel Zehr, contralto; and Watt Webber, tenor. Here again the English language was handled with friendly respect, particularly by Miss Nevin and Webber, who took high enunciative ratings. Mr. Webber used to claim a Chicago residence. In the interval since he last was here he has made great artistic strides particu- larly in the quality and flexibility of his voice. He made a fine effect with "If With All Your Hearts." Loretta Liedell sang the music of the youth, the double quartet section was sung not by eight, but twenty-four of the chorus, and fifty members of the Chi- cago Symphony orchestra with Stan- ley Martin at the organ played the in- strumental score.

Henlot Levy gave his annual piano recital at Kimball hall last night, which was reached just in time to hear him announce from the stage that the Chopin Ballade in G minor would be subscribed for the Bee- thoven Sonata, opus 101. Other Chopin numbers, the Fantasy and three etudes, followed, and the program closed with Liszt's "Mephisto" waltz.

Mr. Levy is an earnest and consci- entious student of the piano in all its phases and a composer with a large number of extended works to his credit. Being one of Chicago's well known pedagogues as well, it is some- times difficult to see how he can keep himself in form for a recital of ma- jor proportions. But he did. He played thoughtfully and effectively, and to the sincere pleasure of a large audience.

Among other scheduled musical matters of last night were the appear- ance of Lois Johnston as Arline in "The Bohemian Girl" at the Civic theater, the part sung by Margery Maxwell in the opening performance and the presentation of the "Russian Wedding" by Princess Agreneva- Slaviansky and her Royal Russian choir at the Studebaker.

Women's Show of Pictures Has Vivid Contrasts

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Two exhibitions are engaging the attention in the South Side Art asso- ciation galleries in the Fine Arts building. Florence White Williams is showing oils and water colors in one room and Macena Barton is showing large oils in the second room. The difference between the two is the difference between the trilling of a meadow lark and the resonant, per- sistent boom of a fog horn. There is something inevitable about Macena Barton's painting. It is cataclysmic. The paintings are large, sure and beautiful. They strike against one's consciousness with the surging force of chords pealing from an organ.

Florence White Williams paints in a different manner. It is more amus- ing, more subtle, more picturesque. Her water colors are a delight in deli- cate colors, in whimsical setting and in their introduction of little figures. Here are children at a fountain's rim, there are peasant women engaged in chatter. Here are steps going up from a Spanish street and over yonder are boats at anchor with gulls beating white wings against the sky and the sun shining glitteringly on the blue water. Again we find a market place, this a larger canvas in oil, where peasant women in red congregate with earthen pitchers on their heads and by their sides, red earthen plates and baskets. Umbrellas keep off the heat of the sun. And beyond this there is a summer day in Gloucester with the landscape a cool mingling of greens and whites; summer cottages on grassy hills and in the sound sailing boats scudding before a little breeze.

Some of the most charming, the most delightful and the most beauti- ful of Miss Williams' varied exhibit are "Calla Lilies," "Portuguese For- mal Garden," "Sunny Spain," "Re- flections in the Fog," "A Rockport Lane," "Alcazar Garden," "Street in Cintra," and "Five o'Clock."

The exhibit will continue two weeks. At is close Macena Barton is sending her paintings to Holland, where they have been invited to a distinguished exhibition.

Doris Is All for a "Clean Out Pockets" Week for Husbands

BY DORIS BLAKE.

I've got to start a "Clean Out Your Pockets Week" for men. I don't see any other way out of the difficulties that wives report.

Goodness knows, I've warned men time after time to remove all evi- dence of their pecadilloes; to keep their pockets clean of suspicion, whether they have been up to any- thing or not. But the bunglers go on, leaving suspicious looking tele- phone ciphers for prying eyes to bulge at; photographs, of all things, stuck in between notation papers; women's cigaret cases in right hand pockets.

The latest pocket find reported is a girl's address, telephone number, age, and blonde coloring penciled in a hus- band's own script. The fact that the young woman was an applicant for a stenographic job, though it is the husband's story to which he sticks firmly, doesn't seem to carry a single bit of relief to the brow of the fren- zied mate. Neither does the fact that said wife called the young woman's telephone number and was told by the irate young lady that she had nothing whatever to do with the pocket evidence other than making a perfect- ly legitimate application for a posi- tion, seem to allay the infuriated one's suspicions.

Women are like that—the pocket cleaning species, anyway. You can't trust them to believe anything but a clear, unscribbled sheet of paper. Even that they'll hold up to the light for a searching scrutiny.

Again, I warn you men. Clean out —or be prepared for the worst! For no matter how you protest your in- nocence, there will ever afterward be reservations against your honesty.

I don't know why pocket evidence inflames a woman as it does. She can catch a man red handed in a flirtation and not be half so incensed, although I'm not recommending that you let her catch you at the latter, either. The truth remains, though, that a woman can create a bitter drama, indict a man, try and hang him mentally on nothing stronger than a cryptic notation stuck care- lessly into a coast, vest, or pants pocket.

If you can't convince the little searcher after trouble that she's all wrong in her conjectures, you can't expect any one else to. Which is why I'm heart and soul for a "Clean Out Your Pockets Week."

Nicole Groult Creates Three in One Ensemble

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.] — Paris fashions like variety this spring. Yet, as every élégante knows to her cost, variety is dangerous un- less the income is unlimited. For if you run into too many basic tones you will never manage to keep caught up with yourself as to accessories and dewdads. How then achieve the in- dividuality of effect that Paris de- mands?

The Paris couturiers answer the question for you by devising all sorts of trick transformation ensembles, so that, like Sherlock Holmes, you might get into a taxi one way and get out another. These sartorial transforma- tions with their interchangeable spare parts also do much to solve the prob- lems created for the business girl by the new dual standard of the formal mode. Boleros, jackets, and capes lend variety as well as sobriety to a too filmy frock and allow it to do double or triple duty by its wearer.

Nicole Groult creates a three in one ensemble whose spare parts make of it a formal afternoon costume, a tai- lored evening ensemble, or a more frilly creation, as the whim of its wearer or the occasion requires. It is in two shades of blue faille. The tai- lored frock with its slender hip yoke and circular ankle length skirt, orna- mented by fine horizontal tuckings, is of pale blue. The midnight blue faille of the coat is recalled by two large faille bows placed symmetrically on the skirt and by the tailored belt with its blue rhinestone buckle. The coat is the tricky feature of this adaptable ensemble. It may be worn complete, as it is shown on the main figure of our drawing, forming an informal eve- ning ensemble. The three flounces, attached by snap fasteners, zip off leaving a short tailored jacket suitable for elaborate afternoon, or the flounces may be worn alone as a frivolous little cape on a warm summer evening. All combinations exemplify that careless modern chic whose simplicity is al- ways elegant but never overdressed.

Lilacs to Bring Spring Perfume to Ailing, Poor

BY PAUL POTTER.

The fragrance of freshly cut flowers will fill wards of Chicago hospitals and the rooms of the tenement homes this summer.

Organization machinery to move the home grown supply from suburban gardens along a speedy way into each needy spot was set in motion yester- day in a meeting at the Cordon club, attended by leaders in the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild.

Surplus blossoms from thousands of lilac bushes in Chicagoland will be the first in a steady stream of flowers to be cut and delivered throughout the summer, officials announced.

The guild has promised coöperation in THE TRIBUNE'S proposal that boun- teous supplies of lilacs which other- wise wither on the bush be placed in sick rooms and homes of the needy, beginning May 15.

Through arrangements made with various suburban railways and utili- ties, garden clubs of outlying towns will gather the cut flowers and assem- ble them in Chicago railroad terminals. Booths will be maintained in the North Western, Illinois Central, La Salle street and Union stations. Gen- eral chairmen appointed by T. V. Pur- cell, president of the guild, are: Union station, Mrs. D. M. Workman, La Grange; La Salle street, Mrs. Frank Kingsley, Evanston; Illinois Central (Randolph street), Mrs. T. E. Moritz, Kenilworth; and North Western, Mrs. W. S. Underwood.

Word pictures of need for flowers in settlements, hospitals, and other places in Chicago were given during the luncheon by Miss Harriet Vittum, Northwestern University Settlement house; Miss Mary McDowell, Univer- sity of Chicago settlement; Michael Zimmer, warden, Cook County hos- pital. Reports were read for Miss Edna Foley, Chicago Visiting Nurses' association, and Miss Sarah Place, In- fant Welfare society of Chicago. All showed the appreciation of those who were supplied with flowers last sum- mer through the guild.

Prominent citizens in Chicago and suburbs are sponsoring the "cut and carry" program, which enters its fourth season.

Mrs. Charles G. Dawes is honorary president, and Mrs. Robert R. McCor- mick chairman of the executive com- mittee of the guild. Following the luncheon, plans were made with gar- den club leaders for carrying out de- tails of the campaign.

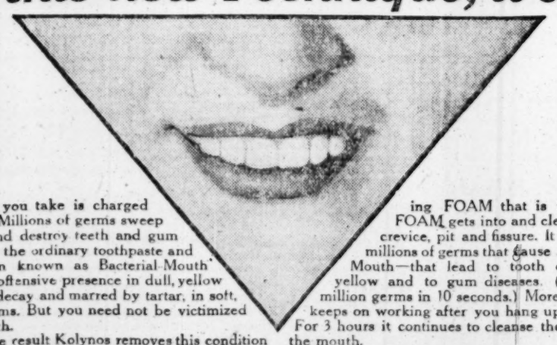
Now why not have Teeth

3 shades WHITER in 3 days

with this new Technique, it's easy



EVERY breath you take is charged with danger. Millions of germs sweep into the mouth and destroy teeth and gum tissue. They defy the ordinary toothpaste and cause a condition known as Bacterial-Mouth which reveals its offensive presence in dull, yellow teeth, scarred by decay and marred by tartar, in soft, receding, pale gums. But you need not be victimized by Bacterial-Mouth.

With remarkable result Kolynos removes this condition by killing the germs that cause it.

Use the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique* for just 3 days . . . then note the change in teeth and gums.

Teeth look whiter—fully three shades. Gums feel firmer, they are healthier. And your mouth tingles with a refreshing, clean taste.

*Saves Teeth . . Saves Money!

The unique action of Kolynos permits the Dry-Brush Technique advocated by leading dentists as the way . . . to use a dental cream full strength . . . to keep the brush bristles stiff enough to clean every tooth surface and massage gums properly. . . . Use a half inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night . . . Dental cream lasts longer . . . Teeth look cleaner and whiter. . . . Try this amazing Kolynos Technique.

Kolynos cleans teeth and gums as they should be cleaned. As soon as it enters the mouth, this highly concentrated, anti- septic dental cream gives you a pleas- ant surprise. It be- comes an exhilarat- ing FOAM that is full of life. This FOAM gets into and cleans out every tiny crevice, pit and fissure. It instantly kills the millions of germs that cause offensive Bacterial-Mouth—that lead to tooth decay, stain, ugly yellow and to gum diseases. (Kolynos kills 190 million germs in 10 seconds.) Moreover, this FOAM keeps on working after you hang up your toothbrush. For 3 hours it continues to cleanse the teeth and purify the mouth.

That is why teeth are so easily and swiftly cleaned down to the beautiful, naked white enamel—without injury.

If you want whiter teeth free from decay, and firm, pink gums—discard the den- tifrice that does only half the job. Switch to Koly- nos. It will win you in 3 days. Get a tube from any druggist—or mail coupon for a generous trial tube.

Your Child Passes from One Stage to Another; Follow Him

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Sometimes it seems to me as though each age of childhood is a law unto itself. Of course, in a way this is an exaggeration, but in another way it isn't.

Compare, for instance, the way in which you handle a child of 3 and one of 10. Underlying principles of human nature are the same, but the applying of them to each phase of a child's growth is another story—it requires thought and skill to change your own ways to meet the changing needs of your child.

Even a profoundly learned psychologist, to whom we accord the greatest respect, may err when it comes to dealing with an age with which he has had no experience. Not long ago I was astounded to hear two such men answer at different times questions about managing a 2 year old in a temper, which were really funny. One said, "Get him a punching bag." And the other merely said, "Don't let him see that his tempers have any effect on you."

After my astonishment had worn off I realized that the probable cause for such answers was that neither of these men had ever had daily, close, personal contact with a little child. It is a specialized experience—and no pure theory is going to be helpful in a concrete way. The advice for those ages should be based on scientific knowledge plus experience and really intimate contact with each different stage, because each stage is different. Unlike the psychologists quoted, parents have the opportunity to gain first hand experience of each age, as their children grow and develop.

But it is in addition a good thing for them to catch a glimpse, a vista of what lies ahead. And what that vista reveals is that the growing child is a changing creature—and we must change with him. Not in the underlying fundamentals of love, understanding and responsiveness, but in ways nearer the surface. You might call it changing your technique. For example, the child of three may be docile and desire your constant companionship. The child of ten may crave other children, and freedom, and perhaps argue points of behavior.

Many parents lament the passing of a little child's sweet docility and winning lovableness, and this hampers them in their usefulness. Growth means change. We must meet nature on her own ground.

Proper Foods and Proper Mastication Promote Fine Teeth

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The enormous importance of good looking teeth does not have to be stressed in this day and age. Few people are without the pride that calls form morning and evening brushing.

But there is a point about teeth care that is recalled to our attention in a recent articles on how to keep your teeth into ripe old age. It is about chewing food on one side of the mouth exclusively.

We do know that teeth decay and weaken though the toothbrush is used daily. And while it is agreed that a clean tooth is less likely to be attacked by caries or any other infection, still the actual soundness of teeth and gums depends upon the exercise they are given. And, of course, the only way teeth and gums can be exercised is by giving them food to chew.

It is an almost universal habit—this one of adopting a pet side for meal work. It is a thoughtless one, however. Maybe people never think of the effect it is having on the unused side. I remember some time ago reading an article by a prominent dentist who claimed that faces were unevenly developed on both sides because of this habit of making only the jaw on one side do the work. Anyway, it is a simple trick to train oneself to chew on both sides of the mouth.

Another not frequently enough challenged habit that has a deleterious effect on the teeth is that of bolting food. Here again the teeth are deprived of their daily dozen. It is not only the teeth, but the gums, too, that require their daily quota of exercise. Digestive difficulties that follow hurrying food down without proper mastication creates certain gaseous and acid conditions that are bad for the teeth.

We know the food we eat is soft, too soft to give exercise to teeth and gums. We know we should eat harder foods, fibrous foods, foods that require chewing. But as for providing the teeth with something hard to chew on, we are all rather remiss, isn't it true?

As women learned about foods for their figures, they should set about learning and putting into practice facts about foods that make for fine, strong teeth and firm, pink gums.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Before the Customers.

My work requires me to stand all day and although I wear high heeled slippers for street wear I have an old pair of flat heeled shoes that I change to at work. I had them filled with paper because the soles were thin.

One night just before closing time I read of a shoe sale in one of the loop stores. In my hurry to get to this store before it closed I had entirely forgotten the flat heeled slippers. When the salesman removed my slipper to take my size, lo! and behold, the papers inside my shoe scattered about, much to the amusement of other customers. Embarrassed, and how! E. M.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The table manners of a neighbor's small boy were a source of much worry to his parents. As they were to entertain some distinguished guests for dinner his mother patiently drilled John on his table etiquette. On the night of the dinner he came off with flying colors.

A few days later on being told that they were to entertain some more guests, he said, "Mother shall I use the same manners tonight that I used the other time or do I have to learn something different?" S. M. B.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Old Fashioned Rice Pudding.

The old fashioned rice pudding is simple and substantial. In England it counts as a leading milk pudding. If you have read many English novels, you know what a milk pudding is to the British isles. It seems to be a great comfort to people who either have weak digestions or are a little under the weather. In other words, in England, and elsewhere as well, rice pudding seems to be an ingvitable edible.

When we eat the same thing in Paris, where it is likely to be cooked in a sheet iron in what we call a dripping pan, and finally cooked stiff enough to be cut in squares, we may think this "gateau de riz" ranks with the best of pastries.

The cooking of rice pudding affords an interesting, even extraordinary, phenomenon, because the liquid seems so generous, or the rice so scanty, but the latter swells while the former is condensed. The desirable thing is to have these swell and reduce in the right way, or slowly. The proportions for a small pudding are: Four cups of milk, four scant tablespoons washed rice, making one-fourth cup, or if we wish to use less have one scant tablespoon rice to each cup of milk. Wash the rice thoroughly, pour boiling water over it and let it stand for five minutes. Drain well, put it into a buttered baking dish, add the milk, put it in a 300 degree oven and bake for three hours. When the top puffs up and has a light brown shade, stir it in. This should be done before that top becomes stiff and high, and at a 300 degree temperature it may take a whole hour of cooking for it to puff up. If it does it earlier, probably it is cooking too fast.

If a ring forms around the dish while it is cooking, that is a sign it is cooking too fast, or if it forms quickly. If it has slowly formed, we should stir it in at the same time we stir in the top. If these slightly browned parts get too stiff they do not stir or blend with the rest well. After the pudding is slowly and well heated through, or during the second and third hours of its baking, it is usually best to stir the top in twice during the hour.

If correctly baked this pudding needs no sugar, but we may, if we like, use one-fourth of a cup. The top will brown sooner when the sugar is used. A pretty description of the right sort of a top when it is finished is that it is like brown satin.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

Buying and selling bees by the pound has become an increasing practice among fanciers, especially in the trade that has grown up recently between southern state raisers of bees and customers in northern states. The apiarists buy by weight during the months of April, May, and June. A three pound package is considered the nucleus of a strong colony for honey production as soon as the flow begins.

One reason for this success with southern grown bees is because northerners find disease problems with them are a minus quantity, according to H. F. Wilson, entomologist of the Wisconsin college of agriculture. The bees are mailed from their starting point with only enough food to last until they reach their destination, ready to place in the hives of their new owners.

Shipping bees through this system enables the beekeeper to replace any swarm which may have died during a hard winter. Practice rules that it is less expensive to buy a package of bees in the spring than to attempt to carry a weak swarm through a hard winter season.

Another new step in the honey industry is occurring in Wisconsin, where 310 beekeepers have agreed to join the Mountain States Honey association and to deliver their product under the supervision of the organization. The honey is delivered to the cooperative center, where it is stored in warehouses until sold.

Meetings are being held in Eau Claire, Trempealeau, and Ozauke counties to obtain more members, according to James Goss, honey specialist of the Wisconsin state department of markets.

ONLY BRUTALITY WINS WARS, SAYS BRITISH GENERAL

Aims Sensational Book at Future Fighting.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 23.—What promises to be the most sensational inside story yet written about trench life during the world war will be given to the British public tomorrow with the publication of "A Brass Hat in No Man's Land," by Brig. Gen. F. P. Crozier, who participated as brigade commander in the British army at the time of the victorious advance in 1918.

Brutal executions, free love, merciless treatment of soldiers are all denounced by Gen. Crozier as necessary accessories of warfare, while the Christian church is condemned as "the truest blood lust creator which we have."

This extraordinarily frank book, which Gen. Crozier wrote in ten days, serves as an overwhelming indictment against war through its detailed descriptions of the accompanying horrors.

"War Justifies Everything."

"War justifies everything men do to secure victory and shorten the duration of hostilities," the book says. The rules which have been drawn up for modern warfare are absurd. Modern warfare cannot be carried on gently and politely. All rules must inevitably break down, whether you like it or not.

"It is far better to eradicate the cause of war—itself—than to build up false hopes it can be waged in any other way than through brute force and brutal means."

One of the chapters of the book is the graphic description of the execution of a youth, who attempted to desert, when his mind broke down under the strain.

Execution Is Described.

In describing the affair, the author says:

"I arrange that enough liquor is left at the side of the condemned man to sink a ship. In the morning at dawn, snow being on the ground, the battalion forms on the public road. Inside the little garden on the other side of the wall, the victim is carried to the stake. He is too drunk to walk.

"As he is produced I see he is practically lifeless and quite unconscious. He has already been bound with ropes. There are hooks on the post. He is hooked up like dead meat in a butcher shop. His eyes are bandaged—not that it really matters, for he is already blind."

The firing squad's volley does not kill the victim, according to the physician's report, so the officer, who has stood by his side, fires the finishing bullet," the book relates.

Defends Free Love.

The general defends free love with the same power as he defends wartime executions, declaring he believes the sex affairs among the celibates of both sexes, who were engaged in war work between 1914 and 1918, "were as inevitable as the rising and setting of the sun."

"The abnormal life, shattered nerves, the longing to forget, if even for one brief moment the absence from home, and the inculcation of barbaric habits in our manhood, tempered by the most beautiful acts of heroism and unselfish sacrifices to duty even unto death, lead directly and inevitably to the path of free love on a large, elaborate and ever expanding scale," the book continues.

POPE PIUS XI. TO CANONIZE FIRST 8 AMERICAN SAINTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 23.—With 18 cardinals of the curia attending, Pope Pius XI. this morning held a secret consistory to pass on the canonizations which will take place during the month of June. Camilius Cardinal Laurenti made a report on the lives and causes of the beatification of the two martyrs, Sister Catherine Thoma and Theophile de Corte.

Following the secret consistory this morning the pope held a public consistory which was attended by prelates of the congregation of rites, consistorial lawyers, members of the papal court, many monks, nuns and diplomats attached to the holy see. The pope was carried to his throne on the sedia gestatoria surrounded by attendants bearing huge feathery flabella, and escorted by Swiss and noble guards.
